Opponents Face Off on Bill 42

BILL 42 IN FULL

Bill 42 — the B.C. Land Commission Act — is probably the most controversial piece of legislation ever introduced in this province.

Extreme opponents have branded it as a socialist attack on the property rights of the individual. Some supporters hail it as the best solution yet to the problem of halting the devastation of irreplaceable agricultural land.

And between the extremes there are varying shades of opinion including many who endorse the principle of the bill but disagree on the means of achieving a worthwhile end.

Today's Times, on Page 41, presents Bill 42 as it was introduced in the legislature — the introductory first six sections in summary and the balance verbatim.

Opponents and supporters of the NDP government's proposed Land Commission Act squared off Tuesday and today, anticipating a major confrontation at the legislature tomorrow.

All opposition parties were active in their effort to scuttle the bill and two environmental organizations — the B.C. Wildlife Federation and the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC) — voiced support for it.

A new brief from the Victoria Real Estate Board called for delays and extensive changes to the legislation, and a petition against the act turned up 560 signatures from Salt Spring Island.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce this morning issued a brief, asking also for extensive changes, speculating that land and housing costs will be inflated by the land commission's actions.

In the legislature, Social Credit MLA Don Phillips spoke for more than five hours in a fillibuster-like attempt to focus opposition to the bill. Phillips was expected to continue his debate today and the Socreds intend to try to help the debate going until Thursday's demonstration.

B.C. Agriculture Federation manager Richard Stocks told a Kiwanis luncheon at the Empress that Thursday is "D-Day" for the bill — when as many as 4,000 demonstrators will demand a redrafting.

A public meeting in Oak Bay attracted about 50 persons, most of them against the legislation. Of the 60, only 10 indicated they had read the bill.

Liberal Leader David Anderson was in Kamloops at a bull sale and stock show where he called the bill "dictatorial" and said it would give the five-man land commission "complete power" to do what ever it wished to private land.

Progressive Conservative Leader Derril Warren was in Kelowna, urging 200 Okanagan residents to join the demonstration Thursday.

A demonstration in support of the bill is being organized by the Citizens Association to Save the Environment. A spokesman today said support is expected from farmers, fruit growers and others. It is planned for 12.30 p.m.

Phillips called the proposed land commission law vicious, idiotic, drastic, sinister, fantastic, and bad. He said Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich had been "stampeded" into introducing the bill, mostly by Resources Minister Bob Williams.

"Someone has become frightened, has not done enough research, has panicked and brought in this sinister bill . . . they have created calamity by using confiscation instead of compensation."

Phillips charged Stupich with having a closed mind on the subject and challenged him to "go out to the people and have social intercourse with them."

"He says he will shove it through at any cost . . . he'll force it through because he's backed into a corner."

At about 10 p.m. Phillips said the reason the bill was being rushed through the legislature was the apparent "urgency to execute the com-

Cheap Land Soon

Parcels of land will soon be available at "considerably reduced" prices through the government's land bank acquisition program, Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said in the legislature Tuesday.

The land will be available to the general public before long, Lorimer said in response to a question posed by Liberal leader David Anderson during the day's question period. People who wish to purchase land should wait for a while to avoid the high prices on land in the province, he said.

Lorimer said government acquisitions have taken place in the areas of Port Moody, Coquitlam, Burnaby and Vancouver. No land has been resold yet, he said, but it will become available through leases and rentals.

The minister said some sales, leases and rentals will take place through tenders and bidding procedures and some will not. Land being disposed of in the open market will go by bidding. He added that there will be room in the scheme for low income people who will not have to pay extraordinarily high prices for land.

To a question from Jim Chabot (SC — Columbia River), Lorimer said the government will continue to pay as much as $82,000 per acre for the land it acquires if that high a price is necessary.

"It is difficult to get land at less than its market value," Lorimer said, adding that each purchase is taken into consideration by a valuator before a transaction is completed.

COMMON COLD CURE ... A HAPPY MARRIAGE

LONDON (Renter) — The best cure for the common cold could be a happy marriage, a sociologist says in a book.

Many people with cold symptoms do not actually have a cold, writes Lucy Freeman. They are subconsciously punishing themselves because things are going badly in love. Later, the body's natural defences break down and the cold virus is free to strike.

In the book, Your Mind Can Stop the Common Cold, Miss Freeman cites cases of a woman who developed a cold whenever her lover went abroad, and of a man who caught the sniffles when his mistress left him.

She also describes a survey in which a group of women office workers were split into two groups — one with happy marriages and the other with marital problems.

The first group rarely caught colds. The second group caught them regularly.

Little Support For Barrett

Premier Barrett has found little immediate support for his proposed Alaska to British Columbia railway to transport Arctic oil.

Barrett said he found officials in Washington firmly committed to the Alaska pipeline but he was awaiting official government reaction from Washington and Ottawa.

Washington sources said Interior Under-secretary John Whittaker indicated to Barrett that his proposal, as well as others, would be studied as a second system to move oil from the North Slope if future finds are so substantial as to require a second system.

Federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said in Ottawa Tuesday night the proposal was deficient because it would only serve Alaska oil deposits and not the Canadian oil finds in the Arctic.

A railway or pipeline through the Mackenzie Valley could serve both American and Canadian oilfields, he said.

"Any idea is useful," he said, but "I don't welcome having a project presented to me Monday and being asked Tuesday if I accept it."

In Juneau, Gov. William Egan of Alaska rejected the whole idea as impossible.

Egan, who advocates a pipeline through Alaska, said the railway proposal would present "insurmountable logistics problems and equally-impossible invironmental question."

The governor said: "Similar ideas have been given very, very serious consideration and considerable amounts of money have been expended on those studies. The logistics of doing this without great danger of regularly spilling the oil and hurting the landscape are impossible."

In announcing the proposal in Victoria Tuesday, Highways Minister Robert Strachan said there would be little hope for the project unless the B.C. government could get Alaska's support.

The B.C. government is urging construction of a double track rail line through Alaska and the Yukon to connect up with the British Columbia Railway. Some oil and gas could be transported by pipeline once inside B.C., according to the proposal.

Only immediate support outside B.C. came from Gordon Mcintyre, administrator of the Yukon, who said "we would be delighted to have a railway through the Yukon."

In Olympia, Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said Premier Barrett's proposal should be considered along with the Alaska pipeline and the Mackenize Valley proposal.

"Premier Barrett's proposal is an interesting and unique one which deserves thorough consideration," he said.

Halt Arms Flow U.S. Tells Hanoi

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—The United States has sent Hanoi a sharp reminder that the Paris pact specifically forbids an arms buildup in South Vietnam.

U.S. sources declined to specify the number of men and heavy equipment being infiltrated into the south. But Pentagon officials earlier stated that as many as 30,000 North Vietnamese troops have moved down the Ho Chi Minh Trail on the Laotian border.

Any military buildup in Laos caused by another country would, in itself, violate the agreement signed in Paris Jan. 27 by the United States, Hanoi, Saigon and the Viet Cong.

Washington is delaying a formal protest until it can get a clearer idea of Hanoi's intent, the precise amount of infiltration and specific timing of the movements.

In Paris, meanwhile, the Viet Cong issued a statement accusing the Saigon government of violating the agreement by conducting military operations and failing to release civilian prisoners.

On the U.S. side, another reason for diplomatic care is concern for the release of U.S. prisoners still held by the Communists.

Meanwhile, Canada's External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp arrived in Tokyo today on his way to both North and South Vietnam to study the situation.

He is to hold talks in Tokyo with officials regarding relations between China and Japan before continuing his trip Thursday morning.

THEY CAME OUT FIGHTING

A proposal to drop 5,000 people and a 505-acre subdivision onto a North Cowichan mountainside caused local residents to come out fighting. Times reporter Clement Chapple, who attended a public hearing on the matter last Thursday, examines the proposal and the day the "hicks" and "rustics" roared, on Page 10 today.

'Tax or Ban' Liquor Ads

Advertising of alcoholic products in B.C. should either be banned completely or should be subject to special taxation, the legislature's social welfare and education committee was told today.

E. D. McRae, executive director of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., told the committee advertising of alcohol produces "no social benefit" and is a negative cost to society.

He suggested that if no complete ban can be instituted, companies advertising their products should be taxed according to the amount they advertise. The money from this taxation would be used for counter-advertising aimed at reducing alcoholic consumption by the general public.

McRae said statistics have shown that 45 per cent of all alcoholic products are consumed by only seven per cent of all drinkers. He said there has been a rapid increase in recent years in the number of alcoholics in the province, in the amount of alcohol per capital being consumed and in the rate of death from cirrhosis of the liver.

He said the real cause for concern in the advertising field is the type of ad exposed through the electronic media. People have no choice but to be exposed to radio and television ads, he said, unlike newspaper and magazine ads which people read if they wish to.

There has been a trend, he said, by the large national alcoholic producers to make alcoholic products comparatively cheaper for the average person to purchase.

In response to questions from committee members, he said substantial increases in the cost of the product would likely cause a drop in consumption. The increase would

Bombers Hit Ulster Border

BELFAST (UPI) — Bombers thought to be Irish Republican Army men stepped up bomb campaigns today along the Irish Republic border with landmine booby-traps and in Northern Ireland's cities with conventional bombs.

A bomb wrecked a supermarket in southwest Belfast, another blast wrecked a greeting card shop in central Belfast near the city hall, and a third bomb wrecked a factory boiler house in the city's southwest suburbs. Police said there were no casualties.

Army spokesmen said the IRA narrowly missed a mobile army patrol when it exploded a land mine on a border road just before the patrol vechicle reached the spot. Army spokesmen said the border land mine was similar to one that killed Pvt. John W. King near Crossmaglen, 46 miles southwest of Belfast, Tuesday.

A bomb also exploded across the street in the shadow of Belfast's city hall today, causing extensive damage in the commercial centre of the Northern Ireland capital but no casualties.

Armed men planted the bomb in a card shop. It wrecked the shop and adjoining offices and blew out windows around the main square.

In London, seven men and three young women from Northern Ireland were ordered by a court Tuesday to be held for another week on charges of plotting the terror blasts that killed one man and wounded 243 persons in London.

The three-minute hearing at Bow Street magistrate's court took place among massive security precautions.

Meanwhile, a new government takes office in the Republic of Ireland today after 16 years of government by Jack Lynch and his Fianna Fail party.

The government, a coalition of Fine Gael and Labor, was elected with an over-all two-seat parliamentary margin 12 days ago. Fine Gael Leader Liam Cosgrave will be prime minister and Labor Leader Brendan Corlish will be deputy premier.

More Thalidomide Suits

Times News Services

A U.S lawyer representing 22 thalidomide-deformed Quebec children whose families never sued for damages from the drug manufacturer has launched a rare "end run" court action.

The first of two similar suits it was filed in Newark, New Jersey, to get around the Quebec legal code which has a time limit on when suits may be filed.

In Youngstown, Ohio, a Charlottetown lawyer filed a $6.5 million suit against the same manufacturer, Richardson-Merrill Inc. of Cleveland.

Gerald Foster, the Charlottetown lawyer acting for Jane Elizabeth Rogerson and her mother, Mrs. Adella Rogerson of Bedeque, P.E.I., said the action was filed on behalf of them and two other children and their parents. He is also asking $74 million in punitive damages for 74 other Canadian children.

Foster said "The action is a class action on behalf of all other Canadian thalidomide children and their parents."

The Quebec children, including a 12-year-old limbless girl are among at least 35 born in the early 1960s to Quebec mothers who, in early pregnancy, had taken thalidomide, the sedative blamed for the birth of thousands of armless and legless babies around the world.

Most of the Quebec parents never sought damages from the manufacturer, the Canadian subsidiary of Richardson-Merrell.

Some, living in remote areas, simply were unaware that they might have a basis to sue. Others were made legally helpless, or so they believed, by the Quebec legal code.

The code says that a damage suit must be filed no more than one year after the occurrance of an injury which can be said to be related to a product.

Many of the children, however, were born before the company wrote to physicians in December, 1961, that a link could exist between birth defects and ingestion of Kevadon, its trade name for thalidomide, in the first trimester of pregnancy.

Arthur G. Raynes, who in 1969 represented an armless Pennsylvania boy in the first thalidomide case to go to a jury trial, filed the suit in behalf of Denis Henry, 10, and his parents, all of Viomnt est Laval, Quebec. Raynes now is counsel in 22 Canadian thalidomide cases.

The suit, built on a 21-year statute of limitations effective in New Jersey, accuses Richardson-Merrill of "negligent, fraudulent, wilful, wanton and reckless conduct," and asks for unspecified compensatory damages, legal costs, and "such other relief as may be fair and just."

The company has not filed an answer and declined to comment on the suit.

Developer Term Not Accurate

Victoria lawyer and former city alderman Ian Stewart says a March 9 Times report was incorrect in describing him as "the developer" in an apartment project approved last year by the board of variance.

The report quoted Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen describing Mr. Stewart as "the developer" in a Goward Developments Ltd. highrise project at 139 Clarence.

Mr. Stewart says he resigned as a director of the development company a month before the zoning public hearing held by the board of variance.

"For the record, I have never been in a controlling position in Goward Developments Ltd. and in any event I resigned as a director on March 31, 1972, and at that time divested myself of all interest in Goward, Mr. Stewart said.

Saanich Probes '73 Spending

A careful look into the future will be taken March 20 by members of Saanich council before commitments are made for 1973 municipal spending.

The largest Greater Victoria community, which last year had an $18 million budget and likely will deal with a $1 million increase during the next five weeks, has to examine its capital spending requirements to meet population pressures.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said today the March 20 meeting will be informal and closed to press and public while spending priorities are discussed.

He would make no formal presentation himself, Curtis said. Instead, the senior staff and department heads led by municipal administrator W. M. Tremayne would be placing proposals and alternatives before aldermen who would then respond with their views of the need for such things as roadwork compared with additional recreational facilities.

Although the 1973 budget is of first concern, any capital spending decisions must be taken with a view to future years because of the continuing nature of most projects.

Council is divided in thought about some undertakings, for example, a proposed second ice surface in the community before much-needed drainage systems are installed in parts of Saanich subject to winter flooding.

Between these two extremes lie many proposed road reconstruction and new sidewalk projects and the creation and development of parks and green space.

Curtis said whatever is discussed would not be made binding and may require a further informal meeting. In any case, proposals for future courses of action will be presented to a formal meeting of council for ratification.

Before budget-trimming sessions are finished council's public works committee will make a bus tour of the northern sector of Saanich, on March 27.

This will be the second half of the committee's annual inspection of trouble spots or areas requiring early attention for heavy maintenance or improvement.

Picketing Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP) — Non-union waitresses fired at Denny's Restaurant here last month extended their picketing Tuesday to a new company outlet under construction in suburban Coquitlam.

The pickets held up construction for about an hour as the women tried to put pressure on the company to solve their labor problems.

The women struck Denny's on West Broadway in a dispute chiefly over working conditions.

likely have to be in the 25-35 per cent range to be effective, he said.

For example, McRae said, if beer was made less expensive, some of the public's interest might be turned away from hard liquor.

Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi produced figures which showed that retail sales in alcoholic products will be around $250 million in B.C. this year. He pointed out that there is only about $500,000 spent per year on treatment, rehabilitation and education of alcoholic problems.

McRae said that although most advertising appears aimed at differentiating between one specific brand and another, there has been a tendency by the liquor industry to extend their advertising targets to other areas.

Middle - aged women have been one such target, he said. Activities which were not formally associated with consumption of alcohol are now being exposed in connection with the companies' products, and in skiing, boating, mountain climbing and hunting advertisements, he said.

McRae also recommended to the committee that if a total ban on liquor advertising — along with tobacco advertising — cannot be enforced at the provincial level, the federal government "should be encouraged to invoke a national ban."

He also said advertising of alcohol and tobacco should be considered along with all other types of advertising — and the social costs and benefits of advertising generally should be examined.

Oak Bay Eyes Rezoning Fees

Oak Bay council will consider a recommendation of its A committee meeting Monday night to ask for changes in the Municipal Act to allow fees to be levied for rezoning, subdivisions and development areas.

At its meeting today the committee agreed that "strong representation" should be made to the deputy minister of municipal affairs to have the act amended during the current session of the legislature.

Ald. Brian Smith said fees should be levied for applications for rezoning, subdivisions or land-use contracts because of the amount of staff time spent on such matters.

The committee also agreed to ask council to reconsider zoning down the Newport block area.

The block was the centre of controversy in 1971 when developer John Mace proposed to build twin nine-storey apartments, containing 200 suites, with the ground floor as retail on Newport on the block bounded by Windsor, Currie, Goodwin and Newport.

The project was turned down after a stormy public hearing.

At today's meeting the committee voiced approval of keeping a low profile for the Newport side of the block.

Smith said new zoning should be considered that would relate the amount of underground parking required to the square footage of retail units.

Municipal engineer planner Geoffrey White said that because the retail outlets are small on the block some reduction in underground parking requirements would be in order.

rial, restriet them to 30 feet in recommend to council that the area starting from Florence on the north side, going along Cadboro Bay to Bowker (with the exception of the Magnet Hardware) and, on the other side from just pass Cranmore up to the Oak Bay Manor be rezoned Zone B.

If the zoning is approved it will require apartments to be built of non-combustible material, restrict themto 30 feet in height and require 35 feet side setbacks.

In other business the committee:

—Approved plans for the addition of a vestry, lobby and office to St. Philip's Church on the understanding that additional parking be deleted in order to avoid blacktopping more grass area and, instead, the existing parking space by blacktopped.

—Appointed Ald. Norman Pimlott to represent council at planning meetings for the Oak Bay Tea Party, to be held June 2 and 3.

munistic doctrines of this government."

Retorted Health Minister Dennis Cocke: "That's as low as you can get and that's pretty low."

Phillips called for a free vote on the bill. He read a batch of more than 20 telegrams which he said the Socreds received during the evening, all urging a continued effort by that party to fight the bill.

Phillips termed the legislation "mass punishment for every landowner in British Columbia."

PROTECTION 'GUISE'

He said the real principle of the bill is "complete takeover of private land through the guise of protection of farmland." Attempts to amend the bill would be "like putting a raw egg back together again."

Phillips suggested that a government committee should travel to countries where "centralized land control" is in effect, to witness the effect on food production and costs.

The landowners will become "serfs" who will "line up outside this legislature in a very few years to say the same things the Indians are saying today: without land, we have no soul, no life, no identity and no purpose." The Victoria Real Estate Board said in its brief that it is "not satisfied that it is necessary to enact legislation which is tantamount to the thin edge of the wedge of nationalization of the land" in order to protect farm and rural land.

The board said the powers given to the land commission should be ordinary expropriation powers such as those already used by governments, because this method would result in a fair financial compensation to landowners affected by the commission's land acquisition.

The board's brief says it is "abundantly clear" that the bill will alienate the powers of local governments to carry out their own planning.

Provisions in the bill allow the proposed land commission to have "jurisdiction over any parcel of real estate in British Columbia regardless of its size."

The board also suggested that an advisory board of "knowledgeable citizens" should be formed to make non-binding recommendations to the commission.

Board chairman Charman told a press conerence that it is "a lot of rubbish" to think that the act will really do anything to preserve the family farm because the real problems faced by the farmer are the economics of food production, not the disappearance of farmland.

The only economically viable part of farming, board members agreed, comes when the farmer sells his land for a profit.

DELAY WANTED

The board wants a delay on passage of the bill until the fall, to give time for more public discussion.

The chamber of commerce brief also calls for a look at the economics of farming before implementation of the bill.

The brief says the act should be administered at the local level by municipalities and regional governments, with "some overriding authority" kept for the commission.

The procedures for land acquisition and compensation should be built into the bill, rather than into regulations written by the commission. Appeal hearings should be held prior to the commission's designation of land to farm or other uses under the act.

Because all landowners are left in a "state of complete uncertainty," the sections on non-agricultural land should be withdrawn from the bill and studied by a legislative committee.

SHORTAGE SEEN

The bill, if passed in its present form, will "create a shortage of land for housing and thereby inflate the prices of existing developed housing land," the chamber's brief says. The government's freeze on sale of farmland, ordered last December, has already produced this problem.

Following Phillips' speech on the bill in the legislature, Bob McClelland (SC — Langley) is prepared to talk for another five hours. The aim is to stretch the debate to Thursday, to coincide with the farmers' demonstration.

We call our exciting New Paint Latex Velvet-Lustre Enamel. Here's why:

VELVET because it's a soft touch to touch-up. Leaves barely a trace. If you skip a place, simply cover it later when the original coat dries. Blends perfectly.

ENAMEL because it's tough, hard-surfaced and hard-wearing. Washable, too, but it won't leave those annoying shiny patches! Now you can paint walls and woodwork from the same can.

LATEX because clean-up is a breeze. Simply wash brushes or rollers with water. And one coat is usually all you need to cover most previously painted surfaces.

LUSTRE because it gives you a unique, elegant, lustrous finish. Just a hint of sheen that adds subtle new life to your rooms.

BAPCO because we're proud to add this exciting innovation to our product line. When it says BAPCO you know it's good. And it's at your BAPCO dealer now.

ICEBERGS EXPLODE

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet scientists have warned seamen that some icebergs in Antarctic waters may "blow up," Tass news agency reported Tuesday.

A fragment of an iceberg found recently burst "with a terrific noice" when researchers tried to split it, Tass said.

MacInnis Seeks Birth Right

OTTAWA (CP) — A private member's bill aimed at giving Canadian married women living outside Canada the same right as men and unmarried mothers has been given routine first reading in the Commons.

The Citizenship Act now allows Canadian fathers and unmarried women the right to have their children born outside Canada considered as natural born Canadians.

Canadian married women do not enjoy the same right, Grace McInnis (NDP—Vancouver Kingsway) told the Commons as she introduced her bill to change the situation.

Trustees to Lead Campaign for Funds

Greater Victoria school board has expressed willingness to spearhead the financial drive of James Bay community school.

At a committee meeting Tuesday night, chairman Peter Bunn said the board "has to be in the driver's seat" of the project.

Sketch plans for the extension of James Bay elementary into a community school were presented to the committee by architect Gerald Sager. The additions include a cafeteria, more gym space, library and three activity rooms.

Spokesman for the community group, Lorne De Girolamo said the school needs the leadership of the board to get municipal backing needed to finance the community side of the school.

He said a number of other financial sources may be available but requests for money from higher levels of government would have to at least be channelled through city council.

The project plans are at the point, he said, where financing must be assured to allow both the school board and the community part of the school to be built as a single development.

The committee agreed to recommend a motion for a letter to be sent to Victoria council outlining the facilities planned for the school and recommend joint talks with the school board begin.

Witnesses In Conference

DEAF MUTE'S NOTE TAKEN FOR HOLDUP TRY

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — A bank teller given a note asking for a coin bag mistook two deaf mutes for robbers.

"Please give me a zipper bag," read the note that a teen-ager passed to the teller at the First Federal Savings and Loan Assocation Tuesday.

Thinking it was a holdup, the teller set off an alarm, police said. The teller then stalled the youth identified as Robert J. Pokorny, 19, of Painesville, Ohio.

An FBi spokesman said the teen-ager waited but, after a few moments, scribbed another note: "I will bring 2,500 coins."

It wasn't until hours later that police learned the men were trying to get a bank bag for coins they had collected through sale of cards depicting sign language.

CAR IS TRACED

Witnesses gave police officers and FBI agents a description of the car, which was traced to a residency in nearby Clearwater.

"The FBI followed Bobby to his grandmother's house," said his aunt, Elsie Pokorny of Clearwater.

"They pulled their guns and told them to stop as they got out of the car, but they couldn't hear it," she said. "I'm just thankful they didn't shoot."

Pokorny and Shuping were taken to FBI officers in Tampa 25 miles away and detained for questioning. They were released after a federal attorney said no charges would be filed.

Opinions Changed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some Grade 4 pupils who went to the Manitoba legislature to watch proceedings have reprimanded members for their apparently juvenile behavior.

The 30 students, aged nine and 10, from William Osler school weren't impressed with what they saw from the legislature's public gallery.

In a letter sent to the city's daily newspapers, the youngsters said they had considered MLAs "people of character, self-control and intelect."

They added: "We decided, after our visit, that it was necessary to change our opinion about some of the members. They said they were appalled by the disorder.

An Eye to the Future

Premier Barrett's proposal to bring northern Alaska crude oil and gas southward by rail through United States and Yukon territory to the British Columbia border and then transfer to pipelines, is an interesting one. Unfortunately it is not likely to win American acceptance even it it catches Ottawa's approval.

Two main reasons stand in its way. One is the fact that, as federal Environment Minister Jack Davis says, a minimum of five or six years would elapse before the facilities could be in operation. There would be three years of environmental and engineering studies, a year of consideration by the National Energy Board and the government, and a couple of years for construction of the project. That apparently would rule the plan out, so far as the United States interests are concerned, since they balked at a much lesser delay in the case of the Mackenzie Valley pipeline proposal.

The other fact, as Mr. Barrett himself observes, is that "the (U.S.) administration appears to be committed to the oil-tanker route at this time." The government's reception of the rebuff received from the recent appeal court decision indicated that it would be only a matter of time until the legislation would be altered to permit construction of the pipeline to Valdez to link up with the projected supertanker route to refineries at Cherry Point, in Washington State.

It must be said, however, that Mr. Barrett's plan would apparently avoid many of the environmental hazards which the long pipeline across the northern tundra, and the long tanker haul off the British Columbia coast, would entail. Railway tank cars, although liable to accident, would presumably offer less threat than heated oil pipes to the land through which the line would pass. And the pipeline south from British Columbia's northern border would at least be out of the vulnerable Arctic area. Even several wrecked tank cars could not present the calamity which a damaged supertanker off the coast would create.

Mr. Barrett raised a further point of interest, which indicated a longer-range view of northern development than the "gold-rush" flavor of the Prudhoe find. The railway solution, he said, would provide for a rational development of the north, involve longer jobs for local workers, and integrate more closely with the country and its future development along other lines.

That is a point which will carry little weight with the Americans, impatient to get northern oil in a hurry to meet their current shortage, and naturally less interested in the development of British Columbia and the Yukon than Canadians would be. The fact that the traffic would do a great deal to open up the northern part of the province, creating an important rail-pipeline junction at the little B.C. community of Lower Post near the Alaska-British Columbia border, would likewise be of limited interest to the proponents of the Valdez sea route.

As it stands, Mr. Barrett's proposal might have had a better chance of acceptance in the past, or it might possibly be revived at some time in the future. For today, with the U.S. government opposed and the Canadian government dubious, it must be checked off as no more than a good try.

"... admit it, Harold ... my plants, that have been sung to and openly loved are FAR ahead of yours, brought up with strict discipline and threats ..."

A Matter of Priorities

In India, whose population has grown by 200 million during the quarter century since independence — an increase amounting to about nine times the total current population of Canada — failure of family planning is being blamed on Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and other political figures. Critics complain that they are not furnishing the necessary leadership to overcome the surge of fertility which apparently exceeds the increase in food production.

A rationale unconvincing to conventional western thought is contributing to failure. There is an inclination, explains one observer, to accept the thesis that there is no population problem — only a faulty economic and social system. A better system will provide sufficient well-directed labor from any size of population to take care of its needs, the argument goes, and the success of China in providing for its people's needs for food, clothes, education and housing is cited as supporting evidence.

Mrs. Gandhi is on record to the effect that an improvement in living standards is needed first, before a family-planning program can succeed.

India sees the campaign to limit population as a particular objective advocated by the capitalistic western nations, particularly the United States. An ideological consideration emerges. Asians, say some influential figures in India, can devise their own solutions for a problem which they consider less urgent than do many westerners.

In the meantime, the Associated Press reports that India will buy two million tons of food grains to meet shortages attributed to drought in many parts of the subcontinent. This will assist in providing subsistence for the increasing number of mouths. But it will be difficult for Westerners to understand how such supplements, or even greater domestic production, will improve living standards to a point where India will feel ready to attack the population problem, seen by most westerners as the cause of the basic difficulties.

A Switch to New Assignments

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger is now quietly reorganizing his White House staff and, on instructions from the president, is preparing for an intensive period of negotiations on United States relations with Western Europe, Japan and the Middle East.

His assignments from the president in the last couple of years have carried him into spectacular journeys to Peking, Moscow, Paris, Saigon and Hanoi, and transformed him from a Harvard professor into a world figure. But the days of spectaculars are over for the time being, and the days of careful and patient thought about the monetary crisis, the energy crisis, and the Middle Eastern crisis are now at the top of Washington's foreign affairs agenda.

Careful Preparation

Kissinger is now preparing for these European and Middle Eastern talks — which are connected, because the Arab-Israeli conflict and the energy crisis affect Europe as well as the United States — as carefully as he prepared his assignments to Peking and Moscow.

He has more things to deal with now, so he has to delegate more authority. He will have a new assistant on international economic affairs, who will be appointed in the next few weeks. Helmut Sonnenfeldt will be his principal deputy for European and Soviet affairs, unless he is transferred to Treasury. Richard T. Kennedy, a retired army colonel, will be his assistant on all National Security Council Affairs, and his deputy on all questions will be Brig. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who has replaced Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, now Vice-Chief of Staff of the Army.

Kissinger, of course, is merely a servant of the president, and has never pretended that he was anything else, but his job is now changing. He has established a close personal relationship with Chou En-lai in Peking and Le Duc Tho in Hanoi, and will probably have to keep in touch with both of them.

For example, the North Vietnamese have been putting arms into South Vietnam in violation of agreements Kissinger made with Le Duc Tho, and Kissinger will probably have to deal personally with this violation.

Also, somebody in the Nixon Administration has to supervise the agreements to exchange diplomatic missions between Peking and Washington, and nobody knows more about this than Kissinger. The Chinese left it to Kissinger to draft the communique about their last meeting in Peking and changed only three words. It was not Kissinger, but the Chinese who suggested that China have an official mission in Washington, much to Kissinger's surprise.

HENRY KISSINGER
... campus to world

Meanwhile, Kissinger has been accepted in Hanoi as the first high official from the West to visit the North Vietnamese capital, so he will have to maintain these contacts with Asia, while turning his mind to the president's new concerns in Europe, Japan, and the Middle East.

All Kissinger needs in this situation is for somebody to invent the 48-hour day. He is being told by his friends that he should quit while he is ahead, that he has nowhere to go now except down. He is being hounded by the newspapers, the magazines, and the book publishers to write books for millions, but he is staying on, and reorganizing his staff and turning to the problems of the future.

Meanwhile, he is going off for a couple of weeks to rest and put his mind to the new tasks the president has given him on Europe and the Middle East.

It will be interesting to see what he does with this new assignment. In Asia, he argued for compromise, for an end to ideology, for withdrawal from Vietnam, for accommodation with China, the Soviet Union and Japan, and for a new order and balance of power in the world.

In Europe, there are new problems of money, trade, technology and military security.

In the Middle East, there is a fundamental question: Should the United States take the lead in pressing for a compromise between Israel and the Arab states, and if it does, should Washington guarantee the security of Israel, and put American soldiers on its borders?

Coming Questions

These are the coming questions in Washington — what is U.S. policy about the dollar, about our troops in Europe, about our support of Israel and our need for oil from the Arab states, about how long we will keep over a quarter of a million men West of the Elbe, about American trade, balance of payments, deficits, unemployment, wages, prices, the balance of power abroad and the balance between the rich and the poor at home.

For the last couple of years, Kissinger has merely been asked to concentrate on China and the Soviet Union, and he has done it very well, but now he is being asked to deal with the more complicated problem of the United States.

His record with Chou En-lai in Peking and Le Duc Tho in Paris and Hanoi is pretty good, but now he has to think about Heath, Pompidou and Brandt in Europe, and Wilbur Mills and others in the Congress, and that may not be so easy, even for Kissinger.

The Weather Calls the Tune

REGINA; It is becoming increasingly clear with each passing day that the Liberals' loss of the last election on the prairies can be blamed on their astrologers who chose the October election date. If they had chosen late February or early March the results could have been much different.

This has nothing to do with any neglect of the west by the Grits, and even less to do with Liberal policies. It had everything to do with the weather.

This has been the best winter the west has enjoyed within the memory of living man. From Winnipeg to the Rockies the natives rub their eyes in disbelief when they look at their thermometers and wonder how long this can last. It has been so good for so long in Saskatchewan that one knowledgeable citizen was worrying last week for fear it was too good.

Moisture Needed

"Don't let this snow lying around Regina fool you," he said. "The country is almost bare and we need all the moisture we can get to get the crop off to a good start."

We drove from Regina to Yorkton and there was snow on the stubble and in the ditches. But the ditch snow was covered with a thick coating of black soil that had been blowing off the summerfallow. Many younger farmers were repeating the mistakes of their grandfathers, overcultivating their summerfallow to a point where it was too fine to hold the snow and blew into the clouds that made the dust bowl.

Nobody within a day's march, however, was really worrying much about what comes next. The mood of the country is one of joyous acceptance of whatever small blessings the gods of the weather are conveying.

Not that the people of Regina and Winnipeg have not made their peace with their impossibly frightful climate. If they allowed it to intimidate them into staying indoors both towns would put up the shutters in November and leave them up until April.

Winnipeggers in particular take perverse pleasure in demonstrating their survival quotient. They will turn up in droves for the theatre, the ballet, the symphony and the wrestling matches in 40 below weather. Nothing swells Winnipeggers with pride like a news report that its wind-chill factor was equal to 75 below at the corner of Portage and Main.

The main pre-occupation of prairie dwellers from December to Easter is curling, a barbaric sport imported from Scotland to accentuate winter's torments. To participate ordinarily sensible people will struggle through blizzards to ice cold arenas to push great hunks of granite up and down narrow sheets of ice.

No prairie organization with a scintilla of pride can get through a winter without a curling tournament. Anyone who doesn't get into at least a dozen bonspiels is regarded as a spoil-sport non-participant. In Yorkton, one exhausted citizen told this reporter that he was trying to curl in three bonspiels simultaneously. That's akin to playing in the Grey Cup and the Stanley Cup over the same weekend.

CALGARY

The weather this winter has made it a curler's heaven. They can flit from town to town without worrying about blizzards and cars frozen up. Their wives can hang out their washing in comfort and retrieve it from the lines unfrozen. The girls trip around in mini-skirts. Fuel bills are manageable.

In such weather, nobody can work up a dudgeon or hold a grudge. But it was different last fall. The way the winter started last October it looks like the longest and worst winter on record. Calgary had a couple of feet of snow before Christmas. The crowds froze solid at football games. No wonder Mr. Trudeau got his lumps. Anybody who spoke out of turn about anything was inviting a fat lip.

The way the weather has transformed the public mood can be illustrated by a single occurrence in Calgary. Calgarians have developed a highly irascible streak in anything affecting local government. Last week a mountain sleet storm brought down the power lines that serve the city just when everybody was getting up for work.

The confusion was horrendous. Not only did the traffic lights all go out, all the radio stations went off the air so nobody could find out anything about what was going on. It was, in short, the kind of an emergency in which the Emergency Measures Organization could be expected to swing into action. And where was E.M.O.? Nowhere to be found.

No Stand-by

As it turns out, E.M.O. now consists of two retired army types and a secretary who operate in a bunker under a golf course. They had relied on the C.B.C. to keep them in touch and never checked to see if the C.B.C. had stand-by power to switch on if regular power went off. It didn't.

The E.M.O. was as immobilized as the stenographers caught in the high rise apartments with pitch-black stairways.

But did Calgarians blow their stacks at the E.M.O.? Nary a blow, they treated it as a great joke. Nor did tempers flare in the traffic jams that developed. Instead motorists underwent a miraculous transformation. They stopped blowing horns, jumping guns, playing chicken at intersections. A smile was everybody's umbrella. And traffic moved more smoothly, and more safely that morning than it does when the traffic lights are working.

If such experiences as these don't send westerners into orbit, nothing can; not even neglectful, abrasive or wrong-headed politicians. So what the politicians need is not Gallup polls as guides for selecting election dates. They need long-range weather forecasters.

Editorial Correspondence

Read It

I had to make a visit to the University of Victoria today and found two young men set up in the foyer with petitions and printed material, asking all who passed to support the Conservative Party's demand that Bill 42, the Land Commission Act, be withdrawn. Both admitted that they had not read the act, nor did they have a copy for anyone to read if they wished.

Here is another example of Mr. Warren's "leadership," for he would have party followers and the general public "throw out the baby with the bath water."

It would seem that the act is generally popular, but that there are sections in it that will require very careful scrutiny to bring about amendments that will assure the most scrupulous protection for all who may be affected.

Obviously, from statements made to date by the Social Credit and Conservative members in the Legislature, we cannot expect the kind of thoughtful criticism that will be needed.

David Anderson and his Liberal colleagues are capable of undertaking a well-considered analysis of all implications of the act and presenting meaningful amendments. They do, however, need the assistance of the well-considered opinions of all who will take the time to study the subject and write to them. — K. M. Pattison, 1572 Brodick Crescent.

Endangered Species

The subject matter in the articles in the paper recently about the smuggling of illegal animal skins into the United States, via Canada and Switzerland, angers me.

The fact that Canada has no law to prohibit the trafficking of endangered or illegal animal skins is an absolute disgrace, and makes me, a Canadian, feel ashamed. I have contacted our local SPCA, the Provincial Government Wild Life Department, and written to the Canadian Consumers Association in Ottawa. All are deeply concerned, and the Consumers Association suggests that anyone feeling as strongly as I do about the matter, write to the Minister of Finance, Place Bell Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0G5. — (Mrs.) Michael A. Bartkow, 2772 Vantilburg Crescent.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of March 14, 1913:

Craigdarroch, the magnificent stone residence built by the late Robert Dunsmuir, in 1888 and 1889, is again about to be sold. Once more the sum is to be but a "fraction" of the actual value of the estate. The Loyal Order of Moose, which has been conducting an active membership campaign in the city for the past five weeks, is to be the purchaser. Leonard Carver, director of the order and former clerk of the United States Senate, says, "I am expecting a favorable answer from our grand lodge, as the price is not excessive. The building is admirably suited to our purposes. The huge drawing room will make a splendid lodge room. There is another large room across from it suitable for a reading room and library, while the dining room is quite big enough for our social dinners."

Hartwell: He Took The Only Way Out

By JOHN SLINGER
The Globe and Mail

Marten Hartwell stood on the snow-bleak runway at Cambridge Bay on the southern shore of Victoria Island in the Northwest Territories with two choices: to be damned if he took his aircraft on the emergency medical evacuation flight for which he was not qualified or to be damned if he did not.

What bothers me is that he is being damned in the minds of many for living. And for how he lived.

Had he been qualified, the 46-year-old former Luftwaffe flier might not have made the errors that ultimately killed his three passengers. Had he refused the flight, the Eskimo woman being sent to hospital in Yellowknife might literally have exploded.

Marten Hartwell is a quiet, withdrawn man with a past he has tried to shed and a newcomer to the tight little territorial community. Had he refused and the woman died, the whole social displeasure of that community would have descended upon him for not taking the kind of seat-of-the-pants risk that has become a foundation of the myth of the North.

Neemee Nulliayok, from the remote settlement of Spence Bay, had one child and had lost the next two to miscarriages. She had been fitted with a special suture at the junction of the cervix and womb — like a string wrapped around the neck of a balloon — which prevented the fetus from aborting spontaneously.

She went into labor four weeks early and the only facilities for removing the suture or Caesarean section were in Stanton Yellowknife Hospital, 535 miles across the barren lands.

The pilot took off and flew southwest into the Arctic night. He got lost and it was 32 days before the wreckage of the twin-engined Beechcraft and Hartwell, the crippled survivor, were discovered. And that by purest chance.

Lying near his makeshift shelter was the body of David Kootook, 14, who died of starvation after 23 days — starvation he gave himself up to after refusing to eat flesh from the bodies of the other two passengers.

It was David who had been the pilot's arms and legs, who had built the rough shelter and collected firewood — who had never seen a tree before in his life and who was terrified of the spruce forest.

Not far away was the body of his pregnant aunt and Judith Hill, a 27-year-old Northern Health Services nurse.

Miss Hill emigrated in 1969 from England. Most of the federally employed nurses in the remote northern settlements are British. One department of health official explained that the British train the women as midwives, which is uncommon in Canada, and the women themselves seem to have a special sort of determination and independence their Canadian counterparts lack.

According to statements made by Hartwell, the only way he could survive the days after David's death was by eating flesh — in this case, Miss Hill's body.

It was done purposively. Hartwell had come to realize his flight had been off course, that there was virtually no chance of his being found and that his only hope was to survive long enough and with enough strength so that when his broken ankles healed he would be able to walk through the waist-deep snow to catch fish from a lake he could see 12 miles away.

The question in my mind is this: had Marten Hartwell survived but not eaten human flesh, would the inquest story have been front-page news across this country and through most of Britain?

The day before the inquest opened, a British Sunday paper, The People, asked in a front-page headline, Did Pilot Eat Nurse in Arctic?

Sure, there were other arguments for being there. The search and rescue was one of the most dramatic in Canadian history. And, at a minimum $1.5 million, one of the most expensive.

It was called off after 19 days and reopened only after Hartwell's girl friend, Susan Haley of Edmonton, and her father, K. David C. Haley, head of the department of mathematics at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S., brought public sentiment to bear on the minister of national defence. Search aircraft spent 1,478.9 hours in the air.

MARTEN HARTWELL . . . damned for living

Despite this, Hartwell was found when an aircraft not at all connected with the search happened to pick up a signal from the wreck's emergency radio transmitter.

Even at that, the aircraft was so badly smashed and covered with snow and on such difficult terrain that when a helicopter flew in low to pick up the survivors, the crew flew right overhead without spotting the site and had to be redirected by paramedics on the ground.

Capt. Keith Gatherole, the 26-year-old Canadian Forces pilot who was searchmaster, believes that had Hartwell been anywhere near — say 90 to 100 miles on either side — the course filed on his flight plan, the wreck would have been found before the search was initially cancelled. Hartwell was 180 miles west of his planned course.

There was the question of emergency health services — are northern communications good enough to determine correctly whether an emergency exists and are the facilities good enough to cope with one that crops up?

Or northern health care — should an Eskimo woman be treated with a sophisticated gynecological technique that might well be suitable standard practise within easy reach of a hospital but prompts an emergency delivery when the women lives 800 miles away?

Surely, too, it is of some value for anyone who lives within reach of a GO Train stop to realize that much of this country is lying in wait for the unwary, that it is ready to devour and destroy a man for the slightest error in judgement.

After a couple of days back in balmy Vancouver, it is striking that the questions people ask me (apart from the one about what there is to do at night in Yellowknife) concern only one thing. For those there is only Marten Hartwell's own answer: "How can someone who is in good health and well fed understand the madness of starvation?"

After watching Marten Hartwell, grey and frightened under the television lights, sit up in bed in the Yellowknife hospital two days after he was found in December, and after sitting in at the inquest for a week and after thinking about eating human flesh more than I would ever wish to think about it, my inclination is to agree with Hartwell that he had no way out and to be rude to anyone who condemns him at all for that.

Perhaps if northern health care and pilot training and navigational systems take a mighty leap forward, it will be a fitting tribute to the three who died.

Perhaps if the people of this country — and especially the people like myself who report its news — had a bit more knowledge and respect for its unforgiving might, then we would realize that what Hartwell did when he took off was nothing more than try to save a life when maybe he shouldn't have.

It will probably not help Marten Hartwell sleep at night.

Autonomy For Labor

THE TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

It's finally becoming clear to Canadian labor leaders that their long-term interests are best served by getting more autonomy over their own affairs.

An encouraging sign of this feeling was the warning last week by Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the big United Auto Workers Union, that Canadian unionists are becoming increasingly resentful of being treated as "branch-plant" operations by remote and insensitive U.S. headquarters. McDermott intends to present union leaders in Detroit with a list of proposals aimed at giving Canadian auto workers more autonomy.

It's important that the growing nationalist sentiment in Canadian labor's ranks be harnessed and guided by responsible, experienced men within the movement — not inflamed by flag-waving splinter groups that threaten to further fragment and weaken Canadian unionism.

For while there's no doubt that organized labor in Canada has benefitted in the past from its association with U.S. unions and their resources, there's also no doubt that there are inevitable conflicts.

Right now, for example, American labor is one of the biggest supporters of moves toward protectionist trade measures in the U.S. The aim is to create more jobs for Americans, and the corollary is higher unemployment in Canada.

As a guide to greater — and eventually complete — Canadian union autonomy, labor leaders should examine a policy paper of the Committee for an Independent Canada, designed to Canadianize the union movement in two stages.

The first stage involves establishing minimum standards of self-government for all Canadian branches of American unions. National and regional councils, made up of Canadians and elected by Canadians, would take sole responsibility in Canada for bargaining goals, legal and social objectives, and legislative lobbying.

In the second stage — the giant step towards independence — Canada's 175 national and international unions would be rationalized into 35 units, each strong enough financially and numerically to bargain effectively with any employer.

It's just as important to have union decisions, union activities and union influence working in the interests of Canadians, as it is to have "good corporate citizens."

The 'Comity of Nations' Badly in Need of Repair

By JAMES EAYRS

"The comity of nations" was once almost a cliche in the vocabulary of state-craft.

No percration seewed complete without it. Today it's fallen out of use — so much so that, to refresh my sense of what it means, I had to take down from its shelf some dusty case-book on international law I'd annotated a quarter century ago.

"Comity may be defined" — so the U.S. Court of Appeals of New York proclaimed in 1923 — "as that reciprocal courtesy which one member of the family of nations owes to the other. It presupposes friendship. It assumes the prevalence of equity and justice . . . . We do justice that justice may be done in return".

"What is termed the comity of nations" — this definition from a ruling of a Connecticut court at the turn of the century — "is the formal expression and ultimate result of that mutual respect accorded throughout the civilized world by the representatives of each sovereign power to those of every other . . . Its source is a sentiment of reciprocal regard, founded on identity of position and similarity of institution".

The personification of comity among nations is the diplomat, particularly the diplomat serving his country in some foreign land. By comity is his immunity assured. Angry moeba may assail his intestines, a hostile virus foul his bloodstream, but the natives must leave him alone. His person, his entourage, his effects, his residence, all are by grace of comity inviolable. "Inviolability", the authors of Diplomatic Ceremonial and Protocol remind us, "begins the day when the head of mission enters the territory of the country to which he is sent. It lasts during the time of his mission or until he has left the territory of the state to which he is accredited, even if he has been replaced. Inviolability continues even when diplomatic relations have been ruptured and even if a state of war exists".

If the diplomat personifies comity, the terrorist may be said to personify a kind of anti-comity. Diplomat and terrorist operate at the far ends of the spectrum of world politics, at the antipodes of world order. The diplomat works to create global stability, the terrorist to destroy it. His mission is to regenerate the human condition by smashing those institutions he believes to be repressive and perverting.

For the performance of that mission nothing can be inviolable — and nothing is. Sought out for harassment and intimidation, for maiming and for murder, are just those groups and individuals society holds ought to be immune. The politician at his podium. The athlete in his stadium. Holiday-makers in their chartered jet. Shoppers in a great department store. Diplomats on their appointed rounds.

Diplomats above all, for these are the prime and natural targets of the terrorist attack. "The idea of diplomatic kidnapping is ingenious in its simplicity and power", writes Brigadier W. D. Mangham in a highly original analysis published last year by the Royal College of Defence Studies. "Social evolution has been a long and protracted struggle for law and order; a careful composition of a framework of rules and practices within which individual freedom can be exercised; the establishment of international codes of conduct and diplomatic practice. By attacking the diplomat, the official historically endowed with immunity in this complex system, the kidnapper seeks at one stroke to sweep aside the rules and to dictate to governments shackled by their own acceptance of international regulations".

For all its simplicity and power, the idea of diplomatic kidnapping was long in moving from theory to practice. Politicians were targets for terrorist assassins in the 19th century, bombs in public places have been going off for years, the first aerial skyjack dates from the early 1930s. But it was not until U.S. ambassador John Gordon Mein was killed by the Fuerzas Armados Rebeldes in Guatemala in August 1968 that diplomatic kidnapping became a major weapon in the arsonal of terrorism.

Since then the ransoming of diplomats has become as commonplace as airliners commandeered to Cuba, as petrol bombs in Derry. The exchange of the American ambassador Charles Burke Elbrick for 15 political prisoners in Brazil resulted in a rash of diplomatic kidnappings during 1970, of which J. R. Cross was but one victim of 17. The practice continued unabated throughout the next two years, culminating on December 28, 1972, in the seizure of the Israeli embassy in Thailand by four Arab guerrillas.

In the struggle between the comity of nations and the anti-comity of terrorists, anti-comity seemed to have the upper hand. A draft convention for "the prevention and punishment of certain acts of international terrorism", painstakingly prepared and strongly supported by the United States and Canada, among other Western governments, was roundly rebuffed at the United Nations even as the Black Septemberists set out for Bangkok.

What gained for those denounced in the West as blood-stained murderers and cowardly ones at that the esteem of the Third World? Its belief that their cause is just, or often so; that their means are moderate, or often so; that their motives are noble, or often so.

"In Brazil the only way to get people out of jail; judiciary linked to the repressive government — when we go before judges we know we will get 20 years. No defence. So the only way is to kidnap an important personage . . . A diplomat who can live with a dictatorship can live with us for 3 days! We see nothing unfair in it". Nor did the 76 U.N. delegations which voted for studying the causes of terrorism rather than for measures to prevent it.

Not in Third World testimonials only does a certain sympathy sneak in. Of the Uruguyan Tupamaros Geoffrey Jackson wrote when still their captive: "It happens that I'm dealing with intelligent people who understand my situation and who try as much as they can to see that I don't have a hard time . . . They are hard working, very serious, have great dynamism, are completely dedicated . . . I see them as sincere idealists".

Sincere idealism is essential to the image of the terrorist-as-freedom fighters, accounts for terrorism's hold on world public opinion. The eight Black Septemberist terrorists who burst into a reception ot the Saudi Arabian embassy in Khartoum last week to seize five diplomats as hostages, of whom they murdered three, did much to weaken that hold.

The extravagance of the terrorists' demands — they had asked for the release of Sirhan Sirhan, Robert Kennedy's assassin, of the Baader Meinhof terrorists now in prison in West Germany, of guerrillas in Jordan, as well as for the release of all Fatah members in Jordanian custody — combined with the unseemly haste with which they performed their "executions" upon Cleo Noel and George C. Moore, their American captives, and upon Guy Eid, their Belgian captive, have stripped their cause of glamor and mystique.

It is not enough for sincere idealism to be felt, it must be seen to be felt. In that crucial component of their equipment the murderers of Khartoum even more than the murderers of Munich were almost entirely deficient. Their mission failed. It brought discredit upon their movement.

"It is not a daring act to enter a country which opens its doors for you", President Nimeiry of the Sudan declared after the tragedy. "Nor is it heroism to hold a number of unarmed men when you are armed to the teeth in order to bargain with their lives for impossible demands and then to slay them like goats . . ."

It remains now for other Arab governments to repeat that sentiment, if not that statement. When and if they do and not until they do, comity may stage a comeback.

Say It and It's Done?

RUSSELL BAKER

The urban crisis is over.

Crime was on the run, he said. He said the air was becoming breathable again. He said businessmen were again putting money into downtown areas. Slum dwelling was on the decline, he said.

"The hour of crisis," he announced, "has passed. The ship of state is back on an even keel, and we can put behind us the fear of capsizing."

The announcement may or may not encourage city people to take a walk around the block after sundown tonight and leave their guns at home, but, as the sports writers say, you have to like the president's style in this one.

There he was, one minute, up against just about the nastiest, ugliest, most intractable problem in the world today; next minute, he had it licked.

The technique he used to settle it is known in politics, and far beyond for that matter, as "solution by announcement." New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller made famous use of it in 1969 to help solve the problems of Long Island commuters.

In August of that year, commuters will recall, the Governor announced that he had accepted responsibility for making the Long Island Rail Road, within the next two months, "the finest" commuter line in the country.

Two months later, speaking to 250 Long Island businessmen, the governor said, "On this day we have become officially the finest commuter railroad in the country."

Solution by announcement. It is not as absurd as it may seem at first, for as Long Island commuters can testify, the Long Island Rail Road is still running, occasionally.

The most famous political example of solution by announcement in recent times was Sen. George Aiken's proposal for ending the Vietnam war; to wit, that the United States announce that it had won the war, and come home.

This, in fact, is the solution Messers. Nixon and Kissinger finally adopted after four years of testing more muscular solutions and finding them unworkable, and good for them, we say, and good, too, for the principle of solution by announcement.

Unfortunately, solution by announcement is not always so effective as it was with the Long Island Rail Road and the Vietnam war. It fails repeatedly, for example, when applied to problems of automobile repair.

Who among us has not had the experience of hearing that hearty voice on the telephone announcing that the front-end problem, the carburetor problem, the ignition problem or the suspension problem has been solved and that we should come immediately with bags of good bank money to recover our cars — only to find — ??????

Yes. Too often, although the solution has been announced and paid for, the car remains unpersuaded, balky. The announcement that its tappets have been gorged with an expensive set of the new grunge-jawed flange scuppers and the firm gasket replaced at the cost of a weekend in Tahiti moves the car not at all. It still wants to have a mechanic repair it.

It is possible that the uglinëss of city life will also fail to respond to President Nixon's announcement that it is being eliminated. Cities, after all, have a great deal in common with cars. More and more, in fact, they often seem to be turning into cars. There are deep mysteries here, impenetrable to the present shallow state of human understanding. Somehow, we know not how, things communicate.

When one skyscraper burns, the word somehow passes among other skyscrapers in other cities, where some, hearing of a skyscraper burning for the first time, decided that they, too will try it. Is it far too fanciful, then, to suppose that cities may talk to cars? Asking: "What should one do when his problems have been subjected to solution by announcement?"

We know what answers the cars would give, for they have given it often to their owners: "I don't move until an honest mechanic does the job right."

But maybe the cities prefer talking to railroads, like the Long Island — "I promptly changed my ways and became America's finest as soon as Rocky announced I was" — in which case we can all hail President Nixon loudly and urge him to announce immediately the end of the inflation.

Ministers Get View Royal Sewer Problem

Provincial government ministers are going to consult on the subject of sewers for View Royal and it's not likely residents with faulty septic tanks will be prosecuted in the meantime.

It's generally agreed sewers are necessary in View Royal, Esquimalt Ald. Ken Hill, chairman of the metro health board, told members Tuesday. Health Minister Dennis Cocke has agreed to discuss the issue with Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer.

Periodic dye testing by health board staff has shown about half the septic tank systems are not functioning properly with most properties "too small to absorb the effluent generated, board members were told.

Shallow soil and rock formations compound the absorption problems.

SEWERS BEST

But Hill said he does not think prosecuting offenders is the proper course at this time when the best solution is a sewer system.

He noted that two votes maong residents related to building a sewer system have both produced "no" votes. Cost estimates of such a system were $1 million in 1968, $1.2 million in 1970 and are now $1.5 million, he said.

In other business, board members voted to amend a resolution to the provincial government calling for a prohibition on the sale of pet turtles because many carry salmonella infection. The infected turtles generally come from the southern U.S. and from Mexico, said Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior public health officer.

When the board learned there is a local breeder of pet turtles and heard Whitbread say they would probably be quite satisfactory for sale, the resolution was amended to call for a ban on importing them.

Shifting the operation of the health board to the jurisdiction of the Capital regional board, a subject which has been debated for about two years, is to generate more meetings still.

The health board intends considering a report on the subject at a closed meeting March 27 and there will be a meeting with Cocke April 2.

Also under consideration is the leasing of new quarters for the board's health centre in the Colwood-Langford area although the location was not identified.

A prolonged discussion on the board's budget led to a request that comparable figures for the previous year be prepared before consideration continues.

Swim Pool Freeze Suggested

A freeze on construction of new private swimming pools in Saanich was asked Tuesday pending introduction of safety and construction regulations.

The request was made by Georgina L. Watchorn, 1203 Duke, in a letter to Saanich council public works committee, which instructed municipal engineer Bob Daye to draw up a preliminary report.

She said since there are no such rules governing construction standards and ensuring public safety, no new pools should be constructed until bylaws are drawn up.

Daye said it is correct there are "essentially no regulations at present" governing the building and fencing of pools.

Some bylaws in the east require all-concrete construction, fencing and locking to make them inaccessible, and full insurance coverage, he said.

Land Act 'Legalese' Upsetting People

The proposed B.C. Land Commission Act is going to have to be rewritten to get rid of some of the "legalese" that is upsetting people, MLA Rosemary Brown said Tuesday.

"Really a lot of the complaints about the act have to do with the language it's written in," the New Democratic Party member for Vancouver-Burrard told 35 University of Victoria students at a meeting in the Commons Block.

Many people aren't used to the language that legislation is written in, said Brown, so they sometimes misunderstand it.

"What we're going to have to do is rewrite sections of the act," she said.

Purpose of the act is simply to zone farm land, she said, not government expropriation of farm land.

The 42-year-old social worker fielded questions from the students for an hour, in both her roles of government backbencher and women's rights advocate.

She said she was still working towards the creation of a ministry of women's rights, althought the idea has been turned down by Premier Dave Barrett.

"I think women have to become a non-renewable resource . . . because that's his (Barrett's) top priority now," said Brown.

Women's rights workers were naive to think they could get a women's right department simply by asking for it, she said. The only way they'll get one is by putting the government in the position that "it it would be unpolitical not to give it," she said.

Part of the problem is that the government feels that women's liberation is the work of a small group of actiyists, not women as a whole, Brown added. The challenge to women's groups is to get grassroots support for the idea, she said.

A ministry of women's rights would not be a permanent structure, said Brown. As soon as women's position in society was strong enough that they didn't need it, it would "self-destruct," she said.

Jubilee Hospital Meeting Slated

The annual meeting of the public corporation which operates Royal Jubilee Hospital will be held next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the lounge of the nurses' residence.

There are no elections to the board this year. The lone replacement is that of Saanich representative, from Ald. Les Passmore to Ald. Frank Waring.

GARBAGE COLLECTORS TOO NOISY

Whether Saanich's new noise abatement bylaw applies to garbage collectors doing their early morning duty will be up to council to determine.

Council's public works commiteee passed the buck Tuesday after being challenged by the legal firm of Robert Heath and Co. on behalf of Cypress Disposal Ltd.

Cypress has had complaints of its truck crew picking up trash at 6 a.m. in an commercial zone, which apparently offended nearby residents.

Heath said it would appear desirable to exempt operators between the hours of 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. in commercial-industrial zones, except for Sunday and statutory holidays.

Turkish Army Defied

ANKARA (AP) — The Turkish parliament resumes voting today for a new president after four ballots that rejected the military candidate despite tanks and riot police around the building and scores of generals in the balcony.

Senate President Tekin Ariburun of the Justice party led the four ballots but could not muster the majorities necessary for election. His chief opponent was former general Faruk Gurler, who until last week was chief of the general staff.

Ariburun got 282 votes on the first ballot, 284 on the second, 285 on the third and 276 on the fourth. Gurler had 175, 176, 186 and 200 votes. Ferruh Bozbeyli of the right-wing Democratic party ran third with 45 and 47 votes.

For election on the first two ballots, a two-thirds majority — or 423 of the 634 votes in the two houses—was needed. On later ballots, a simple majority of 318 was necessary, but the anti-military vote was reduced by the boycott of the second largest party, the left-of-centre Republican Peoples party. It said the martial-law ban on election statements amounted to one-sided censorship that allowed only praise of one candidate and no criticism.

ACTION THREATENED

This was a reference to Gurler, whose candidacy was backed by the threat of new military intervention should someone else win.

The army has been filling the presidency of Turkey since a military coup in 1960 ousted President Celal Bayar and Premier Adnan Menderes of the Democratic party.

Pyramid-Selling Outlawed in New B.C. Act

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Legislation which will "virtually outlaw" pyramid-selling in British Columbia was introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

Macdonald told reporters the Fair Sales Practices Act is based on but an improvement of legislation already enacted by Massachusetts, and is "much tougher" in terms of protecting the public thn legislation governing pyramid-selling in the province of Ontario.

In prohibiting a whole range of marketing practices, and laying down a broad definition of what constitutes a pyramid sale, the legislation effectively bars anyone from conducting such an operation in B.C.

Basically, pyramid-selling companies operate on the principle of selling distributorships. The people who buy these must set up their own sales force in order to recoup their investment.

"Selling people, not products," was how Macdonald summed up the definition of that practice in the bill.

Under the bill's provisions, no one is allowed to operate or participate in any marketing scheme in which the financial gains are "primarily dependent upon the recruitment of other participants or in which retail sales are not necessary to realize those financial gains."

It prohibits any scheme in which the participant does not perform a "bona fide and essential supervisory, distributive or selling function" in selling a product or service to the consumer.

Requiring a person to buy "an unreasonable quantity of products or services" is also forbidden.

There are prohibitions, too, on the recruitment methods a company may employ. For instance, former earnings of a participant can't be quoted unless they were earned within B.C. and the earnings of all other participants over a two-year period are also disclosed.

No one is permitted to give any indication that it is easy to set up a sales force, or that "all or substantially all participants will suucceed."

One of the most stringent restrictions is that no distributor may recruit — or allow a participant in his scheme to recruit — any other person until the distributor himself or his agent has sold at the retail level goods or services worth at least 10 times as much as his initial investment.

Under the bill, the cabinet has the power to designate any marketing operation as a pyramid scheme.

Anyone already involved in such a scheme will be allowed to cancel his contract at any time, and in that case the distributor must buy back the goods or services by paying to the agent at least 90 per cent of his original investment.

The inspector appointed under the act will have the power to investigate fully the books, transactions and business of any operation suspected of being a pyramid scheme both fine and jail term — are contrary to the act.

In addition, the attorney-general is empowered to apply for an injunction to prevent the operation of a pyramid scheme.

Fines of $2,000 to $5,000, or one year's imprisonment — or laid down for contraventions of the act.

Macdonald said he hopes the legislation will be proclaimed as soon as possible after the current session of the legislature, "to put an end to this kind of selling in B.C."

Canadian Utilities

Canadian Utilities Ltd., a major natural gas and electricity distributor in Alberta, has reported earnings of $112.32 million for 1972 compared with $100.52 million the previous year.

The company's annual report said net income per common share increased to $1.22 from $1.05.

Net income before provision for dividends on preferred shares was $15 million, an increase of about $2 million.

Sales of natural gas by subsidiary companies, Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd., and Northwestern Utilities Ltd., increased 11 per cent, the report said. Alberta Power Ltd. increased the number of customers for electricity by 3,246 to more than 80,000.

TVS

Negotiations between TVS Industries Ltd. and Trans-World Communications, the closed-circuit division of Columbia Pictures Industries Ltd., have been terminated.

The two organizations were negotiating a joint venture agreement to provide pay television services on Vancouver closed circuit networks.

Bob Carter, executive vice-president of TVS, said the Vancouver firm has developed a pay television system superior to any seen to date and will market it independently.

Both firms are attempting to sell their systems to hotels.

Brenda

Net losses of Brenda Mines Ltd., of Peachland, rose in 1972 to $1.5 million or 35 cents a share, compared with net losses for 1971 of $337,362, or eight cents a share before extraordinary items.

The company said there were no extraordinary items in 1972 but in 1971 the company had an extraordinary gain of $1.4 million turning the loss into earnings of slightly more than $1 million or 25 cents a share.

Brenda operates a copper-molybdenum mine.

NW

NW Financial Corporation reports net earnings of $429,150 on gross revenue of $4.47 million in 1972, up 26 per cent from 1971.

The Vancouver-based company's net income per share in 1972 was 19 cents compared to 15 cents the previous year.

The NW Financial Group comprises North West Life Assurance Company and North West Investments Ltd. which manages the NW Growth Fund Ltd., NW Canadian Fund Ltd. and NW Equity Fund Ltd. The combined assets of the three funds totalled $38 million at the end of 1972.

Page

Page and Page (1972) Ltd. of New Westminister, exercising an option, has acquired Carter Machine Works Ltd. of New Westminister.

The acquisition combined the Page line of logging trailers, flatbeds, low boys and chip trailers with the Carter line of gravel boxes, rock box cranes and hydraulic components.

The joint operation now will manufacture, sell, repair and service from three plant and sales centres in New Westminster, Penticton and Prince George.

He's Gathering Waste Paper —And Wants 50 Tons a Day

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Bill Allan is looking for waste paper — tons and tons of it.

He is manager of Allan Paper Stock Co. Ltd. which has just opened a new $125,000 plant at 475 Tyee Road with a paper shredding capacity of 50 tons per day.

His hungry machines are only shredding about 15 tons per day.

"We're not looking for donations, we want to buy cardboard and paper. Some loads of garbage going to the city garbage wharf are more than 80 per cent cardboard and paper. It makes no sense to me to bury it when it can be sold and recycled."

The Allan Paper Stock Co. is in business to make a profit but many of its activities are tied in with non-profit organizations.

It buys all the paper donated to the Project Recycle depot at 4026 Borden.

It donates trucks for boy scout paper drives.

It collects paper from the provincial museum and makes a donation to Project Recycle in the name of the museum staff who gather the paper together.

The Allan paper shredder is the only one in operation on Vancouver Island, except for MacMillan Bloedel's shredder at its paper mill in Port Alberni.

Main suppliers to the Tyee Road plant are department stores and supermarkets along with some confidential papers of the provincial government.

Most government and municipal paper is buried at present although both levels of government have expressed interest in the recycling industry.

While the company pays for volume pickups of cardboard and paper, it handles small household bundles as donations.

"If people want to drive in here with their waste paper, that's fine. We are open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. But we just can't afford to drive out and pick up paper from houses.

"Some of the people who bring paper in have it bundled and others don't. It doesn't matter. It all goes on the conveyor."

The equipment works so quickly that a truck load of cardboard boxes can be shredded and baled as quickly as they can be unloaded.

"The last piece of cardboard is usually baled and ready for shipment before the truck which brought the boxes leaves the plant," he said.

The machine can cut and bale 1,000 pounds of cardboard within 5 to 8 minutes.

The 6-foot-wide bales (each half a ton) are loaded on a CN freight car and barged to the mainland.

Main purchaser is Belkin Paper Board Ltd. which buys about 450 tons per month to turn into linerboard and roofing products. Most of the tonnage is cardboard.

The other mainland purchaser is Westroc Industries Ltd. which buys 30 tons per month of shredded paper for use in making gypsum.

Allan purchased the shredder-baler new in Ontario and insists upon selling only in Canada. A rival operation on the mainland sells shredded cardboard to Japan.

The company employs five people, all members of the Allan family, a factor which comes in handy when the task is to destroy confidential government papers.

Allan said he has issued an invitation to schools to tour the building as part of classroom discussion on pollution and re-cycling.

Two Banks Adopt Master Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — Introduction of the Master Charge bank credit card to Canada has been announced by the Bank of Montreal and Provincial Bank of Canada.

The charge card, already offered in the U.S., should be available to customers later this year and will compete directly with the Chargex card offered by five other banks, the banks announced in a joint statement.

The two banks were the only major chartered banks not to join the Chargex card system offered by the Royal Bank, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Bank Canadian National, the Toronto-Dominion Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The Master Charge system is part of the Interbank Card Association, a non-profit international organization of banks formed to provide a worldwide interchange of credit cards.

Raymond Primeau, vice-president and general manager of the the Provincial Bank, said that, as members of the Interbank Card Association, they will be free to set their own policies and introduce their own services to make the card more useful to cardholders.

"Had we joined the Chargex group we would not have had this autonomy," said Fred H. McNeil, president of the Bank of Montreal.

The two banks intend to contact merchants during the summer and begin sending the card to consumers in the fall. No exact date has been set for the release of the new card.

French Exports Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A prediction that France will have one of the highest standards of living in the world by the mid-1980s, with a strong demand for imports, was made by a trade official.

Gerry Doucet, Canadian trade commissioner in Paris, told a gathering of Vancouver businessmen that frozen foods represent a "booming market" in France, and that the fastest growth area is in frozen prepared fish.

"Recent extension of large trading blocs means that British Columbia will face increasing competition in export markets," Doucet said, "but acceleration of growth in Western Europe also opens up greater business opportunities for Western Canada."

Doucet was one of several trade commissioners who spoke at a fisheries and food products marketing seminar here, organized by the federal department of industry, trade and commerce.

He noted that although the European Economic Community has imposed high tariffs on canned food products, multilateral trade negotiations scheduled for later this year could result in an easing of these tariffs.

Pacific Coast herring is receiving considerable attention in Europe as a result of poor catches by European fishermen and declining supplies from the Canadian east coast.

"The German market for herring is practically unlimited, although Canadian exporters realize they can only compete by exporting herring fillets, deep frozen or cured," Doucet said. Herring canning should be encouraged in Canada, he added.

He pointed out that although Canada's share of the $24 billion French imported food market is less than one per cent, France takes a higher proportion of its agricultural imports from Canada than from any other member of the EEC.

ROYAL BANK APPOINTMENTS

J. P. Clarke — W. A. Maas — D. C. Maltby

As part of a reorganization of its Canadian Districts Division, designed to provide improved support to the customer service and customer relations activities of its 1,292 branches across Canada, The Royal Bank of Canada announces the appointment of J. P. Clarke, W. A. Maas and D. C. Maltby to senior marketing posts in its Head Office in Montreal.

Mr. Clarke, who has wide credit, supervisory and branch management experience in various parts of Canada, becomes Director of Retail Marketing and Development. In his new post he is responsible for direct liaison with the bank's field management across the country, and for sales management, services management and similar functions.

Mr. Maas, who recently joined the bank, has broad marketing and advertising experience. In his position as Director of Marketing he is responsible for Marketing Planning and Operations which includes advertising and sales promotion, marketing research, marketing planning, branch network planning, public relations and public affairs. His responsibilities include provision of these services to the bank's International Division as well as its Canadian Districts and branches.

Mr. Maltby, whose background includes extensive branch banking experience as well as systems and corporate sales work, becomes Director of Corporate Marketing and Development. In this position, he is responsible for the bank's Corporate and Commercial marketing and support services.

More Money Soon For Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill to be debated soon has the purpose of drawing more private capital into residential mortgages, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Tuesday.

He was replying to John Harney (NDP — Toronto Scarborough West), who asked in the Commons what the government intended to do "about a considerable drop in residential construction" in the last quarter of 1972.

When the Neighbors Learned of Plans To Put 5,000 People In Their Midst, They Closed Ranks To Fight Back

Entrance to Kingsview Properties land on rural Maple Bay Road is blocked to public, above. From partly cleared mountainside, below, Lake Quamichan provides picturesque view.

The Day the 'Hicks' And 'Rustics' Roared . . .

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

Whether or not Kingsview Properties Ltd. thought North Cowichan was peopled with "hicks" and "rustics," as one citizen suggested, the company's attempt last week to drop a 505-acre subdivision on them has probably changed their character forever.

For a quiet, rural municipality of only 12,000 persons, North Cowichan showed surprisingly dogged determination at Kingsview's public hearing Thursday.

Submissions from both organized and unorganized opposition to the subdivision plan were detailed and thoughtful enough to give council plenty to think about before it sits down again at the next half of the public hearing.

One of the most thorough arguments against the massive plan, proposed for the north side of Mount Tzouhalem on Maple Bay Road, came from Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart who has appeared many times before municipal councils.

Stewart has been on what could be called the opposite side of the fence in Victoria, representing developer John Mace, who wants to build the city's highest highrise development in the middle of residential James Bay.

In Stewart's words, the land use contract sought by Kingsview Properties Ltd. is merely a "licence" to develop without any interference for ten years.

Stewart tore into the land use contract proposed by the developer, picking on details.

"If you tried to put 5,000 people in the centre of the city of Victoria, you would have to put in a four-lane road nearby." This compared with the sole, two-lane access of Maple Bay Road, in the Kingsview plan.

Stewart pointed out that the sketch plan attached to the contract was no plan at all, and that there is "no positive covenant" by the developer to dedicate public land, as the developer had orally promised.

As for the protection offered in a $50,000 performance letter of credit promised by Kingsview, Stewart said that when profits might be "in the order of $3 million," the bond is "simply not worth having."

Performance clauses and bonds are often used to prevent a land dealer from getting land rezoned for speculative purposes, and to prevent half-finished eye-sores from ruining the landscape.

The contract, drafted by Kingsview, says that in the event of non-performance, "the municipality may at its option, enter in and upon the lands and complete or demolish the work, and may recover its total cost of so doing including the cost of administration and supervision."

The company's lawyer at the hearing explained that this clause meant that if Kingsview did not complete part of the project, it could be released from part of the contract "by paying part of the $50,000."

Far from hinting at non-performance, the company's actions to date have suggested an eagerness to perform. In fact, much performing has already taken place, even though no land use contract has been signed.

In January, when the noise of bulldozers was becoming obvious, council asked Kingsview to stop, and the company complied.

STEWART
. . . just a licence

But not before the side of Tzouhalem Mountain was substantially scarred.

The B.C. Forest Service issued a timber mark on Jan. 2 to Ellison Excavating Ltd. of Cowichan Station, registering an intent to cut timber anywhere and everywhere on the site.

And in fact, much lumbering has taken place. The best timber has been cut selectively, not merely cut down to make way for roads. The edges of creeks and ravines — the "greenbelts," according to the developers — have also lost the larger prime timber.

There has also been extensive clearing for roads. Citizens at the public hearing were anxious to know how much work was done before council asked that it be stopped. They have been unwilling to cross the barbed gate to see for themselves.

The clearing operation has also backed up what some citizens said about the watershed. There is little topsoil covering the shale and bedrock of the hillside. When 109 acres of blacktop and many more acres of rooftops are in position, the run-off could cause flooding below the subdivision, and the drainage water could be polluted, citizens said.

Perhaps the most upsetting aspect of the subdivision is that it would alter the rural atmosphere of the Maple Bay Road area, by depositing at least 4,500 new residents (Stewart said the number could reach 8,000) amidst farms and other dotted development.

The charge of unplanned growth and induced growth was levelled at the developers.

The subdivision, if approved and completed, would certainly alter North Cowichan.

The population is estimated to increase from 12,000 to 24,000 by 1985, and the bulk of this is expected to settle in the Southend and Maple Bay areas.

The Kingsview subdivision, not surprisingly, is situated in that sector. The council has taken the attitude that the subdivision site is a good place to put this influx.

But little real planning has gone into the scheme. The company's lawyer at the public hearing described the commercial part of the development as only "convenience shopping."

The land use contract hardly guarantees this, and it would be in Kingsview's favor to develop extensive commercial space on the site. Indeed, the sketch plan shows the commercial space not in the middle of the development, but at the north end, next to Maple Bay Road, where it could also easily serve surrounding residents, creating a new commercial centre in the district.

The whole development is half way between Maple Bay and the town of Duncan, in the centre of the expected population growth area.

The growth estimates, according to a municipal official, are carried in a recreation study done for the municipality. They are also carried in the water supply study, the only document offered by the municipality as supportive material for the subdivision. But the water study makes no case either way for the desirability of growth in that area.

Judging from the heavy turnout of ratepayers at the public hearing, council's decision, when it comes, will be watched extremely closely.

When opposition first rose against the plan, it came from people whose land was adjacent to or near the subdivision. The public hearing, however, brought voices from other sectors of the municipality, and some from outside.

Thus council has come under pressure much greater than it expected when it began the process of approval of the land use contract in December.

One of the witnesses estimated that the subdivision was the biggest in British Columbia. In any case, the decision to approve it will likely be the biggest decision North Cowichan's aldermen have ever made.

Who'll Pick Strawberries Cheaply? ...And Who's Worried?

OTTAWA (CP) — "If nobody wants to pick the strawberries, how do the strawberries get picked?"

The question was posed by V. O. Marquez of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in the Commons special food prices committee Tuesday during a spirited go-around on wages and inflation.

Romeo Leblanc (L—Westmorland-Kent), noting the CMA contention that high wages unrelated to productivity are contributing to inflation, said his impression is that a lot of food processing is done by "what I would call cheap labor."

He recalled working as a potato picker in New Brunswick in his younger days and, after a back-breaking day in the fields, receiving little money for his efforts.

Marquez said there is no doubt people are becoming more selective about the jobs they will accept. Even with wages offerings well above minimum wage levels, some jobs were going begging.

Leblanc said a worker could hardly look at three weeks of strawberry picking as a stable career. Marquez then posed his question of how they are to get picked.

More automation and less physical labor, Leblanc suggested.

That would require higher prices, Marquez replied.

No matter how desirable it is to have everyone making higher wages, the price has to be paid somewhere along the line, he added.

Albanie Morin (L—Louis-Herbert) noted the CMA contention that increased unemployment insurance benefits have made workers reluctant to take temporary harvesting jobs.

Didn't the salaries offered and the length of employment play a role?

Marquez said today's workers see some jobs as "beneath their dignity" or not up to their standards of education and ability. Good wages had been offered in such fields but the jobs still were not filled.

Mrs. Morin cited a case she knew where an unemployed man had taken work at $30 a week, well below what he had earned before.

When he was laid off again, his unemployment benefits were based on the $30 a week, far below what he would have received if he had stayed unemployed in the first place. It was no wonder such a man would not take another low-paying job.

Marquez agreed.

OTTAWA (CP) — Politicians and news people, not consumers, are those most worried about rising food costs, Gordon Hill, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Tuesday.

Appearing as one of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture's witnesses before the special Commons food price inquiry, Hill read long lists of grocery prices from newspaper ads which he said weren't that high.

Consumers he has talked to on open-line radio shows were not that concerned about food costs. MPs and newspaper men are the people showing the "greatest concern," he said.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said this was simply not so and she was disappointed in the attitude of the CFA witnesses, representatives of most farmers through 14 member organizations.

Farmers were "living in a fool's paradise" if they thought consumers didn't care about rising prices. They should be helping the committee zero in on such grey areas as rising machinery prices, packaging costs and excessive supermarket capacity in an effort to decide how to curb prices.

Charles Munro, an Embro, Ont., hog and dairy farmer and president of the CFA, said the CFA had not been able to identify any waste in the food system and the problem appeared to be one of over-all inflation rather than simply rising food costs.

Seal Hunt Ban Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will seek agreement from Canada, the Soviet Union and Japan for an experimental ban on harvesting of fur seals on St. George Island in Alaska, Dr. Robert M. White, administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said Tuesday.

White said the United States will present the proposal at the International North Pacific North Pacific Fur Seal Commission now meeting in Japan.

White said there has been an unexplained decline in the world's seal population in the last three years despite careful management, and a ban on harvesting seal on St. George for several years can help scientists to learn why.

"We are concerned about this limited decline," White said. "We intend to do all we can to attain the best possible seal management program."

A total of 4,220 seals were taken in 1972 from St. George, one of two islands in the Privilof chain whose seal harvest is managed by the United States under the interm convention on conservation of the North Pacific Fur Seal Treaty.

The harvest from St. Paul, the second island, which totalled 33,165 in 1972, would not be affected by the proposed ban.

The Soviet Union manages the harvest from two other islands, Robben and Commander. Under terms of the convention, Canada and Japan each receive 15 per cent of the harvest from the operations managed by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

White said the current world seal population is estimated at more than a million animals.

The Secret of Dr. King —As Told to a Victim

Since Education Minister Eileen Dailly has informed the legislature that the banning of the strap in public schools is a final decision, not a trial run, I suppose there's not much point in reminiscing about the time that Dr. Hubert B. King gave it to me.

Still, it may have the effect of illustrating the profound reaction that corporal punishment may have on a sensitive student, the one involved party whose opinion seems to have been unsolicited in this controversy, and I offer it in that hope.

Dr. King died in 1956. I met him, for the second time, in one of the immediate post-war years as a reporter assigned to a dinner meeting of the B.C. Federation of Teachers. There were cocktails before the dinner. I found myself, drink in hand, in a face-to-face confrontation with a man I was pretty sure I hated.

In his physical appearance Dr. King had changed little from that day, fully 20 years earlier, when he had given me the strap. He was a short, solidly-built man with rimless glasses and a military moustache. He was then chief inspector of schools for the province, a man widely acclaimed as a progressive educationalist and reformer and, indeed, he was to be honored as such at this dinner. Even so, knowing this, I could think of him only The Man Who Gave Me The Strap.

When I blurted out my accusation that he — or, to be fair, the system he had symbolized — had been the cause of my dropping out from school, Dr. King took a long thoughtful sip of his cocktail, fixed me with the gaze that had once struck terror into my heart, and urged me to tell him the story. "I suspect I know what it's going to be," he said, or words to that effect, "but tell me anyway."

The odd thing was that I could not remember what disobedience or mischief-making of mine had caused Miss Craig, the teacher of Latin, to give me the sealed note to the principal, a note that I was to deliver to his office the following morning. That gave me a nice, long night to think about it.

It was a common practice. The note would say that here was a boy to be disciplined. The disciplining was the function of the legendary Dr. H. B. King, then principal of the Kitsilano Junior High School. All that we knew, or were ever to know, of Dr. King was that he was a virtuoso with the strap. It was said that he did not stop until a boy cried.

The morning bell had not rung when I presented Miss Craig's note to Dr. King's secretary in an outer office. She took it in to his inner sanctum, carefully closing the door behind her. Presently Dr. King, himself, emerged, expressionless. "Follow me, John," he said. It was the first and last time I was ever called by my given name.

I walked one pace to the rear of Dr. King as he strode down the hall, down two flights of stairs, through a door marked "Furnace Room" and down a narrower flight of stairs into the brightly-lit basement of the school. I remember a maze of piping and, reaching up into it, Dr. King brought down a strap. It was of thick, black rubber, smooth on one side, indented with a criss-cross pattern on the other. "Hold out your right hand, John," said Dr. King.

Remembering that ordeal 20 years later as Dr. King and I sipped our cocktails, I told him truthfully that nothing about it was as I had expected. I had been terribly afraid of the pain, terribly afraid that I would cry. But with that first blow on my hand — and there were, at the most, six on each — I felt only a sense of humiliation, of shame for the two of us locked in a system which assumed the ridiculous proposition that something was to be gained by an adult inflicting a hurt on a boy.

With each blow I felt a deepening resentment and anger that my self-respect and the respect that I had for the school were being beaten out of me. If I had cried it would have been tears of disillusionment and indignity not tears of pain. I knew that I would never again feel a part of the system that was degrading to me as a person. I wanted no part of an educational philosophy that was insane enough or insensitive enough to think that the humiliation of physical punishment was the way to making me a better student.

"The effect of it," I told Dr. King, at that second meeting, man to man, "was that I decided that morning that I would look for my education elsewhere as soon as I could escape."

Dr. King, who had listened to this very attentively, then made some remark suggesting that perhaps I'd taken it all too seriously and said that such episodes had been as painful to him as to the student. One of the executive of the federation had taken his arm to lead him into the dinner, but half way across the room Dr. King stopped and came back to me.

"I feel I ought to tell you a secret," he said, smiling broadly. "In all that time I was at Kitsilano there was never a boy who cried."

METAL DETECTING for fun and profit is the hobby of Charles Moreland, 344 Island Highway. Based on the principle of Second World War mine detectors, the electronic box ferrets out buried metal such as coins in places where people congregate or seek seclusion. Moreland's device, in four weeks of beeping at one favored spot, turned up $30 worth of change. Since he took up the hobby last June, he has uncovered gold rings, an 1859 coin, lots of metal scrap, medallions, wads of foil—anything conductive. Moreland looks out for bottle caps, telling him that more people have been there and likely have dropped more valuables. Parks are one of his happy hunting grounds. This morning he was near Dallas Road. (Bill Halkett photos)

MAJOR FISH KILL

A major fish kill, believed caused by pollution from the sulphite pulp mill at Port Alice on the west coast of Vancouver Island, was reported today by commercial fishermen.

Federal fisheries officials confirmed there has been a kill near the mill and inspectors are being flown to the area to estimate the damage.

"It seems to be mainly immature herring," he said. "We have had problems with that mill over the years."

Mike Hill of Tofino, secretary of the Save Our Salmon Committee, said a group of commercial fishermen hopes to fly to Port Alice today to see the damage.

"The weather has closed in on us, but we hope it will clear up in time for us to fly to Port Alice," he said. "We were informed it was a major kill."

Hill said pollution from the mill has been a cause of major concern among fishermen.

"It's time something was done about it," he said.

'Astronomical' Increase In City Break-In Figures

Victoria police annual report on crime for 1972 shows what Mayor Peter Pollen called an "astronomical" growth in breaking and entry, and "consistent" growth in assaults.

At the same time, the report shows that only one-tenth of reported B and Es were followed by criminal charges.

Police Chief Jack Gregory said there was a 10 per cent increase in over-all crime. He told today's meeting of the police commission that the juvenile quota was down.

A total of 1,130 breaking and enterings was reported in 1972 — 156 of them followed by charges.

A total of 322 cars was reported stolen — 37 charges ensued. A total of 736 thefts over $50 was reported, with 61 charges following.

The northeast sector of the city had the highest crime rate for breaking and entry. The area is bounded by Cedar Hill, Bay, North Dairy and Newton.

Auto theft was highest in an area bounded by Douglas, Tolmie, Quadra and Bay.

The north central city area had highest theft and other criminal rates.

Marijuana and hashish (Cannabis Sativan and resin) continued to top the drug possession and trafficking charge figures. Under the city's new policy of pursuing drug offenders apart from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police drug squad, instituted in July, 246 persons, 21 of them women, were arrested. A total of 57 offences involved heroin. Only seven concerned LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide).

Juveniles, Addiction Cited

Juveniles featured prominently in 580 shoplifting offences reported, involving $24,600 worth of property. A total of 428 persons was charged, 217 of them juveniles. The police report said an element of theft caused by drug addiction was "noticeable" in this area.

Elsewhere, the report says, "the line between the youthful offender who commits anti-social delinquincies for whatever reason, and the "drug scene" group who thieve at any, and every, opportunity, to support drug habits, becomes more and more difficult to discern."

The report knocks parents for lack of support: Frustration — the constant companion of any police officer — seems particularly to haunt the officer assigned to youth work, who invariably hears concern expressed, but seldom sees support offered, by the effort to curtail juvenile delinquencies.

"The root causes behind the behavior of juvenile offenders are considered beyond the officers' competence to determine, and, for all practical purposes beyond his duties to modify or correct."

Topping the driving violations were speedsters, 2,444 of whom got tickets in 1972. Red light shooters, 1,344 of them, came hot on the heels of drivers without "inspection sticker" — there were 2,272 of them.

No less than 38,556 drivers overshot their time on parking meters and another 13,216 got tickets for parking overtime.

Impaired driving charges jumped from 162 in 1971 to 279 last year: Driving with excessive alcohol charges also jumped, from 45 to 69, and 25 drivers refused a breath test, compared with 11 in 11971.

Police Circus Okayed For This Year But . . .

A circus show which has been sponsored for five years by Victoria Police Mutual Benevolent Fund will go ahead this year, but police commission chairman Mayor Peter Pollen is not so sure about 1974.

"If this circus was brought in by the police department in an unofficial capacity, it would be another matter," the mayor told a regular police commission meeting today.

"I do feel that if Victoria police department's name is being used to legitimize this circus activity we should be discussing it."

Police Chief Jack Gregory said that in 1972 $3,908 went to local charities and the same figure was split 50-50 between the police mutual benevolent association and the policemen's union. The total was a small proportion of the gross take of the show. Gregory said he did not know what proportion it was.

The mayor said he thought policemen, and firemen too, were well enough paid nowadays not to have to sponsor a charity benefit.

"Just think of the members of the legislature holding a circus on the lawns of the Parliament Buildings," he said.

Gregory admitted that canvassing for the annual show "generated a lot of calls" every year and "certain people" did object.

"But in each case it's a matter of a businessman saying he already pays his taxes for the police, and I say he's under no obligation," Gregory said.

The commission agreed to hear a report from the police circus committee.

WALLACE HEADS HOSPITAL GROUP

The Capital Regional Hospital District's seven-member advisory committee today got a new chairman, University of Victoria chancellor Robert T. Wallace.

Computer Report Cards Survive Student Dislike

Despite evidence that students oppose computerized report cards, it appears their use will be continued in at least three Greater Victoria secondary schools.

The decision will be made next Monday when the school board votes on an administration recommendation that "the computerized reporting procedures be continued at Mt. View, Reynolds and Highrock secondary schools, and that one other school be added to the list starting September 1973."

Associate instruction director Glen Wall told a board committee this week the computerized cards leave more time for teachers to do other work, and save a great deal of time in administration record keeping.

A survey last spring showed that 94 per cent of teachers favored use of the cards, which began as an experiment at the three schools in September 1971.

The survey also showed, however, that 57 per cent of students opposed the computer cards.

Cathy Ferguson, the student representative on the school board committee, confirmed that students at her school, Esquimalt senior secondary, were "overwhelmingly against" introducing the cards.

"It's 12 years of a student's life, and we'd like something more than a computer printout," she said.

"Doesn't student opinion count?" Trustee Walter Donald said.

"I think it's terribly significant that students are opposed to them. They realize they are becoming more and more of a statistic," he added.

School principals attending the meeting said most teachers put written comments on the cards and principals check every card as well.

The computerized cards print out attendance statistics, grades and a choice of comments which teachers can pick from.

BUDGET INCREASE

Mayor Peter Pollen said at today's police commission meeting he would take the estimates to city comptroller Jim Bramley for a closer look.

Gregory is seeking to rehire five officers who have been doing court duty, to bring his force up to 150. So-called court officers are proposed to replace the qualified policemen.

NORAD Subject of Meet

Six members of parliament and military experts from across the country will attend a day-long seminar on Canada and NORAD Monday, March 26, in the Empress Hotel.

Speakers will include John Gellner, editor of the Canadian Defence Quarterly, Dr. J. C. Arnell, special assistant to the deputy minister of national defence, and Dr. Colin Gray, a military strategist from the University of British Columbia.

Gordon Hawkins of the centre for foreign policy studies at Dalhousie University will be chairman.

The seminar is sponsored by the University of Victoria history department in co-operation with the University of British Columbia political science department and the department of external affairs.

New Community School 'A Monstrosity' Says Ney

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A model and sketch plans for Saanich community school were presented to Greater Victoria school board Tuesday night and came under fierce attack by Trustee Philip Ney.

"It's a monstrosity," Ney said, " . . . the worst of all my nightmares.

"Personal contact is the most important thing in education. But we keep doing the same thing building square schools with square roofs, and still complain about students behavior," Ney said:

Ney called the proposed school building "a machine" that's concrete walls will have a very real effect on the attitudes of the students it produces.

The model, presented for the board's information by architectural firm of Peterson and Lester, showed a large three-level building with community facilities including a 500-seat auditorium, a gym, library, workshop and art areas and an optional swimming pool.

Alan Lester said the school, situated in the Burnside-Acorn area of Saanich, is an attempt to get away from the "anonymity and impersonalization" spoken of by Ney.

He said the architects tried "to avoid altogether the whole idea of corridors" and allowed large areas of space throughout the school as well as designing large classrooms which teachers can divide up or use as they see fit.

Lester said concrete has to be used to comply with strict fire regulations.

The school, scheduled to open September 1974 with about 950 secondary students, has been in the planning stages for over 19 months under a joint school board — Saanich community committee.

Trustee Walter Donald, who said "personally it's not my kind of box," added that the model was presented to the Saanich community group last week and received their wholehearted approval.

"To criticize the plan and take the architects to task is unfair," board chairman Peter Bunn said, because the architect had been faced with educational and community specifications as well economic limitations.

"We have to follow department of education rules and just try to bend them as much as we can," Bunn said. "I can't see how we can change the whole philosophy of education by one school in one district."

Trustee William Ross said he agreed with Ney that a core of community facilities, surround by "more portable type classroom units" would be a more beneficial layout.

"Why do we have to build schools so large?" Ross asked. "This is a problem we should start attacking now. I think 400 to 500 students is a good school size."

Portable classroom areas were discussed, district superintendent A. J. Longmore said, but found to be impractical. Schools had to be large, he added, to accommodate diversified programs.

The architects said there is not enough area at the site to build a campus-style school envisioned by Ney.

"So we sacrifice student identity for the economy of land space," Ney replied.

No date has been set for construction to begin on the school.

Fergy and Team Canada —A Review and Preview

Not only would John Ferguson do it all over again — coach Team Canada — but he feels he knows how to beat the Russians.

That was a small part of the message from the former Montreal Canadiens' hard-rock, an assistant to coach Harry Sinden when North America's finest — Team Canada — met the Russian national team in that memorable eight-game international hockey series last fall.

John told it like it was here on Monday, informally, and then later to the guests at the Greater Victoria Sports Celebrity dinner at the Empress.

"They would have to be forechecked in their own end to keep them from winging away," he explained. "This would upset their patterns and it is how we got a couple of crucial goals in those games in the Soviet Union. That's where they make their mistakes."

John had praise indeed for Soviet hockey — "sure we're still No. 1," he said, "but they (Russia) would finish one-two in either division of the National Hockey League." And if he had his way, he'd go again with an all-star NHL team, fewer players (25) than the 35 last time and a longer training period before the series.

"We'd have to go with four forward lines . . . would need penalty killers . . . and if a club side went . . . there would have to be an Orr or an Esposito on the bench . . . or a Bobby Clarke for faceoffs."

'Winners' Preferred in Final

In the decision-making for the final game in Moscow, it was a case of going with "winners", fellows who had won under pressure,, and that's why Ken Dryden got the call over Tony Esposito in goal. It also is why a lot of the younger players never got to play against the Soviets.

"Conditioning was a key factor", he said. The Russians had been practising for 16 days before we even started; and it was unbelievable . . . this guy Tretiak (the Russian goalie) would do 75 pushups on the ice without stopping before the game . . ."

John admitted that he and coach Sinden knew before the series that they were possibly in deep trouble. "The more we saw of films and heard from Arnie Stromberg, the coach of the Swedish national team for 10 years, we knew it was going to be one goal one way or the other."

"The big problem when we returned to Canada was that we couldn't get the players to believe it".

John also explained that his nationalism showed in Russia. "I've stood up at a lot of anthems and gone through the motions," he admitted, "but over there I was singing as loudly as I could, and I looked down the bench and all those players were doing it, too."

If the team got bad fan reaction when it lost to the Russians in Vancouver, it was deserved in Ferguson's opinion. "That's a fan's right," he said.

"In Russia we got the other kind of telegrams and it lifted the whole team. I think it united us. and also united Canada when we won that final game."

14 Million Players Under 14

European training methods drew Ferguson's praise. "They've got a 'shoot machine' that fires a puck every seven seconds," he said. "It is accurate to within two centimetres. In Montreal we had a two-bucket or three-bucket practice."

Youngsters in Copenhagen have almost the ultimate in coaching. Within minutes of their practices they are in the classroom watching themselves on TV and having their mistakes pointed out to them.

Plus some other fascinating disclosures.

- In Russia there are 14 million youngsters under the age of 14 playing hockey;
- Seminars draw upwards of 200 coaches;
- There are excellent books on hockey in Europe in every language;
- Vic Hadfield blew a $20,000 endorsement deal when he jumped the club;
- By 1975 there should be a European professional league with teams from Britain, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, and Russia;
- In 10 years there will be an international championship series;
- Every outside seat in every row in Moscow was occupied by a plainclothesman;
- In the battle of oneupmanship, the Russians were almost No. 1. With 30 seconds to play in that final game and the score tied 5-5, they sent a courier to the Canada bench claiming victory in the series because they were ahead on goals.

If that move backfired, don't believe all that stuff you hear about Siberia either.

"They play pretty good hockey there, too," said John.

Rams Clinch Berth in Finals

Mt. Douglas Rams, third in last weekend's Vancouver Island tournament, retained the final Island berth in the B.C. high school boys' basketball championships at the Pacific Coliseum in Vancouver March 21-24.

Rams kept the berth by defeating Nanaimo Hubsters 65-44 in a challenge game before about 400 fans in Mt. Douglas High School gymnasium Tuesday. The winners will join two other Victoria schools, Oak Bay Bays and Mt. View Hornets, first and second respectively in the Island final, at Vancouver next week.

Hubsters finished fourth in the eight-team Island tournament at the University of Victoria and exercised their right to meet third-place Rams for the berth.

And Scott Littlejohn, a six-foot-five, 190-pound all-star in the Island tournament, nearly carried Hubsters to the Vancouver tournament.

Littlejohn pumped in 12 of his 26 points during the first quarter as Rams struggled to a narrow 19-16 lead.

Then Ram coach Dale Bate made the needed adjustment to contain Littlejohn's size and shooting ability. He called off the man-to-man defence and formed a zone with a "sag" in the middle.

With Littlejohn unable to control the middle and the offensive boards, Hubsters faded to a 44-25 deficit at half time.

Hubsters managed to rally in the third quarter by putting Littlejohn further out to feed his clubmates and closed the gap to 54-44. Rams, however, used tight ball control in the final eight minutes to stall Hubsters.

Guards Rick Jones and Doug Mosher sparked the Rams' scoring punch with 19 and 13 points, respectively.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT to score brought centre Don Luce of Buffalo Sabres crashing into St. Louis Blues' goalie Jacques Caron during first period of National Hockey League battle Tuesday night. Subsequent attempts by Buffalo also proved fruitless as Blues claimed 2-0 victory.

Leak-Proof Defence Moves Bruins Close to Second Spot

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins have, in recent weeks, tightened up their defensive play and consequently their battle with New York Rangers for second place in the National Hockey League's East Division race.

The defending Stanley Cup champions used the helpless New York Islanders to emphasize their latest trend-setting program Tuesday night, allowing only 22 shots to get through to goaltender Ed Johnston en route to a 3-0 victory.

It moved the Bruins to within two points of the second-place Rangers. Each has nine games remaining in the 78-game season and a second-place finish rewards home-ice advantage in the best-of-seven quarter-final.

In other contests Tuesday, both vital in the late run for a post-season berth, Jacques Caron combined stand-up goaltending and fortunate luck to lead St. Louis Blues past Buffalo Sabres, 2-0, and Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars tied 2-2 at Minneapolis.

The loss diminished Buffalo's playoff hopes. It was Sabres' fourth loss in five games and left them one point behind fourth-place Detroit Red Wings in the East. The Wings, with 10 games remaining, have a game in hand.

The Kings-Stars tie left Los Angeles with 67 points, three behind fourth-place St. Louis and Minnesota, with 75 points, one behind second-place Philadelphia Flyers in the West race.

Fred O'Donnell's break-With the Sabres idle tonilight, Detroit has an opportunity to pad its standing at home against East Division-leading Montreal Canadiens.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia visits Toronto Maple Leafs, the Rangers are at Chicago Black Hawks, St. Louis at Atlanta Flames, Vancouver Canucks at California Golden Seals and Pittsburgh Penguins at Los Angeles.

While Johnston was keeping his poise at the Boston end of the ice, with first-period offence from Wayne Cashman and Ken Hodge, Islanders' goalie Billy Smith was losing his as the Islanders continued to produce futility marks.

Fred O'Donnell's breakaway goal late in the game was the 321st scored on the fledgling team this season, surpassing NHL record established by the Seals in 1970-71, also in a 78-game schedule.

Smith picked up a minor penalty in the first period, giving him 42 minutes for the season, one more than Al Smith amassed in establishing the previous mark while tending goal for Pittsburgh in 1970-71.

Caron had more than his share of luck in St. Louis where the Sabres several times controlled the play in front of the Blues' net and twice had shots diverted by goalposts.

Phil Roberto, returned to right wing for the game, got an assist from team-mate Danny O'Shea who rode Buffalo defenceman Tracey Pratt off the puck and the strapping forward swooped in to blister a shot past goaltender Roger Crozier in the final minute of the second period.

O'Shea didn't get any credit in the scoring of the goal, but he did on the insurance score by Floyd Thomson, a close-in drive that secured Caron's shutout with about five minutes left in the game.

Veteran Dean Prentice's 23rd goal of the season at 7:00 of the third period salvaged the tie for Minnesota. Buster Harvey opened the scoring for the Stars early in the game but two recent Los Angeles acquisitions gave the visitors a temporary lead.

Dan Maloney matched Harvey's first-period score and Frank St. Marseille provided the go-ahead goal at 18:50 of the middle period.

Dorey Leads Whalers to Top

By The Canadian Press

New England Whalers moved alone into first place in the World Hockey Association's Eastern Division Tuesday night on the strength of light-scoring defenceman Jim Dorey's overtime goal and assistance from Alberta Oilers.

Dorey's fifth goal of the year, through a maze of players at 6:57 of sudden-death overtime, lifted the Whalers to a 4-3 win over the hometown Chicago Cougars while Alberta Oilers kept their slim playoff hopes in the Western Division alive with a 4-2 victory over Cleveland Crusaders.

The Whalers, with 80 points, hold a two-point lead in their topsy-turvy race with Cleveland for the Eastern lead.

MEDICINE HAT — Victoria Cougars' final road trip of the 1972-73 Western Canada Junior Hockey League season may not be a complete write off.

Victoria's travelling commitments ended Tuesday when Medicine Hat Tigers, erupting for three goals in the final five minutes of play ,defeated the Cougars 5-3, Cougars' consolation was the performance of Perry Mulhall and Victoria's goaltending future.

"The officers coming in during the past several days would suggest we're going to be in excellent shape, from a goaltending standpoint, for next season," said general manager Eric Bishjop.

"We have had five offers for goaltenders," he added.

With Mulhall coming back and Danny Rogers available for four more campaigns, the Cougar netminding position is further strengthened by Glen Beuckert, Rick Tkalcic and Ron Bourcier, all playing in the B.C. Junior League but on Victoria's protected list. Beuckert was recently named the B.C. League's all-star netminder.

Bishop didn't name the bidders, but Medicine Hat, Calgary (losing a "big one" in John Davidson), Nek Westminster, Saskatoon, Swift Current and Vancouver all will lose first-string goalies through graduation. They'll be looking.

"Because Rogers is only 16, he's still No. 1 in our long-range plans, but Mulhall has really strengthened our position," said Bishop. "He's had his shaky moments, at the start, but, over-all, has played beyond our expectations.

Rated the backup man to Bourcier in Nanaimo, Mulhall got his chance when Victoria dealt Sam Clegg to Medicine Hat in mid-season. The play then was to alternate Mulhall with Rogers, but Perry appears to have taken over as No. 1 in the closing stages of the campaign.

It was Mulhall's display that threw the king-sized scare into the Tigers Tuesday. He was especially brilliant in the first two periods in making 28 of the 39 stops he made in the game.

Cougars came out of the first period with a 1-1 tie on Dale Cook's 45th scoring shot of the season, then went ahead 3-2 on second-period goals by Berry Ewasiuk and Ron Poole.

It remained 3-2 heading into the final five minutes of play. The frustrated Tigers finally tied it when Lanny McDonald scored his 62nd goal at the 15:48 mark of the third period.

Boyd Anderson then counted his second goal of the night into an empty net after Cougars pulled Mulhall in favor of an extra attacker.

Victory moved Tigers into sole possession of first place in the tight Western Division race for first place, two points ahead of Edmonton.

Decision Today On Bid by KC

NEW YORK (CP) — Kansas City tried to save its conditional franchise in the National Hockey League by presenting a modified plan, including interim financing, to the board of governors Tuesday.

"In many instances the modified plan is better than the original one," NHL president Clarence Campbell said.

The governors will decide today whether the Kansas City business group headed by Edwin Thompson has fulfilled, or can fulfill, the requirements the league considers necessary to hold a franchise.

Campbell, 67, presided at his first NHL meeting since he underwent two major operations this year.

Campbell said reports of Kansas City giving up its franchise "are just not true."

The governors dealt only partially with the Kansas City franchise Tuesday, opening day of a two-day meeting. The Kansas City owners made their presentation and a decision will be made today "whether the presentation warrants a continuation or otherwise," Campbell said.

"If they come up clean with the financing, that's all there is to it," he said. "But the league has to be satisfied with the method of financing."

Saanich Wins Island Crown

DUNCAN — Saanich captured the Vancouver Island senior "B" women's basketball championship Tuesday by defeating Duncan 44-38 in the second game of a best-of-three playoff series.

Saanich won the opener in Victoria last Wednesday, 75-50.

Lynn Dunan fired 12 points, one more than clubmate Mary Coutts, to lead Saanich. Julie DeMelt (14) and Angie Dobie (12) topped Duncan scorers.

Saanich advances to the three-day B.C. tournament beginning March 30 in Salmon Arm.

EASTERN BOXLA STARS JOINING B.C. CLUBS

BRANTFORD (CP) — Gaylord Powless and Bruce Todman have quit Brantford Warriors to play senior lacrosse in British Columbia, it was announced Tuesday.

Powless is joining Coquitlam and Todman to Vancouver.

They were top players last season with Warriors in the National Lacrosse League. That league folded and this season the Brantford team returns to the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A League.

Toronto Shooting Stars, Peterborough Lakers, Brampton Excelsiors and Brooklin Redmen also are scheduled to play this year in the senior league.

Fish, Wildlife Budget Still Far From Adequate

Although we basically disagree with the concept of game reserves envisioned by Vancouver NDP backbencher Jack Radford as a remedy for declining game populations and hunting opportunities, there are some facts in his speech to the legislature which serve to illustrate a point.

But first, some elaboration on the reserve idea might be in order.

Reserves were game populations would be intensively managed for eight to 10 years before being opened to hunting under a lottery system — with permits costing from $100 to $200 — are no substitute for a better-educated and management-conscious hunter.

Game populations, which have suffered more from destruction of habitat than from hunting in past decades, should start to stabilize or even increase when integrated resource management finally is instituted in this province.

In terms of quality, rather than quantity, it would be far more preferable to mould the hunter to the environment than vice versa.

Now, some of the better points Radford had to make about he new B.C. budget:

"There has been an increase over $3 million to recreation and conservation. Of this amount $1.2 million has been added to last year's budget of $2.9 million to the fish and wildlife branch. This is approximately a 43.9-per-cent increase.

"Even though this is a very significant increase, the fishing and hunting sportsmen of B.C. are still being shortchanged by the lack of concern and the lack of awareness of the economic values generated by the most natural of all natural resources, our fish and wildlife."

Radford went on to explain that $3 million of the $4.1 million budget is derived directly from licences, tags and fees paid by the hunters and fishermen.

So here you have a situation where the actual input from the government is still less than $1 million.

The Pearse-Bowden study completed for the branch recently concluded that fish and wildlife in this province motivates an expenditure of approximately $103 million each year through transportation, lodging, guns, ammunition, tackle, meat processing, guides, etc.

Other values not covered in the study include generation of revenue through purchase of equipment by people like bird watchers and photographers as well as aesthetic, cultural and scientific considerations for which there is no simple price tag.

Obviously the books aren't balancing.

Radford goes on:

"The fish and wildlife branch in the past has not received adequate tools to do its job. The branch has been understaffed, overworked and frustrated. The conservation officers and others of that branch have been more than dedicated to put up with what they had to in the past."

In regions seven, eight and nine, encompassing some 260,000 square miles (or about the northern half of B.C.), there are only 13 conservation officers.

This is ridiculous in the extreme and serves to underline a problem which has cropped up recently among conservation organizations — complacency.

True, the new government is to be commended for erasing some of the ills handed down from the past administration.

But now is not the time to relax.

$250 Fine Puts Leo's Lip in Motion

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Manager Leo Durocher of Houston Astros was fined $250 Tuesday by National League president Chub Feeney for interfering with his team's meeting Monday with Marvin Miller.

Durocher responded by threatening to resign and take the matter to court.

"It's payable before the first of the season," Durocher said.

"There's no way I'll pay that or let the Houston club pay it. I will resign and take them to court.

"I can't see what authority he has," Durocher said of Feeney.

"This is a point of principle," Durocher said.

"As you know, I've been fined many times in may career. I've never squawked when the fines have been legitimate. However, now I've been fined and never been given the courtesy of a phone call to explain my side."

Durocher was notified of the fine by telegram following Tuesday's game betwen Houston and Boston Red Sox.

Spec Richardson, vice-president and general manager of the Astros, said: "I don't want this guy to resign. He's doing a hell of a job. We can't pay the fine for him. He's mad and won't let me."

The Astros were meeting with Miller, executive-director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association, in centre field at Pompano Beach, Fla., prior to their exhibition game with Texas Rangers when Durocher called them away for batting practice.

Most of Houston's regulars were left behind for the trip to Pompano Beach, but Richardson insisted he did not prevent any players from attending the meeting.

Miller angrily told Richardson that Durocher's action was a violation of a written contract and vowed that players could not ratify the three-year agreement recently reached through collective bargaining "until this matter is cleared up."

Richardson, speaking of the meting and Durocher's action, said: "Leo is 100-per-cent correct. This was a grandstand show for the public by Miller in centre field."

Durocher added: "There was no interference on my part at all. Our players signed to a man that they did not want to go to the meeting.

"Larry Dierker went along only because he was the player representative," Durocher said of the Astros' pitcher. "He went for one reason — to resign as player representative, to tell Marvin Miller in person."

Fan, 7, Roots B.C. to Top

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — With a seven-year-old fan leading the rooting section, Ross McKenzie's rink from British Columbia stepped into the favorite role Tuesday night in the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

Laurie Anne Kardelis is among many B.C. fans were hoping the McKenzie foursome finishes on top in the 11-rink round-robin tournament, which would give the province its second title in the championships 27-year history. Jerry Caughlin of Osoyoos, B.C., won the title in 1961.

"She's been watching every game since the zone playoffs, cheering us all the way," said the 17-year-old McKenzie, a Grade 12 student at Kamloops Secondary School which represented B.C. in the championship in 1968.

McKenzie, along with third Bob Holden, second Gary Kardelis — Laurie's brother — and lead Breck Reimer, share first place with Serge Cote of Alma, Que., and Mark McDonald of Gananoque, Ont. The leaders each had 3-1 records entering this afternoon's fifth round.

The B.C. rink earned top spot with a surprising 10-1 win in the fourth round over Allan Becker of Humboldt, Sask., who conceded after seven ends, and a third-round 8-5 extra-end triumph over David Iverson of Winnipeg.

Winner of Times Bowler-of-the-Year award in 1965-66, Peggy Parsons topped field in 21st week of women's tenpin competition with 202-212-193—607 series in Half Century Trio League at Mayfair Lanes.

Dickson Second

WINNIPEG (CP) — Saskatchewan remained the only unbeaten rink after five rounds of the Canadian policemen's curling championships Tuesday as Dick Tincher of Regina led his rink to a 10-6 win over Quebec, skipped by Guy Fournier.

Manitoba, British Columbia, represented by Neil Dickson of Victoria, and Northern Ontario all improved their marks to 4-1 to remain tied for second place. Bob Flock of Winnipeg beat Eric Bower of Charlottetown, P.E.I., 11-2. Dickson defeated George McCharles and his Cornerbrook, Nfld., crew 7-4 and Bill Dustin of Thunder Bay took his Northern Ontario rink to a 10-4 verdict over Alberta's Bob Morrison of Lethbridge.

In other fifth-round games Bob Nicholson of Ottawa beat Max Keeping of St. John, N.B., 9-5 and Russ Coupland of Truro, N.S., beat Jim Armstrong of Whitehorse, representing the Yukon-Northwest Territories, 15-7.

Saskatchewan Girls Lead

A following 11-0 win over New Brunswick left Saskatchewan at 5-0 for the first three days of play.

Quebec and Manitoba, both 4-1, are closest to the leader. B.C. represented by Nancy Dyck of Mackenzie, is 3-2, after Tuesday action which brought an 8-6 win over Alberta and then a 5-7 loss to Ontario.

Saanich Gets Budget Items

Works projects worth a total $277,615 were placed before Saanich public works committee Tuesday in preparation for 1973 budget discussions starting next week.

The largest of the programs covering $140,715 worth of two-inch water main replacement in a continuing program going back several years—was endorsed by the committee because it can be financed out of current funds.

With its completion, only eight miles of two-inch water main would remain in the municipality, which could be replaced easily in one or two more seasons.

SIDEWALKS

Two other programs were referred to pre-budget consideration—$115,900 worth of new sidewalks, mostly in built-up parts of Saanich, and $21,000 in street lighting improvements, mostly to upgrade roadway lighting in peripheral and outlying areas.

The former, based on 1972 funds allocated, would be less than half completed, or nine projects out of 23 listed by the engineering department as needy. The budget last year stood at about $50,000.

Projects were listed in order of importance starting with Interurban between Marigold and Chesterfield and including Marigold between Interurban and Carey, Holland extended to Blue Ridge, McKenzie from Braefoot to Cedar Hill, Harrop from Braefoot to the school, and Cadboro Bay from Lauder to Telegraph Bay Road.

LOWER GRADE

The committe tabled a request for removal of a sight obstruction on Union at Winton by reducing the grade, which municipal engineer Bob Daye estimated would cost $15,000 - $20,000 to trim a 13 per cent rise. Further consideration will be given after the committee has looked at the problem.

A delegation of residents asked for reconsideration of a petition dating from March 6, 1972, by residents of Clovelly Terrace asking for road and drainage improvements.

The lastest estimate of the engineering department placed cost per 60-foot frontage at about $100 a year for a local improvement undertaking, a cost opposed by the residents.

Another petition with nine names headed by K. C. Gibbard, 4450 Norvaez, opposed the widening of El Sereno Drive if work is done to repair winter damage. The Gibbards said El Sereno is one of the few remaining rural lanes in Gordon Head.

Outside Workers Waiting

Mediator Clark Gilmour met both sides Monday and Tuesday following three days of meetings last week.

Tom Smith, local representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today the city still hasn't made any offer to the outside workers.

He said the city's pay rates are "badly depressed" in comparison with other employers in the area, particularly the base labor rate.

Smith said the city's base labor rate is $3.58, close to $1 an hour less than a composite average of other employers.

In addition, he said there is a lower rate for summer help work of $3.33 an hour which the union is trying to eliminate because it is discriminatory.

"This is a serious bone of contention because a principle is involved here, equal pay for equal work," he said.

Smith said it could and did happen that with two persons doing identical work side by side, one would earn $3.33 and the other $3.58.

Tax Concessions Vital: Chamber Head

Canadian Chamber of Commerce president John Ellis today urged Victoria businessmen to write Conservative leader Robert Stanfield urging him to support proposed corporation tax concessions in the federal budget.

Ellis said opposition parties should not defeat the minority Liberal government on the issue because Canadians did not want an election now and the tax concessions were vital to the economy.

"Since there has been much uncertainty over these corporate tax concessions and consequent delay in business commitments, it is vital that Parliament approve them at an early date," he said.

Ellis urged Victorians to write letters to Stanfield, New Democratic Party leader David Lewis, Social Credit leader Real Caouette and local members of Parliament urging support for the whole budget.

"It is a responsible effort to overcome our current economic problems of unemployment and inflation and as such deserves the approval of Parliament," he said.

(Opposition parties have not indicated how they will vote on the corporation tax concessions. Lewis has said he is against them, but might not defeat the government on the issue, Stanfield approves concessions but was critical of the specific measures proposed by the government.)

(Victoria chamber president Terry Farmer said today the chamber supports the proposed corporation tax concessions as they would increase employment in Canada.)

("I hope that Mr. Stanfield will put principle ahead of politics on this important matter.")

Ellis said he believes the budget measures will help to spur employment and check inflation.

"The personal tax cuts, increases in basic tax exemptions, pensions and veteran's allowances will help to spur consumer spending, stimulate the economy and also assist those persons on fixed incomes to cope with today's cost of living."

Inspiration to the Young, Matthew Fagan, 94, Dies

An inspiration to hundreds of young skating enthusiasts with the Victoria Figure Skating Club, Matthew Fagan died Sunday at the age of 94.

He was buried today.

Fagan, whose retirement allowed him to take up skating seriously at 60, could be seen whirling around the ice at Memorial Arena when he was 91.

Born in Ireland, he came to North America when he was three with his father. His interest in skating began when he was six and living in South Dakota.

He was 13 when his father came to Vicoria as a section foreman on the E and N Railway. Later Fagan was the first to take trains into Courtenay and Port Alberni after he started working for the same line in 1895, having worked up from wiper to engineer. He lived for 54 years on Atkins Road, Langford and more recently with his daughter, Mrs. Delphis Pedneault at 2916 Colquitz.

To keep in shape until he was 80 he swam a daily circle around Thetis Lake and saved two people from drowning.

Fagan is survived by two sons, Gerald of Victoria and Bernard of Vancouver; his daughter; seven grandchildren; nine great grandchildren and two brothers Frank in Seattle and Joseph, Vancouver. His wife died in 1969.

A fueral mass was celebrated today in Our Lady of the Rosary Church, Langford, with the burial at Hatley Memorial Gardens.

Icon Technique Known by Few

MONTREAL (CP) — Rosette Mociornitza, who came here from Bucharest three years ago, has an artistic talent shared by only a handful of Romanian artists — the 1,000-year-old secret of creating original icon paintings. The religious paintings are done on old wood, usually collected from burned-out buildings, in vegetable colors and gold leaf.

COMMODORE RETIRES

Nostalgia took over Tuesday when Commodore R. V. Henning retired in a colorful ceremony at CFB Esquimalt, handing over the reins as commodore of the base to Captain Godfrey Hayes.

Standing in front of 350 men and officers, assembled on the parade ground to pay him tribute, Henning, obviously moved, said:

"Be proud of your service and your uniform . . . just keep in mind the uniqueness of the career you are embarking on."

Describing service life as vigorous and rewarding, Henning invited them to "come and have a beer and reminisce with me" when they retired.

His final words — "I wish you all fair winds and sailing."

The Naden band played Mancini's Moon River as he sat down at a desk in front of the parade rostrum to complete the certificates that handed over his command to Hayes.

Henning, now 55, has held the dual appointments of base commander and commander technical services, Maritime Command Pacific since January 1969.

Technical services will now come under the command of Capt. Eric Dawson.

Henning is joining a firm of Calgary management consultants and his first assignment may mean spending two weeks in Brazil this spring.

Hayes, who comes from Winnipeg, has been chief of staff logistics and administration, Maritime Command Pacific since November 1969.

UVic Faculty Rejects 'Hierarchial' Report

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Sharp criticism of the report of the Jennings Commission on Academic Governance at University of Victoria has been levelled by the faculty association.

The Jennings report "explicitly rejects" democratic governance of UVic, said faculty association president Dr. John Greene.

"In practice (University of) Victoria tends toward more an authoritarian type" of government, said Greene.

The faculty association wants the university to be democratically run, as many other Canadian universities are, he said.

The faculty association has approved a four-page statement criticizing the Jennings report, which was released in January.

The Jennings commission's main position on university government is "a return to 'good old days' of hierarchical order, with some minor concessions to demand for change," says the statement.

Greene said: "There is a sharp division on campus about the way in which the place is governed . . . The faculty association has been historically the focus of this division of opinion."

"We (UVic) have committees at department level and faculty level . . ." Greene said, "but here you'll find that the decisions of those committees aren't always given much weight."

The Jennings report's recommendation that final authority in each department rest with the administrative head, who should encourage the "consultative process" of discussions and coffee meetings with faculty, is also criticized by the association.

The "consultative process" idea, says the faculty association, "is a type of elitist approach in which power remains in the hands of the chairman who may reveal as much information as he deems necessary."

The association asks for open decision-making at the university, and points out that the Jennings commission recommended that UVic board of governors meetings "be not open."

The commission, headed by dean of graduate studies Dr. Stephen Jennings, was appointed a year ago by UVic president Dr. Hugh Farquhar to report to him on academic governance.

The report outlined some of the problems the university has been having, such as "distrust of academic administrators" and "a major breakdown in the consultative process at the faculty- and university-wide levels."

In its introduction the commission said: "We are under no illusion as to the real cause of the difficulties that we have experienced in recent years.

"Our fundamental problems have not been organization but have been behavioral and in part, ideological."

The faculty association's statement says: "There is more to our situation than can be explained by invoking such easy scapegoats and administrative subterfuges as 'behavioral' and 'ideological' factors."

The association concludes by quoting W. A. S. Smith, past-president of Lethbridge University, who said: "Time consuming or no, there is no substitute for genuine sharing of responsibility, authority, and for full participation in decision-making.

"The answer to the rhetorical question 'Who is in charge here?' which has been derisively addressed to universities of late must be 'Everybody is in charge to a certain extent'."

TIME PAYMENT PROTECTION

Two pieces of legislation designed to protect British Columbians who buy cars, refrigerators or other products on time payments were introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

The principal effect of the amendments to the Conditional Sales Act and the Bills of Sales Act is to ensure that where a purchaser defaults on payments, the company may either reposses the goods or sue the buyer for the amount due. But it may not do both.

"We are saying that it's either seize or sue in the province of British Columbia — but not both," Macdonald told reporters after the bills were given first reading.

He said the present system is totally unfair because the seized items are often sold at "ridiculously low prices," and the purchaser is still sued for the outstanding amount.

The amendments stipulate that where a seller repossesses the goods, the defaulting buyer's obligations under the sales contract are automatically extinguished.

Lang Won't Curb Guns by Red Tape

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday night he will oppose gun control regulations that involve a lot of red tape and harass honest ordinary people unless it can be proven clearly that positive results will occur.

He told the Commons he is quite prepared to consider changes but does not intend to rush into any new restrictions that will unnecessarily hamstring people who want to use firearms for such legitimate purposes as hunting and target practice.

He was responding to Stuart Leggatt (NDP — New Westminster) who has introduced a bill that would place all rifles on the restricted list and require permits before they could be used.

Lan said the bill was typical of the approach taken by the NDP in almost every area — ban everything first, then try to sort the mess out by a lot of red tape procedures.

Oilman Rejects Pollution Charge

WASHINGTON (CP) — The president of the American Petroleum Institute defended oil companies Tuesday against charges they are polluting the environment.

Frank Ikard told a conference on the prevention and control of oil spills that United States petroleum companies have spent $4 billion during the last six years for environmental purposes and said the rate of spending for these purposes has more than doubled in the last two years.

Ikard also said the oil industry now spends "more than $3 million a day, seven days a week, on pollution control and pollution control research."

Newspapers had presented a "less-than-balanced picture" of the risks involved in offshore oil drilling and exploration, Ikard said, adding that of the more than 16,000 wells drilled in U.S. offshore areas, only four had resulted in major oil spills.

"And independent studies have concluded that these spills caused no permanent damage to the environment, although they did temporarily damage beaches and boats, and in some case, resulted in the death of waterfowl."

REPORTS PROGRESS

Ikard also said the oil industry has taken "significant steps" in controlling the discharge of oil into the sea during transportation. The result was that "3.3 million tons of oil each year—oil that might have entered the environment—are kept from polluting the sea."

However, Ikard said the risk of pollution would continue to increase as more gas and oil is transported and refined to meet the growing demand.

He said the U.S. government could help minimize the risk by encouraging the construction of terminals in deep-water areas to accommodate supertankers. "Large tankers can reduce the number of trips necessary to transport the oil that we must have," he said.

U.S. 'Big Stick' Protested

By CHARLES GREEN

PANAMA (AP) — The flags of both Panama and the United States fly in the Panama Canal Zone. The symbolism is lost on Panamanian leaders who see a kind of colonialism and "big stick" diplomacy in U.S. dominance of the ground from which the Panama Canal was gouged 60 years ago.

Panama will impress this viewpoint this week on members of the UN Security Council, which is meeting here at Panama's invitation.

The Canal Zone is a strip of land 10 miles wide at this country's waist. Panama proper is on both sides.

The strip came under U.S. rule in 1903 when a treaty was signed with the 15-day-old Panamian republic giving Washington full and perpetual sovereignty over the zone.

Panama originally received $110 million and $250,000 a year, but the annual payment has since been raised to $1.9 million.

AGGRAVATES RELATIONS

The treaty has aggravated relations between the U.S. and Panama for years. It resulted in anti-U.S. rioting in 1956 and again in 1964 when 26 persons were killed.

Since last June negotiations between the two countries have gone on, tapering off somewhat during the U.S. presidential campaign.

Brig.-Gen. Omar Torrijos, who has dictatorial power under Panama's new constitution, has pegged much of his appeal on the question of sovereignty over the zone.

Torrijos says ouster of the U.S. is "the only religion uniting all Panamanians."

Two main areas of negotiations that remain to be solved are U.S. contentions that it retain the right to operate and defend the canal and the right to either improve the existing waterway or build a new one if needed for larger ships.

Although Panamanians oppose the U.S. presence on nationalistic grounds, their antagonism can also be traced back to economic differences between their republic and the U.S. zone.

Most of the 50,000 Americans in the zone work for the armed forces on one of the 14 military installations. About 3,850 civilians are employed by the Panama Canal Co. or the zone government. Both bodies also have about 10,850 employees, most Panamanians.

Life in the zone is easier, cheaper and more comfortable. Most supervisory personnel are U.S. citizens.

The zone has its own police force and U.S. courts.

Torrijos claims that 40,000 U.S. troops are not needed for protecting the canal and has said he wants them out. U.S. sources have said he probably will agree to a reduction of military.

Few persons expect the U.S. will give up protection or operation of the canal.

DAMSELS IN DISTRESS were Linda Morrel and Tina Roosevelt, both five years old, who went for a walk in a puddle in Brantford, Ont. They got that sinking feeling, and couldn't move, until nine-year-olds Roy Hornsby and Shawn McKinnon came to the rescue. The only casualty was one lost boot.

Parole Ban Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Corrections Association today strongly opposed a proposal under which long mandatory prison terms would replace the death penalty for murders.

In a brief to a Senate committee the association, a national group dedicated to promoting better administration of justice, said the opportunity for parole should never be denied a prisoner.

The association apparently was referring to an announcement by two Liberal MPs that they will propose substitution of a 25-year sentence without parole for hanging sometime during the Commons capital punishment debate which has been suspended for some time.

The government has proposed an extension of the ban on capital punishment except for the killers of prison guards and police on duty that expired Dec. 31.

A proposal for at least a 25-year prison term has been offered by Marcel Prud'homme (Montreal St. Denis) and James Fleming (York West).

IN PUBLIC INTEREST

The association, which said parole is in the interest of the public and the offender because "it can never be predicted with any certainty that a particular individual cannot be rehabilitated, and experience has shown that some of the most unpromising cases have adapted successfully."

"Also, to deprive a person of all hopes of release is to remove the incentive to try to adapt, and such a person may see his only sensible course in escape and, since he has nothing to lose, he may be tempted to use violence in effecting his escape."

The brief recommended some changes in the parole system to simplify it and increase its flexibility, and joined others who have appeared before the committee in seeking decentralization of the parole system under which there would be regional parole boards.

Department's Work Cut, Pay Steady

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of full-time employees in the veterans affairs department has dropped sharply in the last 10 years to 9,726 from 13,087, but salaries have not.

In a written reply to Commons questions, Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald reported Monday that as of last Jan. 1 there were 265 employees drawing salaries above $20,000. Ten years earlier there were only two employees in this bracket.

The number of employees earning between $10,000 and $20,000 rose to 1,215 from 431 in the same 10-year period. Those earning less than $10,000 declined to 8,246 from 12,654.

In the finance department the number of full-time employees increased to 548 from 486 in the 10 years and the number earning above $20,000 rose to 80 from one.

The questions were asked by Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton Centre).

12-Point Senate Reform Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — "Reform or perish," Senator David Croll (L-Ontario) told his Senate companions Tuesday night.

The public has virtually forgotten the Senate, he warned, and if the Senate fails to reform itself from within in the near future "it will only be a matter of time" before it is abolished.

Croll outlined a 12-point plan he designed to reform the Senate. The plan would increase the size of the Senate, lower the retirement age to 70 from 75, abolish tenure for senior senators and substantially reduce the Senate's veto power.

Above all, Croll said, his program would grant the Senate more independence from the government and cabinet and "cut the unbilical cord with the House of Commons."

SETS LIMIT

One of his recommendations would limit the number of supporters of any one political party to two-thirds of Senate membership. There are now 74 Liberal senators, 17 Conservatives and four others. Seven of the 102 seats are vacant.

Another recommendation would provide for election of the Senate Speaker, Opposition and government leaders by the senators themselves and impose an age limit of 65 years for all three. Senator Croll also advocates removal of the government leader of the Senate from his cabinet post and the appointment of a senator as a minister without portfolio to provide liaison with the government.

Senator Croll also called for the creation of a standing committee on miscellaneous Canadian affairs with more than a dozen sub-committees to consider such topics as youth, aging, provincial and regional affairs, pollution and foreign ownership.

Another recommendation, increased representation of minority groups in the Senate, has long been overdue, the senator said.

Senator Croll said an elected Senate would be a disaster, as it would prompt a confrontation in Parliament between two elected bodies. Abolition of the Senate would force its replacement by some other body.

Other recommendations in the Croll program are:

- An age limit of 65 years for chairmen of Senate standing committees and only one chairmanship for any senator.
- Rotation of government and Opposition leaders in the Senate each year.
- Enlargement of the Senate to 130 members, including two senators each from the Northwest Territories and the Yukon and increased representation in the West. The constitution now allows for 102 members from provinces only.
- Automatic passage of a Commons-approved bill no less than six months after amendment or rejection by the Senate. Or, if after six months, the Senate has not completed consideration of a bill, the Commons would have the right to make it law.

Senator Croll's plan would enable retired senators to participate in Senate debates and committees without voting rights. It would also permit senators retired retroactively by lowered retirement ages to collect their $18,000 annual salary and fringe benefits including their pension until they reached normal retirement age under existing laws.

Smoke Firm Admits Error In Ads

MONTREAL (CP) — Benson and Hedges Canada Ltd. pleaded guilty in criminal court Tuesday to two charges of misleading advertising during a 10-month period in 1969 and 1970.

The firm advertised that certifies worth up to $25,000 could be found in packages of Belvedere cigarettes.

packages of Belvedere cigarettes.

Federal prosecutor L. P. Landry said the company had a $1,474,885 promotional budget for the period between September, 1969, and June, 1970, during which three awards of $25,000 and 39 of $2,500 were made.

Landry said that there was never more than one $25,000 certificate in circulation at any time. A new one would be put into circulation only when one turned up.

Only four of 20 Canadian regions were covered, he said, but advertising continued in areas where there was no chance for the $25,000 prize.

CRASH TOLL 45

ANTOFAGASTA, Chile (UPI) — The toll in Chile's worst traffic accident rose to 45 today with the deaths of 10 more persons. Authorities said many of the 70 persons injured in the crash were unlikely to survive.

The accident occurred Monday night on a narrow highway about 80 miles east of this port city when a bus headed toward Santiago smashed head-on into a bus travelling to the nearby Chuquicamata copper mine.

$ EFFECTS 'INDIRECT'

OTTAWA (CP) — Decisions taken at the monetary conference in Paris last weekend do not have "any direct, immediate consequences for Canada," Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons Tuesday on his return from the international meetings.

However, he said the decisions would be helpful in reducing the speculative pressures that have been affecting certain exchange rates.

"By permitting the exchange rate system to react more directly to fundamental market forces, the decisions will set the stage for the basic reforms that are required," he added.

Turner will return to the Paris conference when it resumes Friday. At that time there will be discussions of certain possibilities of co-operation between the European countries and others.

"We still no doubt discuss plans for expediting work now in train on the over-all reform of the monetary system" said the minister.

The conference was split into two sessions to allow the French elections to be completed.

Turner said that given Canada's great stake in foreign trade the federal government felt it was urgent to re-establish a calm orderly international monetary regime. He said he would participate actively in the international discussions and decisions directed to this objective.

"This is a difficult time with respect to international trade and payments and much work lies ahead," he said.

JFK's Aides Draw Crowd to Trial

WASHINGTON POST

LOS ANGELES — This is Camelot week at the trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo Jr.

The curious of Los Angeles, many of whom have paid little attention to the "Pentagon Papers Trial" until now, have been flocking to the federal courthouse, filling every court room seat and even spilling out into the hall way, eager to have a glimpse and hear a few words at a gathering of the famous men from the Kennedy White House.

They look a bit older — McGeorge Bundy, Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and John Kenneth Galbraith (Ted Sorensen is yet to come) — but they can still tell some appealing stories in conjuring up the good old days.

There is Bundy, telling how he controlled the flow of paper to John F. Kennedy; Schlessinger, recalling that the president's door was always open in the evening; and Galbriath, relating that his advice was far more relevant than that which came from the state department bureaucrats.

Sometimes it is a little frustrating for the star witnesses, who are quite accustomed to talking when and as they please.

U.S. District Court Judge W. Matt Byrne Jr. prevented Galbraith from telling the jury about the top-secret information he leaked to the press while he was ambassador to India. He wouldn't let Bundy talk about "statutes," and he stopped them all from expressing the view that release of the Pentagon papers was of great "advantage" to the American public.

The parade of witnesses serves different purposes for different parties to this congroversial case.

There is, above all, a fundamental distinction between the strategies of the prosecution and defence attorneys in dealing with the charges of conspiracy, espionage and theft of government property.

While chief prosecutor David R. Nissen used only two military witnesses to discuss the disputed relationship to the "national defence" of the 20 top-secret documents involved in the indictment against Ellsberg and Russo, the defence is bringing in separate testimony on each document — sometimes two or three witnesses on a single volume.

Galbraith is concedely not the country's greatest current expert on "national defence" issues, but since he was once sent to Vietnam by President Kennedy to evaluate the "strategic hamlet" program, he, for example, is presented as a qualified commentation on the volume discussing that subject.

Defence strategists hope that the jury will be impressed with the views of men who were once at the centre of power that disclosure of the documents could not have aided any foreign nation's intelligence establishment.

For Nissen with his unrelenting cross-examination is showing that the defence is substituting glamor for substance.

He demanded, for example, that Galbraith define the difference between "substantial" and "insubstantial" military damage. The economics professor was ultimately unable to answer, blurting out in exasperation that "many things cannot be defined, Mr. Nissen, but they still convey meaning."

For the witnesses, this is a unique opportunity to explain themselves and their past actions on the public record.

Schlesinger, after he left the witness stand on Tuesday, confided to a reporter that he was "a bit disappointed with the brevity of my testimony"; but still he had an opportunity to explain that Kennedy, on the basis of his advice and others, would have withdrawn American forces from Vietnam.

Bundy used the chance to say that he still believed that his policy recommendations — including the "reprisal bombing" of North Vietnam — had been sound, but that he understood why others disagreed "passionately."

U.S. REPORT SHOWS CAR PRICE GAP WIDER

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party complaints that Canadian-made cars cost 10 per cent more here than in the United States received strong support from an unexpected quarter Tuesday.

Conservative Terry O'Connor (Halton) made public in the Commons an annual report to the United States Congress on the result of the 1965 Canada-U.S. auto pact. It showed that although the price gap had closed between 1965 and 1971, this trend had been reversed in 1972.

Mr. O'Connor said the report had not yet been made public in the U.S.

The report indicated that Canadian wholesale prices in 1972 on a typical eight-cylinder sedan was 10.9 per cent more than in the U.S. The 1971 differential was 9.9 per cent, the 1970 gap 12.9 per cent and the 1965 difference 18.5 per cent.

The Conservative MP, whose riding includes the auto-manufacturing centre of Oakville, Ont., said "the government knows the tools and persuasive devices available to it to put some muscle into its requests of the companies that they reduce or limit further increases in prices.

DISTURBED BY REPORT

He also was disturbed by use in the report of the word transitional to describe safeguards negotiated into the pact to protect Canadian interests.

The report said the U.S. tried to have the transitional restrictions removed in 1971 without success. They were termed "obstacles to full realization of agreement objectives."

The U.S. report clearly stole some of the thunder from an NDP motion by Ed Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) that called for removal of a 15-per-cent duty on cars imported by individuals from the U.S., so Canadians could cross the border to buy vehicles.

Canadians now were paying $250 to $300 more for the same models because of "excessive profiteering," he said.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said he is not satisfied with the price gaps—which he estimated at 8.5 to nine per cent—but added that the difference will narrow. Canadian manufacturers are committed to a freeze on prices on their next models and U.S. buyers will have to pay an additional three per cent, he said.

QUEBEC VISIT SLATED

Sixty students in the Victoria area will be among 6,000 high school students across Canada participating in week-long interprovincial exchange visits this summer.

The "Young Voyageur" program, initiated by the federal government in 1964, sponsors exchanges between groups of 20 students with costs shared between the federal government, the provincial government and the host communities which billet and entertain students.

Two groups from Greater Victoria will be headed for Vaudreuil and Rouyn-Noranda in Quebec and a third group, from the three outlying school districts, will visit Timmins, Ontario for a week.

The students, mostly from Grade 11, are chosen by a local selection committee usually made up of principals, teachers and students in each school.

"It's not prize for good academic performance," according to Phillip Kitley, provincial co-ordinator for the program.

He said students "with a positive attitude, likely to profit from travel and who are prepared to co-operate on the trip" are choosen.

The criteria for choosing students includes consideration of the opportunity they have had previously to travel in Canada.

Most of the B.C. exchanges have been with Quebec and Kitley said he believes through the program "Anglo-French relationships have been helped more than anything else we're doing."

He said the exchanges, which were originally meant to end in 1967 after the centennial celebrations, hope to help students "find out what it's like to live in another part of Canada."

House Prices

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ald. Mike Harcourt said house prices here have increased more than 50 per cent between 1968 and 1972.

Harcourt heads a newly-restructured housing committee, and said the committee's primary purpose will be to seek a solution to the problems of wage earners drawing between $5,000 and $12,000 annually, who cannot afford to adequately house their families.

Germans, Canadians Join In Probing Sea's Secrets

HALIFAX (CP) — Sea trials are taking place in nearby Bedford for sophisticated West German equipment designed to collect data from the sea.

The equipment is mounted on a Canadian-developed underwater vehicle and the two together are expected to revolutionize the speed at which the sea's secrets are probed.

The project, a joint German-Canadian undertaking, marks new collaboration between scientists of the two countries since the signing of a bilateral science and technology agreement in 1971.

Dr. Clive Mason, a geophysicist who is head of the meteorology division of the Bedford Institute of Oceanography, leads the 12-member team who are installing the German equipment on the Canadian vehicle.

Dr. Mason says the co-operation by scientists of both countries is designed to avoid duplication in research and specific projects with the help of a prompt exchange of information.

"We will find out if international collaboration is economical," he said in an interview. "It shows signs of succeeding."

One of the specific items of interest, designed and developed in Canada, for the current testing is Batfish, the name given for an underwater vehicle developed by the institute.

Batfish is a streamlined body which can be towed by a surface ship and reaches underwater speeds up to 14 knots. It ranges from the surface to depths of 200 metres and may be controlled from the surface ship.

Says Dr. Mason: "We are putting the unit together . . . to see if it holds together underwater . . . and if it works."

The scientists hope to evaluate the equipment by this summer so it can be used to study estuarine circulation in the mouth of the Saguenay River.

Higher Rates Seen as Power Saver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of B.C. ecologist Tuesday proposed increased electrical utility rates as a means of reducing the demand of electricity.

Prof. Ian E. Efford said he would also reverse electrical rate structures so that poor people would pay less for power and the rich would pay more.

Efford, of UBC's Institute of Resource Ecology, presented his plan to delegates at a Canadian Electrical Association Convention.

George Barnett, B.C. Hydro's rates and costs manager, questioned whether the scheme would work.

Efford said the increasing demand for more and more energy is caused mainly by increased per capita use, rather than population increase.

"Until recently, it has been assumed that energy is the elixir of the good life and that any costs associated with its production, transportation and generation are justifiable," he said.

"Even now, in some circles people still believe it is heresy to suggest that we might not ned all this energy."

Efford said he challenges the assumption in recent energy reports that an increased power supply is a good thing because it is linked with an increased gross national product and hence a higher living standard.

He said no one seems to be asking whether an increased GNP could be achieved with less energy if it were used efficiently, or whether the GNP really is related to the quality of life.

"I hope you will agree that our present growth in energy use is unnecessarily high, and that it is imposing environmental as well as social and economic costs on society that are not outweighed by the marginal advantages we gain," he said. "If so, then the simplest solution is to reduce the demand."

Efford said this can be done by increasing rates generally.

He said industrial and commercial rates should be boosted in such a way as to emphasize the supply of energy to job-intensive industries rather than energy-intensive industries.

"When dealing with household consumption rates, we should stop penalizing the poor by charging them more as under the present structure, and instead reverse the structure to reduce consumption and at the same time, help the less fortunate members of our society."

BEEF PRICES DOWN? NOT FOR A WHILE

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Gordon Parkes, vice-president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said Tuesday the law of supply and demand could dictate a drop in the price of beef, but he doesn't see this happening for several years.

Parkes told the annual general meeting of the association that the price cycle is on the upswing now as the per capita consumption continues to rise. He said as long as there is a weak supply, beef prices can be expected to go up.

But cattlemen now are beginning to build up their herds and this could influence the supply in three or four years, he said.

Researchers to Confer In Acupuncture Study

VANCOUVER (CP) — A committee set up to study acupuncture standards for British Columbia will hold discussions with an Ontario researcher in the next two weeks, Dr. Leonard C. Jenkins, committee chairman, said Tuesday.

Jenkins said talks will be held with Dr. W. E. Spoerel, head of the anaesthesia department, University of Western Ontario. Spoerel has been doing controlled studies into the effects of acupuncture as a pain-killer.

Jenkins, head of anaesthesia at Vancouver General Hospital and a University of B.C. professor, said the committee wants to assess acupuncture as a pain-killer but not in its other use as therapeutic treatment.

He said therapeutic acupuncture seems to be "very unsound ground compared to the firm ground of therapeutic western medicine."

Jenkins said the study should be conducted in a hospital under proper medical supervision.

Possible places would be the Vancouver General Hospital, the B.C. Cancer Institute and the Rheumatism and Arthritic Centre.

The committee was set up by Health Minister Dennis Cocke. He said standards should be set for acupuncturists.

An invitation to China to send experts in the technique was declined by the Chinese embassy in Ottawa. It said western fascination for acupuncture is so great at the moment that actual results might be considered anticlimatic.

Elevator Silos Explode

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — An explosion today blew the tops off three concrete grain elevator silos at Burrard Terminals.

An RCMP spokesman said there were no injuries in the explosion. There were six men working in an adjacent building.

The spokesman said a small fire that followed the explosion was quickly extinguished. The silos contained pellets of compressed grain.

Cause was not known but the RCMP said it was "probably spontaneous combustion."

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The editorial representative of a subsidy publisher will be in Victoria in April. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication by Carlton Press, Inc., well-known New York publishing firm. All subjects will be considered including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, drama, religion, philosophy etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to the representative (address below) for a free reading and evaluation. He will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

Strike Starts

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Non-teaching employees of the Price George school district went on strike Tuesday night after meeting a visiting official of the International Union of Operating Engineers (IUOE).

Talks between the union and school board broke down on the isue of salaries for office workers. Classes are to go ahead as usual with supervisory staff preparing to help keep the buildings clean.

Container Pier

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dillingham Corporation Canada Ltd. has been awarded a $10,796,016 contract to build the first phase of container facilities at the port of Vancouver. This stage is to be completed by early 1974.

School to Close

BURNABY (CP) — Willingdon school for girls, built in 1939, will be closed March 31, but no decision has been made on future use of the property, a rehabilitation department spokesman said Tuesday.

Pair Jailed

Vancouver (CP) — Robert Gideon, 24, and his wife, Freda, 20, were sentenced to jail Tuesday after they were convicted of trafficking in marijuana near Stanley Park Aug. 17, 1971. Gideon, who admitted a previous record, was sentenced to five years in jail, his wife one.

Mismanagement

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A member of the Coqualeetza Resource Centre advisory board has accused the federal health and welfare department of deliberately mismanaging the centre in the Sardis area. Don Rochester told the township council the government has frustrated at every turn the efforts of Indians to organize effective programs for the centre.

Compete With U.S.

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The chief of the grading section of Agriculture Canada wants beef growers to compete with U.S. growers for the restaurant, hotel and institution market. Gerry Locking told the annual meeting of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association that by 1980 Canadians will spend 30 per cent of their food dollar eating out. He said purveyors of Canadian products are trying to swing the market away from American beef, often seen as superior by restaurant operators.

Never Dive Alone

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the death of Manfred Fillmore Payer, 32, recommended that no scuba diver ever dive alone. The jury ruled that Payer died by drowning Dec. 20, when he became entangled in fish netting.

Betting Charge

RICHMOND (CP) — Irving Feller, 59, of Vancouver, is to appear March 21 on a charge of operating a common betting house. Police allege Feller took bets on horse races and National Hockey League games. The charge followed a March 7 raid on a warehouse.

This ad is for people who don't rent cars.

Avis has a new flat daily rate that can save you up to 45% over our '72 rates. Read how this radical development changed these people's ideas about transportation. It could change yours too.

The business man who usually takes cabs.

Donald Morrison, company president. Donald does a lot of flying in the course of his business. But when he used to arrive at his destination, he'd always take a limousine downtown, use cabs to go from meeting to meeting. Then when it was time to go home, he'd take another limousine back to the airport. But then Donald heard about the Avis flat daily rate. It didn't take him too long to figure out the savings. On his most recent trip, he rented a sparkling new Plymouth Fury III for one day, drove himself downtown, did 79 miles and paid just $15 plus gas. That's all. Think about it.

1 day and 79 miles for just $15 plus gas. $15

Bob and Peggy Byron live in a big city high-rise. Weekdays, Bob and Peggy use public transportation.

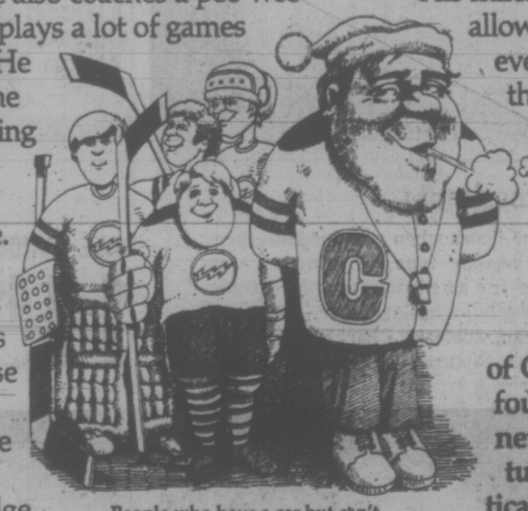
But at weekends it's another story because they're ski enthusiasts. They used to take the bus or the train to get to the slopes—until they heard about the Avis flat weekend rate. Then...bingo! They realized they could pick up a sparkling new Plymouth Satellite with ski racks on Friday noon, keep it until Monday 9 am and drive all the miles they wanted to for just $28 and gas! (That's 2½ days for the price of two). Now they're regular Avis renters. Shouldn't you be?

2½ days and 420 miles for just $28 plus gas. $28

John Pinkham has a nice new car of his own...but he also coaches a pee-wee hockey team that plays a lot of games in distant arenas. He used to go to all the trouble of organizing car pools until he heard about the Avis flat daily rate. Then he realized that a roomy Avis station wagon was the answer because it was affordable!

Last game he packed the whole team in a big Dodge Polara Station Wagon, drove 36 miles to the opposition arena, won the game and drove back for just $18 and gas. Shouldn't you be scoring too?

1 day and 72 miles for just $18 plus gas. $18



People who have a car but can't always get everything in it.

Ron Hearnden is on the sales force of a big company. He has his own four-year-old compact which he used to drive on all his calls. Then he heard about the Avis flat daily rate with no mileage charge. Ron very quickly figured that driving a sparkling new Avis car on those long trips made a lot more sense than using the family car.

On his last trip, he made seven calls, logged 410 miles and kept the Plymouth Duster for two days for just $26 plus gas.

The travelling salesman who needs a bigger car from time to time.

2 days and 410 miles for just $26 plus gas. $26

The point is, thousands of Canadians like these have found out about the great new Avis flat daily rate which turns car renting into a practical, affordable, everyday solution to their transportation needs.

'No Need for Apology' If Mining Nationalized

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government should feel no need to apologize if it decides to take over private mining operations in the province, government backbencher Cy Gonick said Monday.

Speaking during estimates debate in the legislature, Gonick, the member for Crescentwood, said mining concerns have grown rich over the years by making "super-profits" at the expense of Manitobans.

"The mining companies have been confiscating the wealth of the province of Manitoba for years," he said.

Stiff Rental Rules Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — Large legal gaps resulting from the current rental boom will have to be filled by provincial and federal legislation, says D. E. Cameron of Fredericton, president of the Rental Association of Canada.

The association is becoming concerned that its 150 members are not adequately protected from dishonest renters who do not return rental equipment, he said.

Reports Confidential

EDMONTON (CP) — Health Minister Neil Crawford denied a report from a medical convention that there is widespread distribution of psychiatric reports on patients to social workers and other non-medical personnel.

The minister told the legislature there appeared to have been an incident in which a confidential case report on a patient prepared by a team of specialists was distributed outside the range of people directly responsible for the treatment of the patient. However, this incident was "unique" and didn't occur again, Crawford said.

Welfare Subsidy Sought

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer said he has asked the federal government to assume any additional welfare costs that result from a recent change in the Canada Manpower Program.

The change gives persons receiving unemployment insurance benefits preference over welfare recipients in enrolling in manpower programs.

Liability Increase Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — The $35,000 minimum public liability insurance required of Alberta drivers is the lowest in Canada and should be increased to $50,000, says a report tabled in the legislature.

The Alberta Insurance Board's report said an increase to $50,000 would make Alberta consistant with other provinces and "consistant with the trend of increasing coverage for damages arising from automobile injuries."

3 Per Cent Fail to Meet Standards

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Three per cent of the batches of drugs tested to date under Ottawa's voluntary drug quality assessment program (QUAD) failed to meet minimum government standards and have since been withdrawn, destroyed or impounded, Health Minister Marc Lalonde revealed Tuesday.

The three per cent of drugs that failed included 22 generic types and 37 brands of what a senior health offcial described as some of the "most midely-prescribed, medically-important, single entity" drugs marketed.

The failures include two brands of digoxin and three brands of digotoxin, two related heart drugs for which dosage is extremely critical;

—Six brands of chlordiazepoxide, one brand of meprobromate, one brand of imipramine and one brand of trifluorperazine, all leading tranqualizers;

—One brand of diethylstilbestrol, the controversial hormone drug being used as a "morning after" pill;

—And one brand of the antibiotic tetracyline.

The three per cent failure rate uncovered by the testing contrasts with the one per cent failure rate quoted regularly by federal health officials before the QUAD program as having been uncovered by routine regulatory monitoring and tests.

If the first rounds of the QUAD program are any indication, three of four times as many sub-standard drugs may in fact have been getting on the market in recent years than federal officials were actually identifying.

The QUAD standards are in effect the minimum quality standards allowed under the Food and Drugs Act.

Lalonde said Tuesday he hopes to make the names of the manufacturers of all the failed drugs public.

Minister Defends Drug Testing

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's quality assessment of drugs program — commonly called Quad — is "one of the best of its type in the world" and Health Minister Marc Lalonde says he's prepared "to take whatever action is necessary to ensure that achievement of its goals is not thwarted."

In a 17-page statement on drug quality and the quad program, released Tuesday, the minister said the program was planned to reduce drug costs.

And he indicated that the government, contrary to some recent criticisms, is prepared to put some muscle into making it possible for provincial governments and other bulk purchasers to get savings.

"A key element in reducing the price of drugs was the need to demonstrate to the health professions and bulk purchasers that drug brands of comparable quality but lower prices are available," he said. The program was set up to show this, starting with the 200 most-commonly-prescribed prescription drugs.

However, because there now is a "lack of co-operation" by large multi-national pharmaceutical companies to have their facilities evaluated voluntarily, the government "is considering other means" to ensure that the programs of quality drugs at lower costs are met, the minister said.

The statement was issued because of criticisms by newspapers, it said.

"So far as we are aware, no other country has a national drug-testing program comparable to the Quad program," the minister said in the statement.

As well, it has received the strong support of provincial governments and its results are being used by four provinces, he said.

Lalonde then discussed seven "issues" that had been raised concerning the program, and gave the department's views on these.

Statements that life-and-death drugs are available with only minimal testing were "unfounded," he said.

However, the primary responsibility for drug quality rests with the manufacturers and not the government, he said.

DON'T SHRINK

"Conscientious manufacturers do not, of course, shrink from accepting this responsibility, and stand behind the quality of their products."

But Canada monitors the pharmaceutical industry to ensure that essential standards are met, he said.

"No other country exercises more careful or stringent controls over drug safety and effectiveness."

On the "issue" of whether a patient could die if the effects to one drug were not identical to another for which it was substituted, Lalonde said that there are instances where exactly identical effects were important, but that these were "less frequent than might be expected."

Such drugs were always under a physician's direction and he was able to determine whether such effects might occur.

But such exceptions did not rule out the fact that most drugs could be switched, with considerable savings, he said.

Although the program cannot guarantee equivalence — that a drug will have exactly the same effect in the body — it does provide the kind of data that enables doctors to make wise clinical judgments, the minister said.

"Much of the information on drug quality available to physicians comes from representatives of the major drug companies who provide information which can hardly be considered objective and unbiased."

The statement comes following an announcement last week that the department is prepared to make much more information about drugs and their testingpublic.

Until the decision, the policy had been that much of this information would not be made available unless the manufacturer wanted it so.

Height Trimmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The justice department has ruled that local police departments must eliminate most height requirements or lose their Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grants. The announcement by Attorney-General Richard Kleindienst should open up police employment to more short Americans, especially those of Japanese and Mexican ancestry who had taken the lead in protesting height requirements, an administration spokesman said.

Housefly Doomed?

TORONTO (CP) — Two University of Toronto chemists say they have developed an artificial hormone which stimulates male houseflies so much that they eventually exhaust themselves and have no further interest in or energy for sex.

The chemists, in a report released by the University Tuesday, said some tests showed that whole colonies of houseflies practically ceased to exist, because of the hormone — which they say is ecologically safe.

The chemists said the artificial hormone causes the males to mate indiscriminately. They attack other males and fertilized females.

Otto Meresz, one of the hormone's developers, said he and his colleague, graduate student Cecilia Mozsgai, have applied for patents and are exploring marketing opportunities.

He said the chemical is easy and inexpensive to produce and could be of great benefit, particularly in warm countries where houseflies are disease-carriers.

He said the synthetic hormone was recently tested on colonies of houseflies in co-operation with researchers at Queen's University, led by B. N. Smallman.

In laboratory tests, the flies rubbed off their wings with their hind legs — and activity associated with sexual excitement — and died in about two weeks.

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS past traditional retirement age of 65 is Ontario resident Benjamin Sherman, who celebrated his 102nd birthday this week and decided he would still not give up working an eight-hour routine in his Toronto hardware store, six days a week. Wishing him happy returns on his birthday was customer Iris Dunfield, who lives near the store.

Blaming Emotions 'Prejudicial Act'

BOSTON (AP) — When a woman gets nauseous during pregnancy or suffers cramps during menstruation, some doctors are likely to dismiss it as an "emotional thing" instead of treating the cause, a doctors' report contends.

These doctors may be guilty of sexist prejudice against women, the study says, when they attribute psychological causes to ailments which are known to have organic causes.

In a report in the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Jean Lennane and Dr. John Lennane say they have studied medical literature, including textbooks, and found the "cloudy thinking" involving women's medical problems "may be due to a form of sexual prejudice."

The report, done at Wellington Hospital in Wellington, New Zealand, says, for example, that the cause of menstrual pain is unknown, but depends upon the occurrence of ovulation.

Studies have shown that the pain is relieved with suppression of ovulation through hormone treatment.

The report says some medical textbooks include statements that the menstrual pain is caused by "faulty outlook . . . leading to an exaggeration of minor discomfort" or "the pain is always secondary to an emotional problem."

"There is no valid basis for this attitude," the study said.

The cause of nausea during pregnancy is unknown, but medical texts say it is probably due to secretion of some substance, probably a hormone, during pregnancy.

Green Valleys Need Saving for All Our Tomorrows

elizabeth forbes

I was born and grew up in Victoria. My maternal grandparents were pioneers in the North Okanagan. My father came here from Scotland as a young man of 18. My roots go deep in this province.

All of which gives me the right to speak when its a matter of saving our rich valley lands for today, tomorrow and all tomorrows.

I'm talking, of course, of the proposed Land Commission Act, before the Legislature at present.

Why on earth does such an important piece of legislation have to become so emotionally charged? Why is it being turned into a political football? It is kicked around by some, inside and outside the House, with little thought of the end result — only the power play.

Why does a seemingly responsible group like the B.C. Federation of Agriculture come up with such an unimaginative (and potentially explosive) idea as a march on the Legislature Buildings, to point up their wish to see the bill amended?

Why does Derril Warren, leader of an opposition party with only two sitting members, come out with the strange suggestion that minister of agriculture Dave Stupidh, resign and debate the issue with him on the hustings?

These are questions people like myself — hundreds of us — are asking, over and over again.

My own opinion is that a march, such as the one planned for tomorrow, proves nothing, gives nothing. Unless it is an opportunity to be photographed, wave placards and to grin for benefit of the cameras.

And, even if it is billed as being peaceful and non-militant, there is bound to be one person (perhaps more than one) ready and willing to turn such a demonstration into a brawl.

There always are and always will be people like that. It is to be hoped they do not get an opportunity to perform on Thursday.

As for Warren's suggestion that Stupich resign. I am pleased to see the minister of agriculture has dubbed it "ridiculous."

I did not vote for the present government. Nevertheless, I firmly believe in the present instance, it is trying to do something that municipal governments in our province should have had the courage to do, long ago.

I remember my grandfather's ranch in what was the Pleasant Valley, between Armstrong and Vernon, in North Okanagan.

That valley had such rich soil it grew grain, fruit and vegetables in abundance.

Today, because of lack in planning and of guidelines which would have pushed urban development up onto less-productive ridges and hills, that valley is nothing but a mish-mash of machinery, automobiles, a few homes and some lack-lustre business holdings.

I remember the Fraser Valley when cows stood knee-deep in clover, from the Delta to Chilliwack. When tomatoes, and other vegetables and luscious grapes were grown all along the way.

Today, much of that good land has disappeared. Developers have edged in and the rich soil has been sliced into small lots and covered with urban-type houses.

Visual evidence of an insidious form of pollution that has been allowed to spread because of lack of planning and lack of strong guide lines.

Come closer to home and look at the Saanich Peninsula. I remember a day, not so long ago, when all the fertile valley land out there was green and lush.

When gracious homes in treed grounds, surrounded by acreage that grew almost any foods you care to name and, at the same time, easily supported domestic animal life, were commonplace.

Today, look anywhere from Royal Oak to Sidney and beyond to Land's End, and you'll see the mark of the developer on the Peninsula.

Basically the proposed act is sound. It is definitely geared to end the rape of what is left of this province's fertile farm land.

I hope in debating it and proposing any amendments, opposition members will conduct themselves as statesmen, not small town politicians.

I hope they work constructively to help Dave Stupich, not crucify him.

That they think responsibly and envision the land as in trust for tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow.

Is that too much to ask?

Made-in-Moscow Garb On Stage in Mill Town

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (WP) — The first Russian fashions ever bought by a North American department store have arrived, of all places, in this steel-mill town of 110,000.

It may come as a surprise to those who think there are more squares in Russia than just the one known as "Red," but two of the dresses have see-through tops. Beyond that, though, they aren't likely to show North American designers — or customers — much that's unusual.

Hess', the Allentown department store long known for its avant-garde, if sometimes controversial, tastes in foreign-made fashions recently received four made-in Moscow evening outfits.

"When I saw these dresses, worn with no bras, it really flipped me out," said Yvonne Burbage, Hess' fashion co-ordinator, who first spotted the clothes at a show in Moscow a month ago. "I didn't think they would do it."

The Russians apparently did a little flipping themselves. Hess' eagerness to buy caught the Russians so by surprise that it took them four days to decide on a price and a month to decide who the designers were.

"Later, when we were in Rome for the Italian couture showings, they telexed us a lump sum for all four ensembles," reported Max Levine, the store's public-relations director who accompanied Miss Burbage on her mission to Moscow.

Hess' didn't attempt to negotiate the price but, instead, wired right back the necessary money, apparently about $1,200.

In view of all that, Allentown women are in for still another surprise: Hess' isn't particularly interested in selling the clothes, thank you.

"We don't think in terms of selling these clothes but in terms of exciting or educating the audience," said Irwin Greenberg, Hess' vice-president and general merchandise manager, whose idea it was to go to Russia in the first place.

Greenberg describes Hess' foreign couture purchases (there are also about 40 pieces from Israel, Greece and Italy in the current batch) as "showpieces."

"We never buy anything abroad just because it costs less, but because it's different," he said.

This particular group of Russian "showpieces" may leave something to be desired from the standpoint of good fashion. Fabrics — a silk-like rayon, chiffon and a scratch wool crepe — strike American eyes as almost sleazy. And the styles are likely to seem more contrived than creative to designers.

Queen of All Europe Role for Elizabeth?

LONDON (CP) — An expert on royal history raises the posssibility that one day the Queen might be head of a federal Europe while Prince Charles takes over the British throne.

Hugh Montgomery-Massingberd, youthful editorial director of Burke's Peerage Ltd., which publishes a string of genealogical reference books, dismisses the sometimes-aired theory that the Queen may abdicate simply to let Charles take the reins before he reaches middle age.

"But I can envisage her abdicating to become head of a federal Europe, while Prince Charles becomes King of England," he said in an interview in his functional office, its shelves lined with fat red volumes of Burke's genealogies going back to 1845.

Montgomery-Massingberd, tall, fresh-complexioned 26-year-old of Ulster descent whose ancestors ironically include a fervent anti-royalist knighted by Oliver Cromwell, touches on the sovereignty issue in the preface to the new Burke's Guide to the Royal Family, published to mark the 21st anniversary of the Queen's accession in 1952.

An informative compendium of pedigrees, current royal biographies and views of the monarchy by leading historians, it is the first of a new series of Burke's genealogical guides to different sections of the aristocracy planned to replace the present bulging volume covering royalty, peers, knights and baronets.

The old-style publication was becoming unwieldy, its editor explains, because of a "nobility explosion" caused by the large number of life peerages bestowed in the last 10 years.

In the preface to the royalty guide, Montgomery-Massingberd says cautiously: "If and when the dream of a federal Europe comes true, presumably a head will be needed and the possibility of the British sovereign occupying the post should not be precluded."

Noting that the British royal family is closely linked by a web of relationships to its European counterparts, he says the long-term effects of such a move should be "most beneficial" for monarchy in general.

In conversation, Burke's editor points out that monarchies now outnumber republics in the new European Community by five to four. While it would be "invidious to draw comparisons," he says, Britain's monarchy is by far the oldest, going back at least 1,150 years.

Britain's traditional detachment and physical isolation from mainland Europe also may help give her monarchy a special sense of perspective, he suggests.

Elsewhere in the glossy guide, selling at $24, historian Elizabeth Longford says with Prince Philip's gifts "it is a loss to the man and the nation" for him not to speak in the House of Lords.

The island-wide parent organization said it gave the chapter a chance to reverse the action, but the women's lib chamber decided its women members were more valuable than the affiliation.

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

Even under the best circumstances and with all the help you can afford, moving is a complex job. However, with proper planning you can make this job less horrifying.

How To Make The Best Move, an eight-page folder, presents a practical check-list which will help you avoid many problems. It offers dozens of tips and each one is worth following.

For instance, when you have selected a mover ask him what will happen if the van arrives very late. Also, at what time will he call a stop and instruct his men to carry on the next morning.

If you let the packers do most of your packing, remember that the cost includes unpacking.

The folder also suggests you prepare a floor plan of the new home before you move in, so that you can tell the movers where to put things. If you notice any damage, mark it on the invoice before you sign. Or, ff you were too busy to make a thorough inspection, write on the driver's copy of the invoice: "subject to further inspection for concealed damage or loss," and sign your name.

Learn from Mistake

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a man who met an unwed mother. He said he has resp-

At this moment I am 18 years old, pregnant, and unmarried. My boy friend, also 18, pledged his undying love for me and told me if he got me pregnant, he would marry me. He was the first and only man who ever touched me, and we planned to be married in a year.

Well, when I told him I was pregnant, he found one reason after another to postpone our marriage. Then he said he wasn't sure he was the father, and he stopped calling and coming to see me. Now he's seeing another girl.

I'm too far along to do anything but have the baby now, but, thank God, my family is standing by me. I am praying for a healthy baby and I hope some day I'll meet a man who won't hold this mistake against me.

Abby, please warn other girls who think they are in love to tell the boy that real love is protecting the girl and caring for her.

I don't want child support, and I don't want to see my boy friend punished. Now I can see him for what he really is, and I want nothing more to do with him. After I have the baby I plan to finish my education and start a new life far from here.

I never thought this could happen to me. If you think it will help some other girl, you may print this, but sign it . . . Shattered Dreams

DEAR SHATTERED: Thank you for telling your story. I'm sure your letter will be read and remembered by many. God bless you and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I just read in your column that a lady was told by a friend that giving wedding gifts was "old-fashioned." She said today they just pass a tray around and the guests deposit money — starting with $10.

If money is all that important, why don't they book the wedding at a wrestling match? A few years back, when I was a professional wrestler, they had an occasional wedding at the wrestling matches. (It was usually one of the wrestlers who got married.) But since a wedding is usually the beginning of a fight, they might be able to find a promoter who would book it. — Rev. Lloyd Teasley.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thursday, March 15
BY SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Social activity increases. You make significant changes, some involving opposite sex. Young persons play paramount roles. Sagittarian is much in picture. This is time for creative thinking. Shake off self-doubt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be aware of specifics. Leave speculation for another time. Be frank. What appears to be opposition direct. No beating about bush. could be healthy challenge. Realize no one is handing you anything on proverbial silver platter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Flexibility serves your best interests. Means be versatile without scattering your forces. Relatives figure prominently. Do what you do because of you, not to please or impress relatives. Virgo individual is in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money, budget, special purchases are featured. Come to terms with one who attracts you. Strive for greater maturity. Family member deserves benefit of doubt. If diplomatic, you gain. Otherwise, you could be torn apart emotionally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be selective. Some persons appear to throw themselves at you. But try to remember that no one gives you something for nothing. Check the price. Message should become increasingly clear. Pisces is likely to be involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Older individual may lack enthusiasm. Key is to have faith in your own capabilities. Financial situation will improve. Look behind scenes. Don't judge by surface indications. Capricorn is in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friendship may be on line. Stand up for principles but don't rule out intelligent concessions. Finish rather than begin projects. Find better ways of distribution. Aries could provide hints.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Assert yourself. You can impress professional superior. Key now is to know what your goal is and to take steps which aid in attaining it. Originality is a keynote to success. Means be your unique self.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Favorable lunar aspect now coincides with "journey of the mind." Means you can successfully reach beyond current situation, present limitations. You perceive. You know what to do and when to do it. Act on what you know!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid trying to do too much simultaneously. Co-operative effort is necessary. Confide in mate, partner. Money position deserves special consideration. Don't take on more than you can handle. Check policies, accounts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis is on how to deal with one who holds opposing view. You can't force issues and win. You can listen, observe and offer suggestions. Applies especially where one close to you is concerned. Special relationship is tested.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be too concerned over minor matters. Key now is moderation. Guard health. Cement relations with co-workers, those who share your interests. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Moderate approach is essential.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can do much with your voice. You can accumulate money because you are talented and can bring together those who hold divergent views. Your domestic situation will be more solid this year — June should be your most significant month of 1973.

CHILLY RECEPTION was in store for Pyotr Petrov and his wife, Thaisa, after they toasted each other in Leningrad, Soviet Union, before taking swim in ice-cold waters of outdoor pool to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. It was so cold that a hole had to be cut in ice.

Ottawa Clarifies Concern For Quick-Oven Standard

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department soon will announce safety specifications for microwave ovens, according to federal health department officials.

They were commenting on statements made by Health Minister Marc Lalonde that the department was working on safety specifications for microwave ovens.

The specifications can be set up under the Radiation Emitting Device Act, passed in 1970, said Dr. Adrian Booth, director of the radiation protection bureau. This act already has been used to set standards for color television sets and dental x-ray equipment.

The new standards probably will be similar to recently-announced United States standards, which have a top limit of one milliwatt of radiation for each square centimetre measured five centimetres from the leaking door of the ovens.

This is the U.S. standard for new models, he said. The older models have top acceptable limits of five milliwatts.

In microwave ovens, food is heated by radar-like waves which shake the molecules of food into a hot state in a matter of seconds or minutes. In a properly designed oven, waves are confined within the interior and exposure to nearby persons is minimal.

STUDIES DONE

Booth said the bureau has carried out a number of studies on the commercial ovens, which have been on the market for a number of years. Most of these are used in food-vending machines or by short-order cooks.

However, he said the recent move by manufacturers to place microwave ovens on the domestic market has led to more intensive studies to safe standards could be set.

His bureau had done tests on models now available in a preliminary survey to discover manufacturers' specifications.

In the recent tests most of the new models show little or no leakage, he said.

The bureau's studies have indicated that the problem is not particularly urgent.

"We have not had any evidence, as far as we know, of a short-order cook having cataracts — that's the problem of principal concern."

The bureau also is carrying out tests with animals to discover what levels of microwave leakage might cause unhealthy side effects.

NOT SERIOUS

So far, they have found that it is necessary to have exposure to levels of about 100 milliwatts daily over a considerable period.

"We don't think leakage from ovens is a very serious problem and don't think that it requires emergency action," he said. However, the department would announce standards soon.

The standards are part of the bureau's continuing program of examination of all radiation-emitting devices, he said. These include x-ray used for medical or industrial purposes and other uses.

The department was responsible during the last year for having x-ray demonstration machines removed from school equipment lists, he said. Manufacturers had been supplying x-ray equipment to schools for experiments.

As well, the radiation bureau is looking at the long-range problems with lasers and other possibly dangerous equipment, Booth said.

Inner Peace Movement Hits Victoria

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Mike

If individuals can find peace within themselves, peace in the world is a more reasonable possibility.

It's one of the tenets of the Inner Peace Movement, a spiritual group based in Osceola, Iowa, at the Americana Leadership College, and it has a following of 25 persons in Victoria.

The goal of the program is to assist persons to become masters of their own situation and better leaders by first learning to understand themselves and their goals.

"It's not a religious movement; it's more of a spiritual movement," said Susan Kendall an IPM field representative visiting Victoria for a series of workshops at Victoria Secondary School.

"It's not like we're trying to promote a belief in anything; there's no big super guru. We just pass along tools and techniques to help people be and do whatever they want," the 28-year-old former nursery school teacher from Iowa said.

"There's a lot of people who go on day to day and want to find out who they are and what they can do, but don't know how."

IPM, with an active international membership of about 100,000 helps them do it, she said.

Mrs. Kendall and her husband, Mike, who is also on tour, provide lectures to affiliated groups in the country on a rotating basis.

Sensitivity training and meditation play an important role, she said.

She said the movement — open to all ages — doesn't try to compete with established religions.

As field representatives the Kendalls are versed in areas of personal development, have studied at the college and are self-employed. They are supporting themselves by charging admission to the workshops.

The public is invited to attend this evening's workshop at Victoria Secondary School at 8.

Coronary Threat No Reason To Drop Eating Fun—Medic

NEW YORK — "Above all," Dr. George Christakis said, "eating is, and should be fun."

And there's no reason to sacrifice the fun part of it, he insisted, simply because of the coronary threat that high cholesterol levels in many foods represents. The challenge, said the Mount Sinai School of Medicine professor and director of its nutrition division is to fit tasty recipes with low cholesterol levels into an acceptable pattern of eating.

The doctor wrote the introduction to New Metropolitan Cookbook, the 60-page 1973 edition that carries on a tradition the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company started when it published its first cookbook in 1918.

The booklet is one of several recently published books that underscore the idea that pleasant eating doesn't have to be compromised when heeding the cholesterol threat.

"We never say 'never' to any food," Christakis remarked at a recent tasting of dishes prepared from recipes in the book. "We just suggest that nutritional discretion is always the betterpart of dietary valor."

The book suggests ways to reduce moderately the total fat in the diet and prevent overweight and high level of cholesterol in the blood. In his introduction, Christakis explains the relationship between types of fat and heart disease and classifies foods according to the predominant fats present.

The recipes, most of which were collected by Christakis's wife, Emerald, use skim instead of whole milk, vegetable oils and high liquid oil margarines in place of solid shortenings and butter, lean meats and fish.

There appear to be some inconsistencies. For instapce, one recipe for cheese lasagna carefully lists cottage cheese and a small quantity of American cheese while a recipe for fondue calls for one pound of Swiss cheese, which is high in saturated fats.

There also is no rating system for cholesterol levels and no calorie counts for recipes. With menu suggestions that include veal roast, shrimp (predominantly saturated fat) and London broil as main dinner dishes, the plan is geared for middle- and upper-income families.

There are general sections on the selection and preparation of meats, fish and vegetables. Patterns to follow—and patterns to avoid—for breakfast, lunch and dinner and outlined for easy reference.

The New Metropolitan Cookbook may be obtained free from he Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, 10010.

Another book dealing with the cholesterol problem is Haute Cuisine for Your Heart's Delight, by Carol Cutler (Clarkson N. Potter Inc., $6.95). It has both a rating scale for cholesterol levels in each dish, all of which have relatively low levels, and a calorie count for each recipe.

The book has simplified and modified versions of rich, classic dishes and some carefully chosen traditional ones that fit into the low cholesterol category.

Mrs. Cutler has written it all with an understanding of classic French cuisine. And not surprisingly. She studied for 12 years in Paris at the Cordon Bleu and L'Ecole des Trois Gourmands, and both she and her husband belong to French gourmet societies.

The original title of the book, The How-to-Keep-Your-Husband-Alive-Without-Boring-Him-to-Death Cookbook, underscores the motivation behind Mrs. Cutler's eight years of research and experiments. She emphasized that the book is concerned with seeking to prevent heart problems through a low, daily cholesterol intake and is not meant for a patient on a remedial diet.

Mrs. Cutler noted that, according to a University of Chicago study, a more prudent diet can reverse artery disease induced by improper dieting. She also pointed out the role such factors as heredity, smoking, stress, obesity, lack of exercise, high blood pressure and diabetes play in heart ailments.

LONG LIFE'S EASY: JUST . . .

NEW YORK (AP) — People who have lived to advanced ages often are asked how it's done. To what habits or rules do they attribute their long life? They offer a potpourri of prescriptions, religious and otherwise.

A collection of them was assembled in a recent issue of the Immortality Newsletter, a bi-monthly roundup of anti-death research and thought published in San Carcos, Calif.

It reports there currently are about 12,000 Americans who have lived more than 100 years, and presents this sampling of some of their formulas for achieving such longevity:

"Believe in God. Pray daily."

"Have a free mind. Don't fall for religious bunk."

"Never drink alcohol."

"Drink a pint of whisky per day."

"Read the Bible."

"Read spicy detective stories."

"Get plenty of exercise."

"Shun physical activity. Conserve your energy."

"Never sleep over four hours per day."

"Sleep with your feet pointed south, so that magnetic vibrations from the north will pass through your body and out through your feet, ordering and harmonizing all systemic functions in the process."

"Sleep with your feet pointed north, so that magnetic vibrations from the north will pass upwards to your brain, with rejuvenating effect."

"Eat only eggs, butter, milk and cheese."

"Smoke a corncob pipe continuously."

"Chew a plug of tobacco per day."

"Avoid tobacco in every form."

"Abstain from sex."

"Have plenty of sexual activity."

"Get plenty of sunshine. It is the source of all energy and health."

"Avoid sunlight. It causes cancer."

A. Stuart Otto, editor of the newsletter, comments: "Take your choice. Just don't try them all at once."

Sinai Superport Indicated Despite Jewish Denials

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Despite official denials, suspicion is growing among observers here that the Israeli government may seek to build a large seaport and resort in the northern part of the occupied Sinai Desert.

For the moment, officials have announced only the construction of a small regional centre in the area. But rumors persist that a larger scheme is in the works.

The government denial that it is thinking in terms of an extensive building project apparently arises from its reluctance to appear to be moving on such a scale prior to a Middle East peace settlement.

But the idea has been advocated by Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, a prime mover in setting up small strategic settlements on the occupied west bank of the Jordan. These are designed to protect Israeli interests when a settlement is reached.

He produced his plan in the middle of last year and even a name for the town — Yamit Seaside — which would have more than 200,000 people. But he says he has not submitted the plans, known to have occupied a number of town planners and architects, to the cabinet.

WOULD FORM BUFFER

Meanwhile, in December, the cabinet announced that it had approved the setting up of a smaller regional centre in approximately the same area, to serve Israeli armed forces and strategic settlements in the Sinai region.

Cabinet sources maintained that the small-scale scheme had nothing to do with the Dayan plan, which was not even mentioned during a session of cabinet that is believed not to have been unanimous in its approval of the regional centre.

The site for both schemes is in the Rafah area, just south of the occupied Gaza strip. The establishment of any sizable settlement in the region would clearly act as a buffer for Israel between Egypt and the strip, should the Sinai be handed back in a peace settlement.

If the Dayan scheme was accepted, it would also place the strip — largely occupied by Palestinian refugees — itself between a sizable Jewish settlement in the south and the major coastal conglomeration of Jewish population to the north.

Soviets Battle To Untangle Consumer Maze

By DONALD ARMOUR

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A new Soviet consumers council has started work—trying to ensure that coffee is not sold as fertilizer and that unsold clothes do not pile up to the over-all value of five billion rubles (about $5.7 billion) as happened last year.

The Soviet consumer is a long-suffering soul. Apart from the general absence of such luxuries as cars, Western-style clothes and stylish furniture, he or she has difficulties in finding all sorts of ordinary things such as china, camera film, gloves or blankets.

One reason is that state-run industry is geared heavily to producing capital goods rather than consumer wares. Another is the chaos that often reigns in the wholesale and retail trade, leading to bottlenecks and queues.

The new consumer research council aims to work on increasing the production and quality of consumer goods and ensuring smoother distribution.

PINPOINT DEMAND

It is trying to pinpoint demand in four broad spheres—food, clothing, leisure items and household goods.

It will draw on market research organizations and aims to encourage distributors to direct the right items to where they are needed most.

Not that this will be the year of the Soviet consumer. Despite an over-all government committee to improve living standards by the mid-1970s, 1973 will be an austere time following serious industrial difficulties last year.

A new magazine issued by the consumer council called Commercial Herald is being used to police industry and trade, checking on when new goods actually go into production, and if not, why not.

It lists such shortcomings as lack of doorlocks, clothes brushes and spades in the central Asian Soviet republic of Tadzhikistan, because the republic does not produce these items and only orders them from distant parts in a desultory fashion.

BEER RAN OUT

Other examples of mismanagement and chaotic distribution last year included the consignment of coffee that turned up at a collective farm labelled fertilizer, the day all the beer ran out at Ivanovo City, and the forgotten trainload of cabbages which rotted in a siding at Volgograd in a year when there was a cabbage shortage.

Meanwhile, the newspaper Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya reported that by Oct. 1, 1972, "unsold stocks of clothes, linen and knitwear in the wholesale and retail trade came to astronomical sums—almost five billion rubles."

The reason—the unattractiveness and poor quality of the clothing. The newspaper said the poor clothes had to be sold at reduced prices, which in turn caused a loss of 400 million rubles ($470 million) to the industry, or one-fifth of its profits.

In the republic of Kazakhstan, 38 per cent of the unsold, shop-soiled clothing has been in shops since before 1965.

The new Soviet consumers council was created by a government decree last year. This decree ordered more restaurants, supermarkets and factory canteens to relieve some of the drabness and practical difficulties of everyday life for the ordinary Soviet citizen.

Crash Kills 28

ANTOFAGASTA (Reuter) — At least 28 persons were killed and 60 were injured when two buses collided at high speed near this port in northern Chile Monday night, police said.

Rhode Island Prohibits Abortions

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A strict anti-abortion bill was signed into law by Gov. Philip Noel Tuesday soon after it was approved by the Rhode Island Senate.

Tim Buck Never Gave Up the Faith

TIM BUCK

MEXICO CITY (CP-AP) — Tim Buck, a doughty little revolutionary who never ceased to believe that capitalism would be overthrown, was to be cremated today.

The five-foot-four, mild-looking man with the pale blue eyes and wispy hair died Sunday at the age of 82 after a series of strokes while vacationing in Cuernavaca, Mexico. One of the founders of the Communist party of Canada, he had been its leader for 33 years.

"There will not be any kind of ceremony here or in Canada," said his wife Elizabeth (Lina) in a telephone interview from Cuernavaca.

"His ashes will remain in this country—he loved Mexico," said Mrs. Buck Tuesday.

Cause of death was non-traumatic heart arrest and general sclerosis, a medical report said.

"He gave all his life to politics and lived with dignity," said his wife. "His fight was for every man's rights to education, health and life."

In Ottawa, former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Tuesday Buck was a powerful speaker who must have been deeply frustrated with the failure of his party.

"He devoted his life to the pursuit of communism in Canada with little or no success," said Diefenbaker. "Mr. Buck was a man of ability but he must have been deeply frustrated by the fact that no progress was made by the Communist party despite his lifetime of devotion to the propagation of an ideology which Canadians spurned."

William Beeching, Saskatchewan leader of the party, visited him last month at his modest Mexican apartment and said Tuesday night: "Buck's mind was good. He was alert, penetrating. The fire was there right up to the end."

That fire a generation and more ago made him a headline-catching personality in one of the most noted of Canadian political trials, and later kept him persistently directing his then outlawed party from secret hideouts.

FORMED IN GUELPH

His stormy career included survival in internal party brawls after he helped establish the party at a secret barn meeting near Guelph, Ont., in 1921.

By shrewd judgment and clever compromise he led it through the tumultuous years when the West regarded the Russians as a menace, then as a staunch war ally and again as a potential enemy.

He was an undeviating adherent to the Soviet brand of communism, refusing to countenance any degree of ideological backsliding, surviving innumerable attacks from within and without his party.

When he moved to the chairman's post he was still firmly in command.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 22-year-old Nanaimo man appeared in Victoria provincial court Tuesday on a charge of wounding with intent in connection with the stabbing of a downtown store manager last August.

George Midan was remanded to March 20 for legal aid application and election on a charge of stabbing Metropolitan store manager Rogert Taback.

Midan is already in custody on another matter.

32-year-old Leonard Robert Larson had a charge of robbery with violence against him dismissed, for lack of sufficient identification, following a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Larson had been arrested in connection with a Feb. 4 incident in the parking lot of the Britannia branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, 1616 Blanshard, in which a Saanich man was punched and robbed of $12.

A request for a conditional discharge, supported by the Crown prosecutor, was refused by Judge William Ostler on the grounds that the applicant had not been deterred from use of drugs.

Defence lawyer Harold Turnham had asked for the discharge for his client, 17-year-old Alan Axhorn, 2843 Wyndeatt, who pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and hashish.

Ostler ordered a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term for the man, noting that Axhorn had experimented with a wide variety of drugs and had admitted to a probation officer that he would use marijuana again if the opportunity arose.

A 21-year-old woman who said she'd "do anything" to kick the heroin habit was sent to jail for a total of 60 days, followed by a one-year period of probation on three charges of false pretences under $200.

Lora Marion Keczan, 2740 Sooke Road, pleaded guilty Feb. 28 and March 9 to eight counts of attempting to get refunds on items worth $170 from two department stores.

Miss Keczan, who had earlier admitted intermittent use of heroin over a period of three years, told her probation officer that "I'd do anything" to break her heroin addiction.

A 27-year-old heroin user received a "minimal" sentence of three months in jail and a one-year probationary term for possession of heroin.

Robert Donald Stanley Parker, 6996 West Coast Road, Sooke, pleaded guilty to possession of the drug Feb. 21. He had been stopped by police in the 600 block View Jan. 24 and tried to swallow two caps of heroin, but vomited them back up.

Ostler said that the man's case was one that merited a minimal sentence.

Ben-Gurion Better

TEL AVIV (AP) — David Ben-Gurion, Israel's elder statesman, was released from a hospital today after suffering chest pains.

Doctors said his condition improved during the night, and he returned to his hotel.

20 WEEKENDS IN JAIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucille Barach, 47, of Montreal, who testified she once worked for the Le Dain federal commission on drug abuse, was sentenced Tuesday to 20 weekends in jail after she pleaded guilty to possession of narcotics.

She was arrested last June after claiming a parcel at Montreal International Airport containing a pound of hashish.

At her preliminary hearing in December, the judge rejected as a reason for dropping the charges a letter the woman showed saying she had worked for the Le Dain commision.

OTTAWA was just like any other capital — boring — but it is different today says actor John Neville who has been named director of Edmonton's Citadel Theatre. He has been in Ottawa for the past year and will return there in June to direct a production of the opera Don Giovanni.

TALENTED PERFORMER PLAYS SUNDAY

Two Sunday afternoon recitals featuring Victoria artists are scheduled to take place at Open Space.

This Sunday James Kennedy, a talented performer on the recorder and baroque flute, will appear with Peter Bishop, who will assist on the harpsichord.

On March 25, the second recital will present Carla Levinson, soprano, with pianist Jean Ethridge. The program will include solo piano and vocal performanc of music by Mozart, Villa-Lobos and others.

Both recitals begin at 2:30 p.m.

Thursday and Saturday at 8 p.m., Theatre One, a professional group now resident in Vancouver but formerly of Montreal, will present The Measures Taken by Bertolt Brecht, and several brief satires from a collection entitled The Little Green Goose Theatre of Poland.

On Friday the company will perform Christopher Marlowe's Doctor Faustus.

A contemporary dance performance by Vancouver's Paula Ross Dancers will be presented March 22 and 23.

Currently on show (ending March 25) are the more than 200 art works in a wide range of media, that were submitted for the Vancouver Island Jury Show.

Cellist Protests At Red Embassy

WASHINGTON (WP) — Playing Jewish music of mourning, a Russian-born cellist staged a one-man protest concert outside the Soviet embassy here Tuesday.

Later security men locked the embassy gates when Victory Yoran, 36, tried unsuccessfully to deliver a letter of appeal to Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin. Since he defected from Russia in 1969, Yoran has been pleading with Soviet authorities to allow his family to join him in Israel.

As Yoran, seated on a folding chair, gave his sidewalk recital, a crowd of sympathizers, newsmen and curious onlookers gathered around him. Police arrived and requested Yoran's sponsors, the Washington Committee for Soviet Jewry (WCSJ) to end the concert.

The crowd then moved across the street as Yoran, acompanied by excited shouts of "be careful," went alone to the embassy door to deliver his letter.

Stolid-faced Russian security men began locking the gates while he was in the grounds. Only after his return did he learn he had stepped on Russian soil for the first time since his escape.

Now a resident of Israel, Yoran is touring the United States and Europe to meet politicians and draw attention to his family's plight.

Since his escape in 1969, Soviet authorities have repeatedly refused to grant visas to his mother, wife and five-year-old son. Letters are intercepted by Russian postal authorities, Yoran said, but he is occasionally able to talk to his wife by telephone.

Yoran said that when he made his decision to defect three years ago, almost no Jews were being allowed to leave the Soviet Union.

"I had the feeling it was better to go out to the west and struggle for my family from there than to stay indefinitely," he said.

Cars Kept Hitting Him Until Pedestrian Died

people

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Louis Williams, 69, a transient, tried to walk across the eight-lane Santa Ana freeway in the darkness just before dawn.

He got as far as the second lane when he was hit by a car driven by Mary Lewis, 57, the California Highway Patrol reported. She said she did not see him, because he was wearing dark clothes, and she did not know what her car had hit, but felt an impact and so she left the freeway at the next exit and circled back.

Meanwhile Robert Schiller, 21, of Whittier, sighted Williams struggling in the road. Schiller halted and began laying flares in an effort to keep Williams from being hit again in the steady flow of speeding cars.

Williams got up and tried to stagger off the freeway.

A car hit him again and drove on.

Williams arose. A third car hit him and vanished down the road.

Williams got up again and a fourth car hit him. It kept going.

Williams stayed down.

The fifth car to hit him thumped over his prone body, despite the flares, and vanished like the others.

Williams was dead.

BRASILIA — Carpenter Raimundo de Carvalho, 62, claims to be the country's most active father. He has no less than 93 children, 52 boys and 41 girls, 32 of them legitimate. The 210 pounder has 17 children by his third and latest wife Madelena, who at the same time looks after 10 other of De Carvalho's youngsters.

GILA BEND, Ariz. — Film stars Sarah Miles and Burt Reynolds faced cross-examination today on their versions of what happened the night her business manager, David Whiting, died of a drug overdose in her motel room.

John Frank, a lawyer for the dead man's mother, filed a brief giving a slightly amplified story, including a tiff between Reynolds and Miss Miles and a post-midnight session with a Japanese masseuse in Reynolds' motel room.

HOLLYWOOD — Stacy Harris, 54, a character actor who played the part of Leslie Harrington on television's Return to Peyton Place, died Tuesday, apparently of a heart attack.

Harris began his Hollywood career as a radio actor, appeared in five Broadway plays and won a New York Critics Award. He had worked with Jack Webb in all his productions since the radio version of Dragnet.

OTTAWA — The Commons Indian affairs committee broke new parliamentary ground Tuesday night by voting to invite Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec to appear before it to discuss the proposed James Bay power project. It is believed to be the first time a provincial premier was invited to give evidence before a Commons committee.

SHERWOOD, Ark. — Michael Woods, 23, was walking along a road naked and penniless Tuesday, but by nightfall, he had new clothes, a job and was the guest of honor at a dinner hosted by the local Jaycees. Police said Woods, who was hitchhiking from Mississippi to his home in Brea, Calif., was assaulted by three robbers who took $40 and everything he owned, including his clothes.

SAN JOSE, Calif.—A draft resister who came home from Sweden to "get it over" won a court victory Tuesday — and was promptly drafted again.

U.S. District Judge Robert Peckham dismissed draft evasion charges against Kenneth Rutledge, 26, because the government couldn't prove he had ever received induction papers mailed to him in Sweden.

But Rutledge was handed a new induction order before leaving court.

WASHINGTON — A New York millionaire's wife nominated to be ambassador to Luxembourg disclosed Tuesday she gave $300,000 to President Nixon's re-election campaign, most of it several weeks after he was re-elected.

But Ruth Farkas told the Senate foreign relations committee the money had been pledged before last November's election.

Mrs. Farkas, wife of George Farkas, founder of Alexanders department store in New York, said of the $300,000 contribution: "This had absolutely nothing to do with getting the ambassadorship."

Fantasy Opens Program

The fourth annual Sooke Schools Drama Festival continues tonight at Edward Milne Secondary School on Sooke Road.

Opening the program with a fantasy entitled The Fairest Pitcher of Them All, will be Sooke elementary School, staging a cast of 23.

The host school's

The host school's junior level offers a play by the Irish playwright, Lord Dunsany, The Golden Doom, set in early biblical times. It has a cast of 11.

Edward Milne seniors are presenting an historical fantasy about Henry VIII and all his wives. The title, Like It or Not.

A second entry by Saseenos is based on the classic Scheherazade legend and there are 10 youngsters in the cast.

Curtain time is 7 and doors open at 6:15.

Critics Pan Last Tango

LONDON (AP) — Last Tango in Paris opened in London Tuesday night.

The critics panned it.

"Not so much a tango as a dance macabre," says The Daily Mirror. "It's sad and it smells."

"You'll wonder what all the blue-movie fuss was all about," says The Sun.

"Tedious," says The Daily Telegraph.

Last Tango, starring Marlon Brando and newcomer Maria Schneider, has been pulling in crowds in France and the U.S.

Says The Mirror's Arthur Thirkell: "Erotic? Forget it. A breakthrough in adult filmmaking? Someone is joking."

Salmon Bed Issue Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — lack of federal protection of salmon-spawning beds in rivers of Vancouver Island is causing low morale among fisheires officers on the west coast, Tom Barnett (NDP-Comox-Alberni) told the Commons Monday night.

Barnett charged that nothing in the government spending estimates indicates anything is being done to protect the beds. He had never known the morale of fisheries officers to be so low.

The veteran member said that unless the government took a realistic approach to clearing rivers of log jams, hopes of a 50 per cent increase in catch predicted recently by Environment Minister Jack Davis would be a long way off.

Davis disagreed that morale of the officers is low. Neverbefore had the officers had so much influence over logging practices, he said. There also is an increased understanding of th need for conservation among federal, provincial and company officials.

He's Cursed, Even When He's Right

Faulkner, a chief forecaster at Vancouver International Airport, faces the wrath of irate fishermen, people who wash their cars and housewives who put their laundry out to dry, by predicting weather conditions. Chief forecasters issue predictions at 4 a.m., 10 a.m., 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. daily.

It's a job that gives some men ulcers, drives others to drink and seems to cause as many heart problems as two packs of cigarettes a day — especially in Vancouver, where, as the saying goes, if you can't see the mountains it's raining. And if you can see the mountains, it's going to rain.

"You have so much stuff thrown at you that you have difficulty deciding what you should believe," said Faulkner, one of seven chief forecasters at the Vancouver office.

Don Faulkner studying reports

He works three or four 12-hour shifts each week and is responsible for preparing two sets of forecast maps in each shift.

Each set contains a picture of what the weather will be like in 18 hours, another picture for 30 hours and an "outlook map" for two days.

Two other forecasts use the maps to prepare weather bulletins. An aviation forecaster issues reports four times daily for pilots and airports in British Columbia and the Yukon.

The forecasts most people hear are prepared three times daily by a public forecaster, who issues a synopsis for 11 areas of B.C. three times a day. Twice a day in winter he delivers a mountain forecast for skiers, and in summer he issues a marine report for boaters.

Faulkner admits there's a lot of pressure in the job.

"I've had an ulcer, the boss has had one, two of our guys have bad hearts . . .

"You've heard about that weatherman in Taiwan" he asked, studying his forecast map.

"They tried him and shot him. He missed a typhooon. At least we haven't done that . . . ."

The forecast cycle for the 4 p.m. forecast, for example, begins shortly before noon when meteorological technician Bob Henderson finishes plotting the 10 a.m. observations on a map that includes the United States, Alaska and half the Pacific Ocean.

Then Faulkner takes over the map, pencilling in isobars — lines connecting areas of equal atmospheric pressure — and estimating where cold and warm fronts are.

"The machines now do as good a job of forecasting as a man did 20 years ago," he said. "But a machine plus a man is still the best we can do today."

Faulkner, along with most of the chief forecasters, has a master's degree in meteorology. Most of the assistant forecasters have bachelor's degrees.

After drawing the forecast maps, he predicts low overnight temperatures and highs the following day for five B.C. cities — Vancouver, Penticton, Cranbrook, Prince Rupert and Prince George.

Gordon Muttitt, the weatherman is charge of the Vancouver weather office, says his forecasters are correct about 80 per cent of the time in summer and winter, when weather patterns are steadier, and about 70 per cent correct in the spring and fall.

Minister Defends Bail Reform

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang says he will not support any change in the federal Bail Reform Act "that would return to the day when the poor were kept incarcerated and the rich were allowed to remain at large."

He made the statement in a letter to the borough council of Scarborough, which last month petitioned the government to reviwe the act on the ground there were widespread abuses.

Lang wrote that the act, which liberalizes bail procedures, was not meant to tie the hands of police but to protect the rights of accused persons.

Two Held at Boston In Thurlow Slaying

Two Campbell River RCMP officers left for Boston Tuesday to begin extradiction procedures against a young couple arrested on Campbell River warrants for the murder of Kent Tvede Laursen, 20, of Qualicum Beach.

Randi Vincent Stevenson, 19, an American, is charged with murder in connection with the axe-slaying, and Louise Elizabeth Myhres, 24, from Parksville, is charged as an accessory after murder.

Police said today information supplied by people on East Thurlow Island led to issuance of the warrants on March 8, just one day after Laursen's partly decomposed body was found in a shallow grave on the island.

They were arrested by FBI agents and Boston police Tuesday in an apartment in the Allston section of Boston.

No motive for the killing has been disclosed.

An autopsy showed Laursen died of massive head wounds probably caused by an axe. There were also superficial knife wounds in the chest and shoulder areas.

LORIMER FAVORS BIGGER DUNCAN

DUNCAN — City council was told this week that Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer favors extension of the boundary southward.

Ald. Bob Youg, reporting on a meeting with the minister, said a delegation was told the government supports the regional district concept and believes municipalities and rural areas should use the districts to bring better services.

Lorimer also said his department would not force boundary extension but if the city wishes to do this "it could be done by holding a vote in the areas concerned," Young said.

50 Ready for Tennis

More than 50 people attended the organizational meeting Tuesday of a tennis club in Central Saanich with headquarters at Centennial Park.

Details of a coaching program for players of all ages will be drawn up by the new executive which is headed by Winston Brydson, former professional instructor with a Toronto club.

Directors include Tom Ireland, Jim McMahon, Robert Scantlebury, Pauline Trerice, Avis Rasmussen, Sally Wait, Jackie Bouchard.

Central Saanich Recreation Commision chairman Andy Bryant and municipal recreation director Norma Sealey helped organize the tennis meeting and predicts a busy season of tournaments and coaching clinics.

Cherry Pt. Residents 'Tired of Slaughter'

DUNCAN — Residents of Cherry Point, four miles south of Duncan, want the area closed to hunters.

James Saunders, a spokesman for residents, said people are "tired of seeing the useless slaughter of birds by hunters who don't even bother retrieving them.

"They are left in the sea — the dead and the wounded," he said.

On one occasion two hunters killed and wounded at least 60 birds and took no more than 10 home because they had no dog or boat to retrieve them, he said.

"Some of these people during the Brant season in spring or in fall come dressed in city clothes with expensive guns," he said. "They only pick up the birds that float to shore."

"When they have gone it is not unusual to find some wounded birds hiding behind some logs waiting to die," he added.

He said residents are also bothered during the summer months by young people shooting .22 rifles.

He said Cherry Point is a popular recreational area and visited by many people from the surrounding area and Victoria.

"Shooting has become a hazard," he said. "In the early 1900s it was all right to hunt here but there is no room for this now because it is a residential district and favorite picnic spot."

James Hatter, director of the B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch, said he was informed that a resident put up a sign at Cherry Point saying "hunters go home."

"I wish people who see any person shooting game birds, and not retrieving them would report the matter to police," he said. "We are trying to eliminate these people from shooting. It is illegal to shoot birds and not to retrieve them."

Victim of Embezzlement Gives Evidence for Thief

A victim of an embezzlement that continued for two and a half years appeared in Duncan provincial court Tuesday to speak on behalf of the embezzler.

Jack James, head of James Logging, gave character evidence on behalf of Donald Reynolds, a former Duncan accountant who pleaded guilty to six counts of theft totalling close to $30,000.

Judge Lance Heard remanded Reynolds to March 23 for sentence.

James gave testimony as to Reynolds' character and esteem, in spite of Reynolds' actions against the company.

"In all my years I have never known that to happen once before, where the person whose business has been stolen from, has come in and given character evidence for the thief," said defence counsel Cecil Branson of Victoria.

James Logging was one of four companies from which Reynolds embezzled funds over two and half years. The other companies were Dodds Holding Ltd., Dodds Lumber Company, and Crofton Fabricators Ltd.

Branson asked the judge to consider a probationary sentence, with Reynolds required to pay back the monies he embezzled "in an amount sufficient so it will pinch."

Reynolds had already sold his home and raised $14,000 as restitution to the companies concerned.

Prosecutor Dave Williams said Reynolds' crimes were "too serious, too well thought out, and too long standing" for the judge to consider a minimal sentence.

WALLACE TO SPEAK

DUNCAN — Dr. Scott Wallace, Progressive Conservative MLA for Oak Bay, will speak at a public forum tonight at 8 sponsored by the recently-formed Stop Bill 42 Concerned Citizens' Committee.

The meeting will be held at 468 Trans-Canada Highway, Duncan.

DESERT COVERS ANCIENT REEFS

MOSCOW (AP) — Geologists have found a coral reef deep below the sands of the Kara Kum, confirming theories the largest desert in the Soviet Union was a shallow tropical sea 120 million years ago, Tass reported today.

The news agency said the geologists bored a hole into the central Kara Kum, in Soviet Turkmenia, and took soil samples down to a depth of 1.24 miles.

"The scientists determined that the inhabitants of the shallow tropical sea in that remote geological period included corals, sea lilies, sponges and other representatives of the animal world," Tass said.

"These served as the main building material for the reefs and rocks."

The ancient reefs are porous like a sponge and Tass said some of them may be "saturated with oil and gas."

BLASTING FOR GOLD, a miner aims his high-pressure hydraulic hose at gold-bearing gravel on Bonanza Creek west of Dawson City. Creek has been mined, hosed, panned and sluiced continuously since 1896 when gold was first found on the creek, creating the Klondike Gold Rush of 1898.

U.S. Contractors Urged To Back Alaska Pipeline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline could reduce U.S. imports of foreign oil by 50 per cent and trim $2.5 billion annually from the U.S. balance of payments deficit, George Easley, Alaska commissioner of public works, said Tuesday.

Addressing the Associated General Contractors of America convention, Easley urged the organization to join in pushing legislation now before Congress to get the long-delayed project started.

He said environmental law suits starting in 1970 already had put the pipeline project "at least four years further down the road than was originally expected."

He said the delay so far has cost Alaska about $1.5 billion in state oil revenues and is depriving Alaskans of vital public services and the nation its single largest crude oil supply.

Easley said Alaskan oil could replace about half of the 1.5 billion barrels of oil being imported annually of a total six-billion-barrel annual U.S. consumption.

Easley said nearly $400 million already has been spent "to insure that the pipeline is constructed in accordance with good environmental practice."

Both the state of Alaska and the U.S. federal government are appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court from a February appeals court ruling throwing up the latest legal roadblock, Easley said.

The court decision held that the pipeline right-of-way needed during construction exceeded width limits in a 1920 federal minerals leasing act.

China Raps Russia Over Name Changes

WASHINGTON (WP) — After a lengthy lull in the propaganda war with the Soviet Union over border problems, China has mounted a new campaign, accusing the Russians of trying to "remove the evidence" that certain disputed areas were once under Chinese control.

The Chinese attack was prompted by a supreme Soviet decree last month ordering changes of names of some 50 towns, rivers and other localities in the far eastern maritime province. Their traditional names of Chinese or to Russian names.

Most of the changes involve localities along the Trans-Siberian Railway stretch between Khabarovsk and Vladivostok in the Amur-Ussuri Rivers complex where Soviet and Chinese troops clashed repeatedly in 1969 and early 1970.

Hsinhua, the official Chinese News Agency, asserted last week that the Soviet decision had "one aim — to meet the need of pushing ahead with the social imperialist policy" of Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

"Since Brezhnev and his like wish to carry on the policy of aggression and expansion of the old tsars, they will certainly try in a thousand and one ways to remove the evidence of the old tsars' aggressive crimes and to extol the aggressors as heroes," the agency said. "This despicable trick of renaming places will only further reveal their ambitions for aggression."

Pheasants Bred as Targets Profitable

ST. MICHAEL, Alta. (CP) — An idea for a game-bird farm has proved rewarding and lucrative for Edmonton-area sportsmen and a farmer in this district 60 miles northeast of the provincial capital.

Jim Snipe and his wife, Darla, established the Edmonton Game Bird Club on 540 acres of marginal land about a year ago and stocked it with 600 six-week-old pheasant chicks last July.

The birds, from a pheasant farm at Rosemary, Alta., were released in September and October to provide sport for club members.

Jim said the idea for the private hunting club evolved from research and his interest in sport. He wrote his thesis for a master's degree, received from the University of Alberta, on the economics of hunting and fishing in Alberta.

He realized the potential, but still lacked enough information to proceed. He then got in touch with every government fish and wildlife agency in North America, obtaining as much information as possible.

"I designed my wire pens and drew up the plans before I even started looking for land," which had to have plenty of bush and long grass to provide cover for the birds, he said. It also had to be near a potential market.

Jim said he covered about 2,000 miles before he found the right land at the right price. The land cost him about $22,000 and the pens about $1,500.

While he obtained credit for the land, it was harder to obtain for the birds and the pens. However, he said it is possible to obtain credit on such things if the person can sell the lending agency on the project and demonstrate it has income-earning ability.

Then there were various regulations to meet, including a commercial game-bird raising licence, a shooting ground licence and a club licence.

The hunting season for a private club is set between Sept. 1 and March 31 of the following year.

A 40-bird membership in the bird club costs $250 and the minimum charge for a day's shooting, with five birds released, is $40. He charges on the basis of birds released rather than the number bagged because he feels it provides the hunter with more incentive. The recovery rate —between 75 and 80 per cent —appears to confirm his theory.

The operation requires the couple's time for less than six months of the year. During the winter Jim is employed off the farm and spends some time filling orders for mounted pheasants for which he charges $25 to $30, including the bird.

Jim said he and his wife are able to handle 1,500 pheasants a year without hiring additional help and his production costs, including interest, investment and depreciation, is about $3.50 for each bird.

They receive $8 a bird for those released to hunters and sell surplus birds for table consumption at $1.75 a pound, dressed.

Jim figures he may realistically expect a $3 to $4 return for each bird. On that basis, the Snipes are able to earn about $3,500 for about five months work, even after deducting a full year's interest on their land investment of eight per cent.

This year they are thinking about adding skeet shooting, providing overnight camping and picnicking facilities, a fish pond and facilities for snowmobiles.

Will Pattison of the provincial agriculture department's economics branch says some lessons can be learned from the Snipes' experience.

"Many farmers are having difficulty facing the 'cost-price' squeeze that is affecting most conventional farming enterprises," he said.

Tanker Spill Hazard Exaggerated: Oilman

WASHINGTON (CP) — A British oil industry executive said today that oil spills from ocean-going tankers pose little threat to the marine environment.

J. Wardley Smith of the International Tankers Owners Pollution Federation Ltd. of London told a conference on the prevention and control of oil spills that the press has grossly exaggerated the problem of oil pollution.

"The facts that oil is visible, floats on the surface, contaminates beaches, interferes with recreation such as swimming and boating and taints catches of fish, have all helped to direct a vast amount of usually ill-informed public attention on to the problem of oil pollution," Smith said in a speech prepared for delivery to the conference.

He said the public has been misled because many scientific facts "have been extracted from their context and magnified by the world's press into a major environmental threat."

But Smith said most marine biologists believe that if the level of oil pollution is not considerably increased, "there is little danger to the marine environment, although localized effects will be produced.

Smith's speech differed sharply from a recent United States government report which said a survey carried out by three research vessels had found a surprisingly high amount of oil pollution in the Atlantic.

Text of B.C.'s Controversial Land Bill

Victoria Times
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 1973 41
FOURTH SECTION

The Land Commission Act, sponsored by the governing New Democratic Party, is now being considered by the Legislature. It has sparked controversy which has lead to a major demonstration planned for Thursday on the grounds of the Legislative Buildings

The Times here publishes the text of the bill before the house (with the exception of the preamble which is summarizied).

The first six sections of the Provincial Land Commission Act set out the definitions of various types of land, details of the establishment of the commission and other matters which may be summarized as follows:

Unless the context otherwise requires, definitions of land are as described in Section 8.

The commission will consist of not less than five members appointed by the government and their payment will be set by the government. The government will also designate the chairman and the vice-chairman.

The commission will be an agent of the Crown and may hold in its own name land and other personal property and may dispose of, mortgage or assign such property.

The commission may also appoint employees as it considers necessary and engage experts, specialists and consultants. The government may also appoint a general manager and bring him under the Civil Service Act. The commissioners and the general manager may also be brought under the Civil Service Superannuation Act.

The commission may set up its own bylaws and pass resolutions not contrary to law or the Act and determine its own procedures in meetings and conduct the commission's affairs.

The purpose, intent and scope of the Land Commission Act as set out in Bill 42 now before the Legislature is — verbatim — as follows:

7. It is the object of the commission to

(a) preserve agricultural land for farm use;

(b) encourage the establishment and maintenance of family farms, and land in an agricultural land reserve, for a use compatible with the preservation of family farms and farm use of the land;

(c) preserve green belt land in and around urban areas;

(d) encourage the establishment and maintenance of land in a green belt land reserve for a use compatible with the preservation of a green belt;

(e) preserve land bank land having desirable qualities for urban or industrial development and restrict subdivision or use of the land for other purposes;

(f) encourage the establishment and maintenance of land in a land bank land reserve for a use compatible with an ultimate use for industrial and urban development;

(g) preserve park land for recreational use; and

(h) encourage the establishment and maintenance of land in a park land reserve for a use compatible with an ultimate use for recreation;

And, for these objects, it has the power and capacity, by itself, or in co-operation with the Government of Canada, or any of its agencies or corporations, or with any other department of Government, or with a municipality or regional district to

(i) purchase or otherwise acquire land, on such terms and conditions as the commission may consider advisable, and hold such land for the purposes of this Act;

(j) dispose of, by sale, lease, or otherwise, commission land and Crown land that is in an agricultural land reserve, a green belt land reserve, a land bank land reserve, or a park land reserve, or Crown land acquired under the Environmental Protection Act, subject to such terms and conditions as the commission may determine;

(k) accept gifts of land subject to such terms and conditions as the commission may determine;

(l) acquire and hold personal property and dispose of personal property so acquired by sale, lease, or otherwise; and

(m) if authorized by any other Act, purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, administer, and dispose of land, including Crown land, for the purposes of that other Act.

8. For the purposes of section 7, the commission may

(a) with the prior approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, designate land, including Crown land, that is suitable for farm use, as agricultural land;

(b) designate land, including Crown land, the present condition or future potential of which merits preservation by reason of its aesthetic quality or its location in or around urban areas, as green belt land;

(c) designate land, including Crown land, having desirable qualities for urban or industrial development or redevelopment, as land bank land; and

(d) designate land, including Crown land, having desirable qualities for, or future potential for, recreational use, as park land;

And, upon being so designated, the agricultural land, the green belt land, the land bank land, or the park land is established as

(e) an agricultural land reserve; or

(f) a green belt land reserve; or

(g) a land bank land reserve; or

(h) a park land reserve,

As the case may be, and shall be subject to this Act and the regulations.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by order, exclude any land, whether Crown land or private land, from the reserves established under section 8.

10. (1) No person shall occupy or use agricultural land designated as an agricultural land reserve pursuant to section 8 for any purpose other than farm use, except as permitted by this Act or the regulations or by order of the commission upon such terms and conditions as the commission may impose.

(2) In addition to the exceptions, reservations, or limitations set out in subsection (1) of section 38 of the Land Registry Act, a certificate of title heretofore issued under that Act in respect of agricultural land that is designated as an agricultural land reserve shall be subject, by implication and without special endorsement on the certificate of title, to this Act and the regulations respecting the reserve and farm use of the land contained therein; and the Registrar under the Land Registry Act shall note on every certificate of title of agricultural land hereafter issued that is designated as an agricultural land reserve an endorsement that the certificate of title may be affected by this Act.

(3) Notwithstanding subsection (2), the commission may, in respect of any agricultural land that is an agricultural land reserve, register a caveat in the appropriate Land Registry Office restricting the agricultural land described therein to farm use.

(4) On, from, and after the twenty-first day of December, 1972, except as permitted by this Act, or the regulations, or by an order of the commission upon such terms and conditions as the commission may impose,

(a) no municipality, or regional district, or any authority, board, or other agency established by it shall authorize or permit agricultural land in an agricultural land reserve to be used for a purpose other than farm use, or authorize or permit a building to be erected thereon that is not for farm use, or for a residence necessary for farm use;

(b) no person, designated or appointed under the Local Services Act, shall authorize or permit agricultural land in an agricultural land reserve to be used for a purpose other than farm use, or authorize or permit a building to be erected thereon that is not for farm use, or for a residence necessary for farm use;

(c) no approving officer under the Land Registry Act and no approving officer or Board of Variance under the Municipal Act shall authorize or permit agricultural land in an agricultural land reserve to be used for a purpose other than farm use; and

(d) no Registrar of Titles under the Land Registry Act shall accept an application for deposit of a plan of subdivision under the Land Registry Act, or under the Strata Titles act, or under the Real Estate Act, all or part of which consists of agricultural land in an agricultural land reserve.

11. (1) Section 10 does not apply in respect of agricultural land in an agricultural land reserve that, on the twenty-first day of December, 1972, was, by separate certificate of title issued under the Land Registry Act less than two acres in area.

(2) Where a use of agricultural land that is within an agricultural land reserve

(a) is a use other than farm use; and

(b) was established and carried on continuously for a period of at least six months immediately prior to the twenty-first day of December, 1972; and

(c) is permitted by, or is not in contravention of, any other Act, regulation, by-law, order, or any other law respecting land use, that agricultural land is exempted from section 10 unless and until

(d) the use of that agricultural land is changed to a use other than farm use without the permission of the commission; or

(e) any other Act, regulation, by-law, order, or any other law made after the twenty-first day of December, 1972, prohibits such use; or

(f) permission for any other use granted under any other Act, regulation, by-law, or order is withdrawn or expires.

(3) Where agricultural land, exempted under subsection (2), is sold, leased, transferred, transmitted, or otherwise disposed of, this Act and the regulations thereupon apply to that land, except as otherwise permitted by the commission.

(4) The commission may, in accordance with the regulations, hear and determine applications for permission under subsections (2) and (3), and under subsections (1) and (4) of section 10, and may grant or refuse permission for a use of the land for other than farm use, and may impose whatever terms and conditions it considers advisable, and, except as provided in subsection (5), the decision of the commission is final and no appeal lies from that decision.

(5) An owner of land aggrieved

(a) by an order or decision of the commission refusing permission under subsection (1) or (4) of section 10 or under this section; or

(b) by the terms and conditions imposed by the commission in an order made under subsection (1) or (4) of section 10, or a permission granted under this section, may appeal, on a question of law or excess of jurisdiction only, by way of stated case to the Supreme Court, and the provisions of the Summary Convictions Act respecting appeals by way of stated case apply, with the necessary changes and so far as are applicable, to the appeal, and to any further appeal therefrom, and a reference in the Act to a Justice shall be deemed to be a reference to the commission.

12. With respect to agricultural land designated as an agricultural land reserve, the commission may

(a) make agreements with the owners of agricultural land respecting continued farm use of the agricultural land upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed;

(b) carry on farming operations on commission land or agree with other persons to do so;

(c) withdraw from an agricultural land reserve agricultural land owned by the commission and, with the prior approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, dispose of such land to the Crown to be dealth with under the Land Act;

(d) dispose of agricultural land owned by the commission, with the prior approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to private ownership for permanent farm use, or any other use considered by the commission to be in the public interest, subject to such terms and conditions as the commission may determine; and

(e) subject to the approval of the Minister of Finance, or of the Minister of Municipal Affairs, as the case may be, establish a system of tax incentives to encourage the dedication of privately owned agricultural land to permanent farm use, and to increase the agricultural productivity thereof.

13. The commission may make, place, or construct on or bring onto, or cause to be made, placed, or constructed on or brought onto, any commission land such capital improvements as it considers necessary or desirable for the efficient development or use of the commission land or other land in the vicinity, and pay for or purchase any capital improvements made, placed, or constructed on or brought onto any commission land by any person.

14. Where commission lands are unoccupied or a lease of commission land does not provide for the payment of tax by the lessee, the commission may pay to the municipality or regional district a grant in lieu of taxes.

15. The commission may establish, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, a schedule of fees to be paid to the commission for the preparation of leases and other documents, for appraisals and evaluations of land, and for copies of documents of the commission.

16. Land shall be deemed not to be taken or injuriously affected by reason of the designation by the commission of that land as an agricultural land reserve, green belt land reserve, land bank land reserve, or park land reserve.

17. For the purposes of this Act, the minister may, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, enter into such agreements as the minister considers advisable with

(a) the Government of Canada;

(b) a municipality;

(c) a regional district;

(d) an agent of the Crown; or

(e) any other department of Government.

18. (1) The commission shall submit annually to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council

(a) a report respecting the operations of the commission for the immediately preceding fiscal year;

(b) a financial statement showing the business of the commission for that fiscal year, in such form as may be required by the Comptroller-General.

(2) The report shall be laid before the Legislative Assembly within fifteen sitting days from the commencement of the session next following the end of the fiscal year for which the report is made; but the commission is not required to submit its annual report less than ninety days after the end of its fiscal year.

19. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act according to their intent, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make such regulations and orders as are ancillary thereto and not inconsistent therewith; and every regulation shall be deemed to be part of this Act and has the force of law; and, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations and orders.

(a) respecting the designation and approval of agricultural land reserves, and the designation of farm use;

(b) respecting applications to the commission for permission under section 10 and section 11, and the practice and procedure for hearing the application;

(c) respecting the appraisal of land and the acquisition, by purchase or lease, of land;

(d) respecting applications for sale or lease of commission land or personal property, or Crown land that is in a reserve, and the terms and conditions of sale or lease;

(e) respecting the management and control of commission land;

(f) prescribing the method of determining the eligibility of applicants to lease or purchase commission land;

(g) prescribing the interest payable in respect of purchases from the commission or arrears or rents;

(h) providing for varying, waiving, postponing, or rescheduling of interest or rent or the payment of interest or rent; and

(i) respecting any other matter required for carrying out the purpose of this Act.

20. (1) This Act is subject to the Environment and Land Use Act and the Pollution Control Act, 1967, and the Environmental Protection Act, but otherwise, except as provided in this Act, this Act and the regulations are not subject to any other Act or regulations, whenever enacted or made, and no Minister, department or Government, or agent of the CRown shall exercise any power granted under any other Act or regulation except in accordance with this Act and the regulations.

(2) Notwithstanding the Land Act or any other Act or law, the commission, as agent of Her Majesty in right of the Province, shall administer as commission land all Crown land that is designated under section 8 as reserve land and Crown land under the Environmental Protection Act, and may sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of any portion of such land in accordance with this Act upon such terms and conditions as the commission may determine.

(3) Notwithstanding subsection (1), where Crown land that is designated as an agricultural land reserve under section 8 has been leased by the Crown, or sold by agreement for sale by the Crown and not transferred to the purchaser before the twenty-first day of December, 1972, and on that date was being used for a purpose other than farm use, but as permitted by, or not in contravention of, the terms and conditions of the lease or agreement for sale, that use may continue until the termination of the lease or the issue of title to the purchaser under the agreement for sale.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), nothing in this Act or the regulations affects or impairs the validity of a by-law of a municipality or regional district relating to the use of agricultural land in an agricultural land reserve except in so far as the by-law is contrary to, or is in conflict with, inconsistent with, or repugnant to, this Act, or the regulations, or an order of the commission; and in case of any conflict, inconsistency, or repugnancy between the by-law and this Act, or the regulations, or order of the commission, this Act or the regulations or the order of the commission prevails.

(5) A by-law or regulation of a municipality or regional district, or any provision thereof, that is, in any manner, in conflict with, inconsistent with, or repugnant to this Act, or the regulations, or order of the commission is suspended and of no effect to the extent of such conflict, inconsistency, or repugnancy.

(6) A bylaw or regulation of a municipality or regional district that provides for further or additional restrictions or conditions respecting farm use of agricultural land than those provided by this Act and the regulations is not, for that reason alone in conflict with, inconsistent with, or repugnant to this Act and the regulations.

(7) Subject to subsection (8), the Companies Act does not apply to the commission.

(8) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by order, declare that any of the provisions of the Companies Act apply to the commission, and those provisions thereupon apply to the commission.

21. (1) For the purposes of this Act and the establishment of an agricultural land reserve under section 8, the Minister of Finance shall, from time to time as required by the commission, pay out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, or the Revenue Surplus Appropriation Account of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, or partly from the Consolidated Revenue Fund and partly from the Revenue Surplus Appropriation Account, to the commission, an amount not exceeding in the aggregate twenty-five million dollars.

(2) For the purposes of this Act and the establishment of green belt land reserves, land bank land reserves, or park land reserves, the Minister of Finance may pay under the Green Belt Protection Fund Act or the Accelerated Park Development Fund Act, or any other Act that authorizes moneys to be paid for such purposes, such amounts as he may consider necessary for the purpose of this Act.

(3) Further moneys required for the purposes of this Act shall be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund with moneys authorized by an Act of the Legislature to be paid and applied for such purposes.

22. (1) This Act, excepting this section, comes into force on a date to be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor by his Proclamation and he may fix different dates for the coming into force of the several provisions of his Act; and the date of the coming into force of any of the provisions of this Act may be declared to be before or after the enactment of this Act.

(2) Where the date of the coming into force of any of the provisions of this Act is prior to the enactment of this Act, that provision of the Act is retroactive to the extent necessary to give full force and effect to that provision on, from, and after that date.

(3) This section comes into force on Royal Assent.

Killing Possibly Mistake

From AP, UPI

HAMILTON, Bermuda — Lady Pamela Sharples, window of the slain British governor of Bermuda, said Tuesday her husband was sympathetic to the idea of independence for the colony and a "terrible mistake" was made if the murderer though otherwise.

In a statement read for her at a news conference by acting Governor Ian Kinnear, the widow said of Sir Richard Sharples:

"He was very firm in his view that a steady progress toward independence should be made as soon as Bermudians themselves wished for it."

Chief Supt. Bill Wright of Scotland Yard, who heads investigation of the Saturday night killing of Sharples, 57, and his aide-de-camp, Capt. Hugh Sayers, 25, told the news conference that the weapon used appeared to be a hand gun.

He indicated that Sir Richard did not die instantly, while Sayers did. Wright acknowledged that the governor could have spoken to the policeman who rushed to the fallen men as soon as he heard the shot. The superintendent, however, declined to confirm that such a conversation had occurred or to identify the policeman who was on duty at Government House at the time.

He said police are still holding about six persons for questioning, but no arrests in the case have been made.

Wright said detectives have found no link between the slaying of Sharples and the still-unsolved murder six months ago of Police Commissioner George Duckett. He disclosed for the first time that Duckett also had been shot with a hand gun.

The opposition Progressive Labor party first came out in favor of independence in 1964, but it has not pressed its case recently. The government party, the United Bermuda party, had not officially come out for independence, but its program appears to have left the way clear for it.

Sharples will be buried in a graveyard of St. Peters Church, the oldest Anglican church in the western hemisphere. At the request of Sayers family, the young soldier will be buried next to Sharples.

Did Victim Talk to Policeman?

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — The chief investigator into the slaying of Gov. Sir Richard Sharples and his aide, Capt. Hugh Sayers, says the governor did not die immediately and could have spoken to the policeman who rushed to him as soon as he heard the shot.

Chief Supt. Bill Wright of Scotland Yard would not confirm, however, that any conversation occurred, and he refused to identify the policeman who was on duty at Government House at the time of the killing Saturday night.

He told a news conference Tuesday that apparently a hand gun was used. He said police are still holding about six persons for questioning but no arrests have been made.

Wright also said detectives have found no connection between the slaying of Sharples and the still unsolved murder six months ago of Police Commissioner George Duckett. But he disclosed for the first time that Duckett also had been killed with a hand gun.

Cuttings Can Increase Delphinium Stocks

Delphiniums, the stately lovelies of a bygone era of gardening, are now seldom seen in anything more imposing than a casual group. Occasionally we see a splendid spike or two in June flower shows but the average home gardener is not willing to provide that extra fertility of soil needed to get fine spikes.

Growing named varieties from cuttings as is done in England and some other countries is almost unknown here.

On the coasst it is customary to grow delphiniums from seeds sown either in late August or in a cool greenhouse in February. We rely on getting a good strain of the Pacific Giant seed raised by Vetterle and Reinelt of California or the English Blackmore and Langdon strain.

Both are reliable raisers, but with seedling strains we still must select the best plants after they bloom. To be fair to the plants (or perhaps more explicitly, to the originators) we should restrict the plant to one spike the first year and cut it off as soon as the bottom florets are fertilized or wilt.

The second year's spikes, if limited to no more than the three strongest, will give a true picture of the plant's value as a producer of good spikes.

The plants which don't stack up to expectations are discarded; the good ones can be propagated by taking cuttings.

This method is not commonly used by home gardeners in Canada to increase delphinium plants, yet every chrysanthemum grower uses a similar procedure each spring to get a new stock of plants exactly like the parent plants.

As a new venture, why not try taking two or three cuttings from a good delphinium you may already have in the garden? Then grow them with special care to see what kind of spike you can achieve.

You may be surprised at the improvement, though basically color and form will be the same as the parent from which you take the cuttings.

Delphinium stems are hollow as you will know. A hollow stem cannot form roots, so you must take your cuttings from the point of origin at the base of the plant with a "heel" attached. In this way, the tissue at the bottom of the three-inch cutting will be solid. A two-inch cutting is more likely to root than a four or five inch one, but three is just about right.

Set the cuttings into a damp mixture of sand and peat with a little bottom heat to warm the rooting mixture. Cover the green tops with a glass jar to prevent evaporation of moisture.

As soon as rooting is evident (by renewed growth), pot each cutting into compost and put into a covered coldframe to grow a little before going to the garden.

Manure, seaweed, bracken, wood ashes and compost are all desirable ingredients in garden soil for delphiniums. Summer watering in our climate is absolutely necessary but the frequency of watering is reduced by including these ingredients.

Try this year for better delphiniums. You will be proud of what you can achieve.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal arose in the 1972 Summer National Championships, virtually every North-South pair arrived at the identical small-slam contract. Just about every South declarer received the same opening lead, which gave him a guess as to what to play. So far as I know, each of them guessed correctly.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

◇ K J

WEST
♠ 10 5 4

EAST
♠ 9 8 6 3 2
♡ Q 8
◇ A 10 8

SOUTH
♡ A K J 9 2
◇ 7 4 2

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 2 ♣ | Pass |
| 2 ♠ | Pass | 4 NT | Pass |
| 5 ♡ | Pass | 6 ♡ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: Five of ◇.

The above was the bidding sequence at one of the tables. When South rebid two spades, he informed North that he had not only four spades, but also five hearts (with four spades and four hearts, South would have opened the bidding with one spade). Upon finding out that South possessed two aces, North then contracted for the small slam in hearts.

Presumably, at each of the tables, the bidding proceeded along the same lines, with South bidding hearts and spades, and North bidding clubs. So it was not unnatural that the various West defenders opened a diamond, the unbid suit.

On the face of it, South now had a guess as to whether to put up dummy's jack (hoping that West was leading away from the queen), or instead to play the board's king (in the hope that West was underleading the ace). Of course, if East possessed both the ace and queen, it didn't matter what declarer played, since two tricks would be lost.

The reason why all the declarers "guessed" to play the jack is a simple one. Very rarely does a defender dare to underlead an ace at trick one against a small-slam contract. Hence, each declarer made the assumption that West was not underleading the ace; and, simultaneously, each declarer indulged in the wishful thinking that West was underleading the queen.

As is evident, East's ace captured the opening diamond lead, and declarer had no further problems. Upon obtaining the lead, he drew trumps in two rounds and claimed his contract. Bidding and making six hearts was worth 7 match points out of a possible 12, just a little above average.

Incidentally, had West not led a diamond, declarer would have made all 13 tricks.

FUN WITH FIGURES

by J. A. H. HUNTER

Bill was busy at the table over by the window. "I guess 26 is our lucky number, Dad," he said suddenly. "Your age when you married Mom, and it's the number of our house."

"Okay," replied Mike, "but what else?"

The boy grinned. "Just a number I found. It's a multiple of 26 and its digits add up to 26, and it's the smallest number that works that way."

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: WHEAT was 19047.

CUT-RATE DIVORCE

LONDON (CP) — Do-it-yourself enthusiast Jennifer Ransom maintains her own car, makes her own clothes — and even conducted her own divorce case. Without lawyers, Jennifer's case cost her only $28, one-tenth the customary cost of a divorce. The money was spent filling the petition and purchasing a few necessary documents.

Gabon Again Hits It Rich

By HENRI MENDY

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (Reuter) — The small French-speaking African republic of Gabon, rich in minerals and potentially one of the wealthiest countries in Africa, is mounting an oil boom.

In the sparsely-populated, west central equatorial forests, natural resources were not fully exploited until about 10 years ago.

But since the former French colony became an independent republic in 1960, it has developed reserves of oil, iron ore, manganese and uranium to attain one of the highest earning rates in black Africa.

A dramatic increase in oil production developed with a 1971 strike which tapped an unusually rich deposit.

Officials estimate that by 1975, as a result of this and related discoveries, oil production in Gabon will total more than 71 million barrels, double that of 1972.

Drilling for oil in this country where the Alsatian medical missionary Albert Schweitzer ran his jungle hospital for 53 years began in 1949.

A French company, Elf-Spafe, got permission to begin onshore test drills. By 1957 two oilfields were in production.

Attention turned to offshore drilling and by 1972 the number of fields increased to 10. Production rose to more than 46 million barrels.

Other international oil companies joined Elf-Spafe. Shell, Chevron, Gulf and Texaco all were attracted to the scene along with many smaller American and European firms.

In 1971, the most important strike was made in a previously unproductive area. The new field, called Grondin, is estimated to have reserves of 500 million to 700 million barrels.

Prospectors discovered further rich fields in the same sandstone area, all in locations where the ocean is no more than 200 feet deep.

Such depths allow use of conventional drilling machinery. Prospectors feel now discoveries are likely at much greater depths, requiring more sophisticated drilling equipment.

About 5.7 million barrels of oil is refined in Gabon itself by the Equatorial Refining Co. at Port Gentil, about 100 miles south of Libreville.

The Gabon government, which has only a tiny share in the oil business, intends to increase its stake to 25 per cent.

21 MALE HELP WANTED

W—A—N—T—E—D
Mature, ex-businessman or salesman to introduce Harley Davidson Golf Cars (American Sales Leaders) to clubs and pros. This is not a daily grind but would require certain days or weeks in a year concentrated and working with golf courses in Victoria and Vancouver. (We do represent B.C. though.)
The challenge should be interesting and worthwhile, the earnings would depend on accomplishment and probably not be immediate.
Nominal expenses would be provided, but the real remuneration would have to come from the sales and leases developed. We're looking for the man that wants an interest in life and has the initiative to build and look after a business without constant supervision.
Kindly arrange for interview, Don Telford, 386-8424, including Sunday.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Many Dyspeptics Just Faddists

Although today we physicians know that few persons lack pepsin (the digestive ferment in the stomach) and few owe their indigestion to a lack of this ferment, many laymen, and some doctors, speak of a certain type of man or woman as dyspeptic. ("Dys" means lack of.)

Such a person may have but little appetite or capacity for food, he may lack interest in his meals, and he may fear to eat, feeling sure that much food at one time will disagree with him. A man will say that he cannot touch food that is acid, fried, rich, or warmed over, or anything that contains roughage, or any dessert. And yet, with all this self-restraint, he can go on suffering just the same.

Some dyspeptics fall in the group of health food faddists, who believe in living on little besides whole grains, fruits, or nuts. In some persons, there must be a defect in the digestive tract which causes it to function poorly throughout life.

Sometimes a thin dyspeptic has what I call the "small laboratory disease." My father was one such person. He was comfortable if he ate little for his digestive laboratory to digest. A physician, he often said that he liked to eat his food in "original packages" and cooked simply, without fancy seasoning. Thus he would eat a piece of meat, but he would not touch a ragout, or a Hungarian goulash.

Many dyspeptics, at necropsy (the study of the tissues of a dead person), are found to be without gross disease in the digestive tract.

ALONE AT LAST
NOT SO EASY TO BE NOWADAYS

BUT HERE ON THIS 2.84 ACRES LOCATED HIGH ON A SMALL MOUNTAIN IN SAANICH MUNCIPALITY, YOU CAN BE.

An 800 foot blacktop driveway leads up to the three-bedroom post and beam home with a living room 25x29 ft. One complete 25 foot wall in natural rock with the fireplace inset.

Sliding glass doors lead to both front and back sun porches off the living room—the walls are Walnut panelling, and the floor is finished in beige high quality wall-to-wall shag carpting.

There are two bedrooms on the main floor and one downstairs. The master bedroom is 12 by 15, with an eight by nine four-piece bathroom ensuite. This bedroom also has walnut panelling and beamed ceiling, and wall-to-wall carpeting. The second bedroom is 10 by 11 and adjoins the second three-piece bathroom which also has an extra large built in shower. The third bedroom is downstairs and is 10 by 16 ft. The rumpus room is 15 by 15 ft. and is finished in Cedar Knotty Cedar panelling and high quality wall-to-wall carpeting on the floor. There is a good sized basement with a double carport adjoining.

The view from this house is almost unbelievable, ranging all the way from Race Rocks to Mount Baker, and including the city centre and the Victoria waterfront and the Olympic mountains. At night it becomes a fairyland of glittering lights.

This secluded property is located 7 miles from downtown Victoria, fifteen minutes by car.

Approx. 1 acre is cleared and in pasture and there is plenty of room for a horse or two. Arbutus trees dominate the property as well as large firs and some Dogwoods.

The asking price of $57,900 is well below the replacement cost today. The house is 8 years old.

IF THIS IS YOUR KIND OF PROPERTY THEN CONTACT YOUR AGENT AND ASK TO SEE MULTIPLE LISTING NUMBER 3606.

Shore Extension Favored

OTTAWA (CP)—A consensus seems to be emerging among world coastal nations that they should have control over a coastal zone up to 200 miles from shore, Environment Minister Jack Davis said Tuesday night.

He told the Commons this is one of several opinion trends that have appeared at preparatory meetings for the next law-of-the-sea conference, scheduled for Santiago, Chile, in 1974.

Canada's approach to the conference will emphasize two main points — control of marine pollution and conservation of fish resources—he said.

Following up principles adopted at the Stockholm environmental conference last year, Canada would press for the freedom of coastal states to protect their coastal areas.

Such nations should have jurisdiction over resources as far out as the edge of their own continental shelf, he said.

He spoke after Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West) said Canada should present the "most solid case imaginable" at the conference in an effort to conserve fish stocks.

If no management agreement is reached, Carter said, the fishing industry on the east coast will be seriously threatened.

Already, there has been a sharp decline in total fish landings, he noted. The Newfoundland catch in 1968 totalled 950 million tons but had fallen to 650 million tons in 1972.

Nixon Asks 'No Pity' Action To Combat Crime in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon urged Congress today to speedily restore the death penalty for treason, sabotage and espionage and for kidnapping and hijacking resulting in death.

He also asked that stiff new penalties be set for heroin traffickers and that the insanity defence be sharply restricted.

In a message to Congress—the sixth in his series of State of the Union reports—Nixon said:

"The only way to attack crime in America is the way crime attacks our people—without pity."

He said his proposed death-penalty statute was carefully written to overcome a Supreme Court decision last June ruling capital punishment unconstitutional.

Nixon said the court's 5-4 decision was that the death penalty is unconstitutiontl "only insofar as it is applied arbitrarily and capriciously."

"I believe the best way to accommodate the reservatons of the court is to authorize the automatic imposition of the death penalty where it is warranted," he said.

HOLD A HEARING

His proposal sets his procedure:

After conviction on a capital offence, a hearing would be held to determine if there were "aggravating factors or mitigating factors."

If a jury finds there are mitigating factors—such as "the youth of the defendant" or the defendant's mental capacity—"the death sentence is prohibited. . . ."

But if the jury finds there are aggravating factors—including "the creation of a grave risk of danger to the national security or to the life of another person, or the killing of another person" during commission of one of the list of crimes—"imposition of the death penalty by the judge would be mandatory" if no mitigating factors exist.

Nixon said capital punishment "can be a valuable deterrent" because the prospective criminal would know "that if a death results from their crime, they too may die."

He asked for immediate congressional approval to slam shut what he called "an escape hatch for those who are responsible for the menace of drugs."

That escape hatch, he said, is the present set of federal laws allowing laxity in sentencing of heroin and morphine traffickers.

Six Months Extra On Drug Charge

A Jordan River man already jailed for drug possession was sentenced to at least six more months for trafficking when he appeared in country court today.

David Reed Lowther, 21, found guilty earlier this month of trafficking in hashish, was sentenced to a six-month definite and six-month indeterminate term by Judge M. L. Drake.

Testimony during a two-day trial was that Lowther sold two grams of hashish last October to an RCMP undercover agent in a downtown hotel.

Today's term will be served following completion of a four-month definite eight-month indeterminate sentence handed Lowther earlier for drug possession.

In a second case before Judge Drake this morning, Richard Pegg, 21, of 1690 Stanhope Place changed his plea to guilty on a charge of trafficking in MDA last June. He will be sentenced March 23.

CANADA 'REFUSED CONG VISAS'

MONTREAL (CP) — The Vietnam Moratorium Committee says the Canadian government has refused to grant visitors' visas to three members of the provisional revolutionary government of South Vietnam.

Committee members told a news conference Tuesday the immigration department refused to grant visas to Ly Van Sau, Mrs. Phan Thi Minh and Le Van Loc, three members of the provisional revolutionary government.

Roland Morin, committee secretary, said the decision to bar the three—invited to Canada by the committee "to explain the situation in Vietnam"—casts doubt on Canada's neutrality in supervising the Vietnam ceasefire.

The committee asked:

"How can Foreign Minister Mitchell Sharp and the government of Canada claim to be neutral when they refuse to recognize one of the four signatories of the Paris peace agreement?"

The ceasefire agreement was signed by representatives of South Vietnam, the provisional revolutionary government, North Vietnam and the United States.

SHOWED LETTER

Committee members showed reporters what they said was a copy of a letter to them from Immigration Minister Robert Andras. The letter stated:

"The government of Canada recognizes the Republic of Vietnam as the sole legal government of South Vietnam. Since the delegates your committee has invited are representatives of the provisional revolutionary government of the republic of South Vietnam, which Canada does not recognize, it would be improper to grant Canadian visas to these delegates."

Mr. Morin said the three Vietnamese insisted on submitting passports of the provisional revolutionary government when they applied for visas Feb. 20 at the Canadian embassy in Paris.

Tourism Pays Off

GENEVA (AP) — Revenues from world tourism increased by more than 20 per cent during 1972 to nearly $25 billion, the International Union of Official Travel Organizations said in official estimates published Monday. The total does not include payments made by travellers for international transportation, the report said.

S. Africa Faces Labor Unrest

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Fresh labor unrest has erupted in the Durban area a month after mass walkouts by Zulu tribesmen crippled some industries and municipal services.

About 1,000 black workers who stopped work Monday at the South African Pulp and Paper Industries' paper mill at Tugela remained idle Tuesday.

Representative of the strikers met company officials to discuss wage demands, but there was no indication that negotiations were successful. The workers are demanding a minimum wage equivalent to $1.41 an hour.

About 100 municipal employees stopped work Tuesday at Stanger, north of Durban, after rejecting a 25-per-cent basic wage increase. The men now earn about $42.30 a month.

In Kimberley, De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd., biggest producer of diamonds in the world, said Tuesday it will raise the wages of the 11,100 non-white employees at its mines in South Africa and South-West Africa by 20 per cent on April 1.

The company said it expects the average cash earnings of its non-white workers to rise to $86 a month. Non-white is the South African term for blacks, mulattos and Asians.

Employees also receive free housing, free or subsidized food and free services such as medical attention and recreational facilities.

U.S. Eases Arms Ban

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States eased its embargo on arms shipments to India and Pakistan today, opening the way for the shipment to Pakistan of armored personnel carriers, spare military parts, parachutes and aircraft engines.

State department officials said the move would not alter the ratio of military strength in the area. The Soviet Union has become a major supplier of arms to India, they said.

Opponents Face Off on Bill 42

BILL 42 IN FULL

Bill 42 — the B.C. Land Commission Act — is probably the most controversial piece of legislation ever introduced in this province.

Extreme opponents have branded it as a socialist attack on the property rights of the individual. Some supporters hail it as the best solution yet to the problem of halting the devastation of irreplaceable agricultural land.

And between the extremes there are varying shades of opinion including many who endorse the principle of the bill but disagree on the means of achieving a worthwhile end.

Today's Times, on Page 41, presents Bill 42 as it was introduced in the legislature — the introductory first six sections in summary and the balance verbatim.

Opponents and supporters of the NDP government's proposed Land Commission Act squared off Tuesday and today, anticipating a major confrontation at the legislature tomorrow.

All opposition parties were active in their effort to scuttle the bill and two environmental organizations — the B.C. Wildlife Federation and the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC) — voiced support for it.

A new brief from the Victoria Real Estate Board called for delays and extensive changes to the legislation, and a petition against the act turned up 560 signatures from Salt Spring Island.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce this morning issued a brief, asking also for extensive changes, speculating that land and housing costs will be inflated by the land commission's actions.

In the legislature, Social Credit MLA Don Phillips spoke for more than five hours in a fillibuster-like attempt to focus opposition to the bill. Phillips was expected to continue his debate today and the Socreds intend to try to help the debate going until Thursday's demonstration.

B.C. Agriculture Federation manager Richard Stocks told a Kiwanis luncheon at the Empress that Thursday is "D-Day" for the bill — when as many as 4,000 demonstrators will demand a redrafting.

A public meeting in Oak Bay attracted about 50 persons, most of them against the legislation. Of the 60, only 10 indicated they had read the bill.

Liberal Leader David Anderson was in Kamloops at a bull sale and stock show where he called the bill "dictatorial" and said it would give the five-man land commission "complete power" to do what ever it wished to private land.

Progressive Conservative Leader Derril Warren was in Kelowna, urging 200 Okanagan residents to join the demonstration Thursday.

A demonstration in support of the bill is being organized by the Citizens Association to Save the Environment. A spokesman today said support is expected from farmers, fruit growers and others. It is planned for 12:30 p.m.

Phillips called the proposed land commission law vicious, idiotic, drastic, sinister, fantastic, and bad. He said Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich had been "stampeded" into introducing the bill, mostly by Resources Minister Bob Williams.

"Someone has become frightened, has not done enough research, has panicked and brought in this sinister bill . . . they have created calamity by using confiscation instead of compensation."

Phillips charged Stupich with having a closed mind on the subject and challenged him to "go out to the people and have social intercourse with them."

"He says he will shove it through at any cost . . . he'll force it through because he's backed into a corner."

At about 10 p.m. Phillips said the reason the bill was being rushed through the legislature was the apparent "urgency to execute the com-

Cheap Land Soon

Parcels of land will soon be available at "considerably reduced" prices through the government's land bank acquisition program, Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said in the legislature Tuesday.

The land will be available to the general public before long, Lorimer said in response to a question posed by Liberal leader David Anderson during the day's question period. People who wish to purchase land should wait for a while to avoid the high prices on land in the province, he said.

Lorimer said government acquisitions have taken place in the areas of Port Moody, Coquitlam, Burnaby and Vancouver. No land has been resold yet, he said, but it will become available through leases and rentals.

The minister said some sales, leases and rentals will take place through tenders and bidding procedures and some will not. Land being disposed of in the open market will go by bidding. He added that there will be room in the scheme for low income people who will not have to pay extraordinarily high prices for land.

To a question from Jim Chabot (SC. — Columbia River), Lorimer said the government will continue to pay as much as $82,000 per acre for the land it acquires if that high a price is necessary.

"It is difficult to get land at less than its market value," Lorimer said, adding that each purchase is taken into consideration by a valuator before a transaction is completed.

COMMON COLD CURE ... A HAPPY MARRIAGE

LONDON (Renter) — The best cure for the common cold could be a happy marriage, a sociologist says in a book.

Many people with cold symptoms do not actually have a cold, writes Lucy Freeman. They are subconsciously punishing themselves because things are going badly in love. Later, the body's natural defences break down and the cold virus is free to strike.

In the book, Your Mind Can Stop the Common Cold, Miss Freeman cites cases of a woman who developed a cold whenever her lover went abroad, and of a man who caught the sniffles when his mistress left him.

She also describes a survey in which a group of women office workers were split into two groups — one with happy marriages and the other with marital problems.

The first group rarely caught colds. The second group caught them regularly.

Little Support For Barrett

Premier Barrett has found little immediate support for his proposed Alaska to British Columbia railway to transport Arctic oil.

Barrett said he found officials in Washington firmly committed to the Alaska pipeline but he was awaiting official government reaction from Washington and Ottawa.

Washington sources said Interior Under-secretary John Whittaker indicated to Barrett that his proposal, as well as others, would be studied as a second system to move oil from the North Slope if future finds are so substantial as to require a second system.

Federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said in Ottawa Tuesday night the proposal was deficient because it would only serve Alaska oil deposits and not the Canadian oil finds in the Arctic.

A railway or pipeline through the Mackenzie Valley could serve both American and Canadian oilfields, he said.

"Any idea is useful," he said, but "I don't welcome having a project presented to me Monday and being asked Tuesday if I accept it."

In Juneau, Gov. William Egan of Alaska rejected the whole idea as impossible.

Egan, who advocates a pipeline through Alaska, said the railway proposal would present "insurmountable logistics problems and equally-impossible inviromental question."

The governor said: "Similar ideas have been given very, very serious consideration and considerable amounts of money have been expended on those studies. The logistics of doing this without great danger of regularly spilling the oil and hurting the landscape are impossible."

In announcing the proposal in Victoria Tuesday, Highways Minister Robert Strachan said there would be little hope for the project unless the B.C. government could get Alaska's support.

The B.C. government is urging construction of a double track rail line through Alaska and the Yukon to connect up with the British Columbia Railway. Some oil and gas could be transported by pipeline once inside B.C., according to the proposal.

Only immediate support outside B.C. came from Gordon Mcintyre, administrator of the Yukon, who said "we wocld be delighted to have a railway through the Yukon."

In Olympia, Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said Premier Barrett's proposal should be considered along with the Alaska pipeline and the Mackenize Valley proposal.

"Premier Barrett's proposal is an interesting and unique one which deserves thorough consideration," he said.

Bombers Hit Ulster Border

BELFAST (UPI) — Bombers thought to be Irish Republican Army men stepped up bomb campaigns today along the Irish Republic border with landmine booby-traps and in Northern Ireland's cities with conventional bombs.

A bomb wrecked a supermarket in southwest Belfast, another blast wrecked a greeting card shop in central Belfast near the city hall, and a third bomb wrecked a factory boiler house in the city's southwest suburbs. Police said there were no casualties.

Army spokesmen said the IRA narrowly missed a mobile army patrol when it exploded a land mine on a border road just before the patrol vechicle reached the spot. Army spokesmen said the border land mine was similar to one that killed Pvt. John W. King near Crossmaglen, 46 miles southwest of Belfast, Tuesday.

A bomb also exploded across the street in the shadow of Belfast's city hall today, causing extensive damage in the commercial centre of the Northern Ireland capital but no casualties.

Armed men planted the bomb in a card shop. It wrecked the shop and adjoining offices and blew out windows around the main square.

In London, seven men and three young women from Northern Ireland were ordered by a court Tuesday to be held for another week on charges of plotting the terror blasts that killed one man and wounded 243 persons in London.

The three-minute hearing at Bow Street magistrate's court took place among massive security precautions.

Meanwhile, a new government takes office in the Republic of Ireland today after 16 years of government by Jack Lynch and his Fianna Fail party.

The government, a coalition of Fine Gael and Labor, was elected with an over-all two-seat parliamentary margin 12 days ago. Fine Gael Leader Liam Cosgrave will be prime minister and Labor Leader Brendan Corlish will be deputy premier.

NEWS BRIEFS

Blizzards Whip Across Midwest

CHICAGO (AP) — Snow whipped by winds gusting to 60 miles an hour piled drifts up to eight feet high and paralysed much of Wyoming and western South Dakota today. In addition, 21 tornadoes were sighted from Illinois to Texas Tuesday night.

Dollar Moves Up

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar moved up strongly in bank-to-bank dealings today in the wake of further measures by European governments to stabilize monetary affairs. Trading was quiet. (See also Page 20).

Typhoid in Regina

REGINA (CP) — Dr. John Chiao, city medical health officer, Tuesday confirmed that a Regina woman has the first case of typhoid reported in this city in more than 10 years.

U.K. Students Out

LONDON (UPI) — Students joined Britain's "Strike-a-day" campaign Wednesday and boycotted classes at universities throughout the country in a demand for bigger government grants. Railway unions, conducting a go-slow, have called another full strike for Sunday.

THEY CAME OUT FIGHTING

A proposal to drop 5,000 people and a 505-acre subdivision onto a North Cowichan mountainside caused local residents to come out fighting. Times reporter Clement Chapple, who attended a public hearing on the matter last Thursday, examines the proposal and the day the "hicks" and "rustics" roared on Page 10 today.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—The United States has sent Hanoi a sharp reminder that the Paris pact specifically forbids an arms buildup in South Vietnam.

U.S. sources declined to specify the number of men and heavy equipment being infiltrated into the south. But pentagon officials earlier stated that as many as 30,000 North Vietnamese troops have moved down the Ho Chi Minh Trail on the Laotian border.

Any military buildup in Laos caused by another country would, in itself, violate the agreement signed in Paris Jan. 27 by the United States, Hanoi, Saigon and the Viet Cong.

Washington is delaying a formal protest until it can get a clearer idea of Hanoi's intent, the precise amount of infiltration and specific timing of the movements.

In Paris, meanwhile, the Viet Cong issued a statement accusing the Saigon government of violating the agreement by conducting military operations and failing to release civilian prisoners.

On the U.S. side, another reason for diplomatic care is concern for the release of U.S. prisoners still held by the Communists.

Meanwhile, Canada's External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp arrived in Tokyo today on his way to both North and South Vietnam to study the situation.

He is to hold talks in Tokyo with officials regarding relations between China and Japan before continuing his trip Thursday morning.

'Tax or Ban' Liquor Ads

Advertising of alcoholic products in B.C. should either be banned completely or should be subject to special taxation, the legislature's social welfare and education committee was told today.

E. D. McRae, executive director of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., told the committee advertising of alcohol produces "no social benefit" and is a negative cost to society.

He suggested that if no complete ban can be instituted, companies advertising their products should be taxed according to the amount they advertise. The money from this taxation would be used for counter-advertising aimed at reducing alcoholic consumption by the general public.

McRae said statistics have shown that 435 per cent of all alcoholic products are consumed by only seven per cent of all drinkers. He said there has been a rapid increase in recent years in the number of alcoholics in the province, in the amount of alcohol per capital being consumed and in the rate of death from cirrhosis of the liver.

He said the real cause for concern in the advertising field is the type of ad exposed through the electronic media. People have no choice but to be exposed to radio and television ads, he said, unlike newspaper and magazine ads which people read if they wish to.

There has been a trend, he said, by the large national alcoholic producers to make alcoholic products comparatively cheaper for the average person to purchase.

In response to questions from committee members, he said substantial increases in the cost of the product would likely cause a drop in consumption. The increase would

More Thalidomide Suits

Times News Services

A U.S lawyer representing 22 thalidomide-deformed Quebec children whose families never sued for damages from the drug manufacturer has launched a rere "end run" court action.

The first of two similar suits it was filed in Newark, New Jersey, to get around the Quebec legal code which has a time limit on when suits may be filed.

In Youngstown, Ohio, a Charlottetown lawyer filed a $6.5 million suit against the same manufacturer, Richardson-Merrill Inc. of Cleveland.

Gerald Foster, the Charlottetown lawyer acting for Jane Elizabeth Rogerson and her mother, Mrs. Adella Rogerson of Bedeque, P.E.I., said the action was filed on behalf of them and two other children and their parents. He is also asking $74 million in punitive damages for 74 other Canadian children.

Foster said "The action is a class action on behalf of all other Canadian thalidomide children and their parents."

The Quebec children, including a 12-year-old limbless girl are among at least 35 born in the early 1960s to Quebec mothers who, in early pregnancy, had taken thalidomide, the sedative blamed for the birth of thousands of armless and legless babies around the world.

Most of the Quebec parents never sought damages from the manufacturer, the Canadian subsidiary of Richardson-Merrell.

Some, living in remote areas, simply were unaware that they might have a basis to suie. Others were made legally helpless, or so they believed, by the Quebec legal code.

The code says that a damage suit must be field no more than one year after the occurrance of an injury which can be said to be related to a product.

Many of the children, however, were born before the company wrote to physicians in December, 1961, that a link could exist between birth defects and ingestion of Kevadon, its trade name for thalidomide, in the first trimester of pregnancy.

Arthur G. Raynes, who in 1969 represented an armless Pennsylvania boy in the first thalidomide case to go to a jury trial, filed the suit in behalf of Denis Henry, 10, and his parents, all of Viomnt est Laval, Quebec. Raynes now is counsel in 22 Canadian thalidomide cases.

The suit, built on a 21-year statute of limitations effective in New Jersey, accuses Richardson-Merrill of "negligent, fraudulent, wilful, wanton and reckless conduct," and asks for unspecified compensatory damages, legal costs, and "such other relief as may be fair and just."

The company has not filed an answer and declined to comment on the suit.

The Secret of Dr. King —As Told to a Victim

Since Education Minister Eileen Dailly has informed the legislature that the banning of the strap in public schools is a final decision, not a trial run, I suppose there's not much point in reminiscing about the time that Dr. Hubert B. King gave it to me.

Still, it may have the effect of illustrating the profound reaction that corporal punishment may have on a sensitive student, the one involved party whose opinion seems to have been unsolicited in this controversy, and I offer it in that hope.

Dr. King died in 1956. I met him, for the second time, in one of the immediate post-war years as a reporter assigned to a dinner meeting of the B.C. Federation of Teachers. There were cocktails before the dinner. I found myself, drink in hand, in a face-to-face confrontation with a man I was pretty sure I hated.

In his physical appearance Dr. King had changed little from that day, fully 20 years earlier, when he had given me the strap. He was a short, solidly-built man with rimless glasses and a military moustache. He was then chief inspector of schools for the province, a man widely acclaimed as a progressive educationalist and reformer and, indeed, he was to be honored as such at this dinner. Even so, knowing this, I could think of him only The Man Who Gave Me The Strap.

When I blurted out my accusation that he — or, to be fair, the system he had symbolized — had been the cause of my dropping out from school, Dr. King took a long thoughtful sip of his cocktail, fixed me with the gaze that had once struck terror into my heart, and urged me to tell him the story. "I suspect I know what it's going to be," he said, or words to that effect, "but tell me anyway."

The odd thing was that I could not remember what disobedience or mischief-making of mine had caused Miss Craig, the teacher of Latin, to give me the sealed note to the principal, a note that I was to deliver to his office the following morning. That gave me a nice, long night to think about it.

It was a common practice. The note would say that here was a boy to be disciplined. The disciplining was the function of the legendary Dr. H. B. King, then principal of the Kitsilano Junior High School. All that we knew, or were ever to know, of Dr. King was that he was a virtuoso with the strap. It was said that he did not stop until a boy cried.

The morning bell had not rung when I presented Miss Craig's note to Dr. King's secretary in an outer office. She took it in to his inner sanctum, carefully closing the door behind her. Presently Dr. King, himself, emerged, expressionless. "Follow me, John," he said. It was the first and last time I was ever called by my given name.

I walked one pace to the rear of Dr. King as he strode down the hall, down two flights of stairs, through a door marked "Furnace Room" and down a narrower flight of stairs into the brightly-lit basement of the school. I remember a maze of piping and, reaching up into it, Dr. King brought down a strap. It was of thick, black rubber, smooth on one side, indented with a criss-cross pattern on the other. "Hold out your right hand, John," said Dr. King.

Remembering that ordeal 20 years later as Dr. King and I sipped our cocktails, I told him truthfully that nothing about it was as I had expected. I had been terribly afraid of the pain, terribly afraid that I would cry. But with that first blow on my hand — and there were, at the most, six on each — I felt only a sense of humiliation, of shame for the two of us locked in a system which assumed the ridiculous proposition that something was to be gained by an adult inflicting a hurt on a boy.

With each blow I felt a deepening resentment and anger that my self-respect and the respect that I had for the school were being beaten out of me. If I had cried it would have been tears of disillusionment and indignity not tears of pain. I knew that I would never again feel a part of the system that was degrading to me as a person. I wanted no part of an educational philosophy that was insane enough or insensitive enough to think that the humiliation of physical punishment was the way to making me a better student.

"The effect of it," I told Dr. King, at that second meeting, man to man, "was that I decided that morning that I would look for my education elsewhere as soon as I could escape."

Dr. King, who had listened to this very attentively, then made some remark suggesting that perhaps I'd taken it all too seriously and said that such episodes had been as painful to him as to the student. One of the executive of the federation had taken his arm to lead him into the dinner, but half way across the room Dr. King stopped and came back to me.

"I feel I ought to tell you a secret," he said, smiling broadly. "In all that time I was at Kitsilano there was never a boy who cried."

METAL DETECTING for fun and profit is the hobby of Charles Moreland, 344 Island Highway. Based on the principle of Second World War mine detectors, the electronic box ferrets out buried metal such as coins in places where people congregate or seek seclusion. Moreland's device, in four weeks of beeping at one favored spot, turned up $30 worth of change. Since he took up the hobby last June, he has uncovered gold rings, an 1859 coin, lots of metal scrap, medallions, wads of foil—anything conductive. Moreland looks out for bottle caps, telling him that more people have been there and likely have dropped more valuables. Parks are one of his happy hunting grounds. This morning he was near Dallas Road. (Bill Halkett photos)

MAJOR FISH KILL

A major fish kill, believed caused by pollution from the sulphite pulp mill at Port Alice on the west coast of Vancouver Island, was reported today by commercial fishermen.

Federal fisheries official confirmed there has been a kill near the mill and inspectors are being flown to the area to estimate the damage.

"It seems to be mainly immature herring," he said. "We have had problems with that mill over the years."

Mike Hill of Tofino, secretary of the Save Our Salmon Committee, said a group of commercial fishermen hopes to fly to Port Alice today to see the damage.

"The weather has closed in on us, but we hope it will clear up in time for us to fly to Port Alice," he said. "We were informed it was a major kill."

Hill said pollution from the mill has been a cause of major concern among fishermen.

"It's time something was done about it," he said.

'Astronomical' Increase In City Break-In Figures

Victoria police annual report on crime for 1972 shows what Mayor Peter Pollen called an "astronomical" growth in breaking and entry, and "consistent" growth in assaults.

At the same time, the report shows that only one-tenth of reported B and Es were followed by criminal charges.

Police Chief Jack Gregory said there was a 10 per cent increase in over-all crime. He told today's meeting of the police commission that the juvenile qucta was down.

A total of 1,130 breaking and entries was reported in 1972 — 156 of them followed by charges.

A total of 322 cars was reported stolen — 37 charges ensued. A total of 73 thefts over $50 was reported, with 61 charges following.

The northeast sector of the city had the highest crime rate for breaking and entry. The area is bounded by Cedar Hill, Bay, North Dairy and Newton.

Auto theft was highest in an area bounded by Douglas, Tolmie, Quadra and Bay.

The north central city area had highest theft and other criminal rates.

Marijuana and hashish (Cannabis Sativan and resin) continued to top the drug possession and trafficking charge figures. Under the city's new policy of pursuing drug offenders apart from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police drug squad, instituted in July, 246 persons, 21 of them women, were arrested. A total of 57 offences involved heroin. Only seven concerned LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide).

Juveniles, Addiction Cited

Juveniles featured prominently in 580 shoplifting offences reported, involving $24,600 worth of property. A total of 428 persons was charged, 217 of them juveniles. The police report said an element of theft caused by drug addiction was "noticeable" in this area.

Elsewhere, the report says, "the line between the youthful offender who commits antisocial delinquincies for whatever reason, and the "drug scene" group who thieve at any, and every, opportunity, to support drug habits, becomes more and more difficult to discern."

The report knocks parents for lack of support: Frustration — the constant companion of any police officer — seems particularly to haunt the officer assigned to youth work, who invariably hears concern expressed, but seldom sees support offered, by the effort to curtail juvenile delinquencies.

"The root causes behind the behavior of juvenile offenders are considered beyond the officers' competence to determine, and, for all practical purposes beyond his duties to modify or correct."

Topping the driving violations were speedsters, 2,444 of whom got tickets in 1972. Red light shooters, 1,344 of them, came hot on the heels of drivers without "inspection sticker" — there were 2,272 of them.

No less than 38,556 drivers overshot their time on parking meters and another 13,216 got tickets for parking overtime.

Impaired driving charges jumped from 162 in 1971 to 279 last year: Driving with excessive alcohol charges also jumped, from 45 to 69, and 25 drivers refused a breath test, compared with 11 in 11971.

Police Circus Okayed For This Year But . . .

A circus show which has been sponsored for five years by Victoria Police Mutual Benevolent Fund will go ahead this year, but police commission chairman Mayor Peter Pollen is not so sure about 1974.

"If this circus was brought in by the police department in an unofficial capacity, it would be another matter," the mayor told a regular police commission meeting today.

"I do feel that if Victoria police department's name is being used to legitimize this circus activity we should be discussing it."

Police Chief Jack Gregory said that in 1972 $3,908 went to local charities and the same figure was split 50-50 between the police mutual benevolent association and the policemen's union. The total was a small proportion of the gross take of the show. Gregory said he did not know what proportion it was.

The mayor said he thought policemen, and firemen too, were well enough paid nowadays not to have to sponsor a charity benefit.

"Just think of the members of the legislature holding a circus on the lawns of the Parliament Buildings," he said.

Gregory admitted that canvassing for the annual show "generated a lot of calls" every year and "certain people" did object.

"But in each case it's a matter of a businessman saying he already pays his taxes for the police, and I say he's under no obligation," Gregory said.

The commission agreed to hear a report from the police circus committee.

WALLACE HEADS HOSPITAL GROUP

The Capital Regional Hospital District's seven-member advisory committee today got a new chairman, University of Victoria chancellor Robert T. Wallace.

Computer Report Cards Survive Student Dislike

Despite evidence that students oppose computerized report cards, it appears their use will be continued in at least three Greater Victoria secondary schools.

The decision will be made next Monday when the school board votes on an administration recommendation that "the computerized reporting procedures be continued at Mt. View, Reynolds and Highrock secondary schools, and that one other school be added to the list starting September 1973."

Associate instruction director Glen Wall told a board committee this week the computerized cards leave more time for teachers to do other work, and save a great deal of time in administration record keeping.

A survey last spring showed that 94 per cent of teachers favored use of the cards, which began as an experiment at the three schools in September 1971.

The survey also showed, however, that 57 per cent of students opposed the computer cards.

Cathy Ferguson, the student representative on the school board committee, confirmed that students at her school, Esquimalt senior secondary, were "overwhelmingly against" introducing the cards.

"It's 12 years of a student's life and we'd like something more than a computer printout," she said.

"Doesn't student opinion ecunt?" Trustee Walter Donald said.

"I think it's terribly significant that students are opposed to them. They realize they are becoming more and more of a statistic," he added.

School principals attending the meeting said most teachers put written comments on the cards and principals check every card as well.

BUDGET INCREASE

Mayor Peter Pollen said at today's police commission meeting he would take the estimates to city comptroller Jim Bramley for a closer look.

Gregory is seeking to rehire five officers who have been doing court duty, to bring his force up to 150. So-called court officers are proposed to replace the qualified policemen.

NORAD Subject of Meet

Six members of parliament and military experts from across the country will attend a day-long seminar on Canada and NORAD Monday, March 26, in the Empress Hotel.

MPs coming are Andrew Brewin (NDP — Greenwood), Gordon Fairweather (PC — Fundy-Royal), Mike Forrestall (PC — Dartmouth-Halifax East), George Hees (PC — Prince Edward-Hastings), John Roberts (Lib — York-Simcoe) and Doug Rowland (NDP — Selkirk).

Speakers will include John Gellner, editor of the Canadian Defence Quarterly, Dr. J. C. Arnell, special assistant to the deputy minister of national defence, and Dr. Colin Gray, a military strategist from the University of British Columbia.

Gordon Hawkins of the centre for foreing policy studies at Dalhousie University will be chariman.

The seminar is sponsored by the University of Victoria history department in co-operation with the University of British Columbia political science department and the department of external affairs.

New Community School 'A Monstrosity' Says Ney

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A model and sketch plans for Saanich community school were presented to Greater Victoria school board Tuesday night and came under fierce attack by Trustee Philip Ney.

"It's a monstrosity," Ney said, " . . . the worst of all my nightmares.

"Personal contact is the most important thing in education. But we keep doing the same thing building square schools with square roofs, and still complain about students behavior," Ney said.

Ney called the proposed school building "a machine" that's concrete walls will have a very real effect on the attitudes of the students it produces.

The model, presented for the board's information by architectural firm of Peterson and Lester, showed a large three-level building with community facilities including a 500-seat auditorium, a gym, library, workshop and art areas and an optional swimming pool.

Alan Lester said the school, situated in the Burnside-Acorn area of Saanich, is an attempt to get away from the "anonymity and impersonalization" spoken of by Ney.

He said the architects tried "to avoid altogether the whole idea of corridors" and allowed large areas of space throughout the school as well as designing large classrooms which teachers can divide up or use as they see fit.

Lester said concrete has to be used to comply with strict fire regulations.

The school, scheduled to open September 1974 with about 950 secondary students, has been in the planning stages for over 19 months under a joint school board — Saanich community committee.

Trustee Walter Donald, who said "personally it's not my kind of box," added that the model was presented to the Saanich community group last week and received their wholehearted approval.

"To criticize the plan and take the architects to task is unfair," board chairman Peter Bunn said, because the architect had been faced with educational and community specifications as well economics limitations.

"We have to follow department of education rules and just try to bend them as much as we can," Bunn said. I can't see how we can change the whole philosophy of education by one school in one district."

Trustee William Ross said he agreed with Ney that a core of community facilities, surround by "more portable type classroom units" would be a more beneficial layout.

"Why do we have to build schools so large?" Ross asked. "This is a problem we should start attacking now. I think 400 to 500 students is a good school size."

Portable classroom areas were discussed, district superintendent A. J. Longmore said, but found to be impractical. Schools had to be large, he added, to accommodate diversified program.

The architects said there is not enough area at the site to build a campus-style school envisioned by Ney.

"So we sacrifice student identity for the economy of land space," Ney replied.

No date has been set for construction to begin on the school.

City Lawyer Not Developer

Victoria lawyer and former city alderman Ian Stewart says a March 9 Times report was incorrect in describing him as "the developer" in an apartment project approved last year by the board of variance.

The report quoted Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen describing Mr. Stewart as "the developer" in a Goward Developments Ltd. highrise project at 139 Clarence.

Mr. Stewart says he resigned as a director of the development company a month before the zoning public hearing held by the board of variance.

"For the record, I have never been in a controlling position in Goward Developments Ltd. and in any event I resigned as a director on March 31, 1972, and at that time divested myself of all interest in Goward, Mr. Stewart said.

likely have to be in the 25-35 per cent range to be effective, he said.

For example, McRae said, if beer was made less expensive, some of the public's interest might be turned away from hard liquor.

Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi produced figures which showed that retail sales in alcoholic products will be around $250 million in B.C. this year. He pointed out that there is only about $500,000 spent per year on treatment, rehabilitation and education of alcoholic problems.

McRae said that although most advertising appears aimed at differentiating between one specific brand and another, there has been a tendency by the liquor industry to extend their advertising targets to other areas.

Middle - aged women have been one such target, he said. Activities which were not formally associated with consumption of alcohol are now being exposed in connection with the companies' products, and in skiing, boating, mountain climbing and hunting advertisements, he said.

McRae also recommended to the committee that if a total ban on liquor advertising — along with tobacco advertising — cannot be enforced at the provincial level, the federal government "should be encouraged to invoke a national ban."

He also said advertising of alcohol and tobacco should be considered along with all other types of advertising — and the social costs and benefits of advertising generally should be examined.

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Nicolo Garnesi, a 67-year-old doctor, suffered a heart attack Monday night while watching the controversial film Last Tango in Paris. Police said he died while being taken to hospital.

Oak Bay Eyes Rezoning Fees

Oak Bay council will consider a recommendation of its A committee meeting Monday night to ask for changes in the Municipal Act to allow fees to be levied for rezoning, subdivisions and development areas.

At its meeting today the committee agreed that "strong representation" should be made to the deputy minister of municipal affairs to have the act amended during the current session of the legislature.

Ald. Brian Smith said fees should be levied for applications for rezoning, subdivisions or land-use contracts because of the amount of staff time spent on such matters.

The committee also agreed to ask council to reconsider zoning down the Newport block area.

The block was the centre of controversy in 1971 when developer John Mace proposed to build twin nine-storey apartments, containing 200 suites, with the ground floor as retail on Newport on the block bounded by Windsor, Currie, Goodwin and Newport.

The project was turned down after a stormy public hearing.

At today's meeting the committee voiced approval of keeping a low profile for the Newport side of the block.

Smith said new zoning should be considered that would relate the amount of underground parking required to the square footage of retail units.

Municipal engineer planner Geoffrey White said that because the retail outlets are small on the block some reduction in underground parking requirements would be in order.

rial, restrict them to 30 feet in recommend to council that the area starting from Florence on the north side, going along Cadboro Bay to Bowker (with the exception of the Magnet Hardware) and, on the other side from just pass Cranmore up to the Oak Bay Manor be rezoned Zone B.

If the zoning is approved it will require apartments to be built of non-combustible material, restrict themto 30 feet in height and require 35 feet side setbacks.

In other business the committee:

—Approved plans for the addition of a vestry, lobby and office to St. Philip's Church on the understanding that additional parking be deleted in order to avoid blacktopping more grass area and, instead, the existing parking space by blacktopped.

—Appointed Ald. Norman Pimlott to represent council at planning meetings for the Oak Bay Tea Party, to be held June 2 and 3.

munistic doctrines of this government."

Retorted Health Minister Dennis Cocke: "That's as low as you can get and that's pretty low."

Phillips called for a free vote on the bill. He read a batch of more than 20 telegrams which he said the Socreds received during the evening, all urging a continued effort by that party to fight the bill.

Phillips termed the legislation "mass punishment for every landowner in British Columbia."

PROTECTION 'GUISE'

He said the real principle of the bill is "complete takeover of private land through the guise of protection of farmland." Attempts to amend the bill would be "like putting a raw egg back together again."

Phillips suggested that a government committee should travel to countries where "centralized land control" is in effect, to witness the effect on food production and costs.

The landowners will become "serfs" who will "line up outside this legislature in a very few years to say the same things the Indians are saying today: without land, we have no soul, no life, no identity and no purpose." The Victoria Real Estate Board said in its brief that it is "not satisfied that it is necessary to enact legislation which is tantamount to the thin edge of the wedge of nationalization of the land" in order to protect farm and rural land.

The board said the powers given to the land commission should be ordinary expropriation powers such as those already used by governments, because this method would result in a fair financial compensation to landowners affected by the commission's land acqusition.

The board's brief says it is "abundantly clear" that the bill will alienate the powers of local governments to carry out their own planning.

Provisions in the bill allow the proposed land commission to have "jurisdiction over any parcel of real estate in British Columbia regardless of its size."

The board also suggested that an advisory board of "knowledgeable citizens" should be formed to make non-binding recommendations to the commission.

Board chairman Charman told a press conerence that it is "a lot of rubbish" to think that the act will really do anything to preserve the family farm because the real problems faced by the farmer are the economics of food production, not the disappearance of farmland.

The only economically viable part of farming, board members agreed, comes when the farmer sells his land for a profit.

DELAY WANTED

The board wants a delay on passage of the bill until the fall, to give time for more public discussion.

The chamber of commerce brief also calls for a look at the economics of farming before implementation of the bill.

The brief says the act should be administered at the local level by municipalities and regional governments, with "some overriding authority" kept for the commission.

The procedures for land acquisition and compensation should be built into the bill, rather than into regulations written by the commission. Appeal hearings should be held prior to the commission's designation of land to farm or other uses under the act.

Because all landowners are left in a "state of complete uncertainty," the sections on non-agricultural land should be withdrawn from the bill and studied by a legislative committee.

SHORTAGE SEEN

The bill, if passed in its present form, will "create a shortage of land for housing and thereby inflate the prices of existing developed housing land," the chamber's brief says. The government's freeze on sale of farmland, ordered last December, has already produced this problem.

Following Phillips' speech on the bill in the legislature, Bob McClelland (SC — Langley) is prepared to talk for another five hours. The aim is to stretch the debate to Thursday, to coincide with the farmers' demonstration.

Saanich Probes '73 Spending

A careful look into the future will be taken March 20 by members of Saanich council before commitments are made for 1973 municipal spending.

The largest Greater Victoria community, which last year had an $18 million budget and likely will deal with a $1 million increase during the next five weeks, has to examine its capital spending requirements to meet population pressures.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said today the March 20 meeting will be informal and closed to press and public while spending priorities are discussed.

He would make no formal presentation himself, Curtis said. Instead, the senior staff and department heads led by municipal administrator W. M. Tremayne would be placing proposals and alternatives before aldermen who would then respond with their views of the need for such things as roadwork compared with additional recreational facilities.

Although the 1973 budget is of first concern, any capital spending decisions must be taken with a view to future years because of the continuing nature of most projects.

Council is divided in thought about some undertakings, for example a proposed second ice surface in the community before much-needed drainage systems are installed in parts of Saanich subject to winter flooding.

Between these two extremes lie many proposed road reconstruction and new sidewalk projects and the creation and development of parks and green space.

Curtis said whatever is discussed would not be made binding and may require a further informal meeting. In any case, proposals for future courses of action will be presented to a formal meeting of council for ratification.

Before budget-trimming sessions are finished council's public works committee will make a bus tour of the northern sector of Saanich on March 27.

This will be the second half of the committee's annual inspection of trouble spots or areas requiring early attention for heavy maintenance or improvement.

Picketing Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP) — Non-union waitresses fired at Denny's Restaurant here last month extended their picketing Tuesday to a new company outlet under construction in suburban Coquitlam.

The pickets held up construction for about an hour as the women tried to put pressure on the company to solve their labor problems.

We call our exciting New Paint Latex Velvet-Lustre Enamel. Here's why:

VELVET because it's a soft touch to touch-up. Leaves barely a trace. If you skip a place, simply cover it later when the original coat dries. Blends perfectly.

ENAMEL because it's tough, hard-surfaced and hard-wearing. Washable, too, but it won't leave those annoying shiny patches. Now you can paint walls and woodwork from the same can.

LATEX because clean-up is a breeze. Simply wash brushes or rollers with water. And one coat is usually all you need to cover most previously painted surfaces.

LUSTRE because it gives you a unique, elegant, lustrous finish. Just a hint of sheen that adds subtle new life to your rooms.

BAPCO because we're proud to add this exciting innovation to our product line. When it says BAPCO you know it's good. And it's at your BAPCO dealer now.
